White Angrily Protests Transfer Of Blast Furnace To Kaiser Company

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The transfer of a Government-owned blast furnace in Cleveland to the Kaiser-Frazer Corporation provoked some fiery language before a Joint Congressio..al Investigating Committee last night.

Charles M. White, president of the Republic Steel Corporation, said that his firm got a "stinking deal" from the War Assets Administration.

Republic had been operating the blast furnace, America's largest, soince the war days. Following a dispute over the rental, War Assets Administrator Jess Larson made the deal with Kaiser-Frazer on August 17.

White Bristles With Anger

White, bristling with anger, said the treatment accorded his corporation by WAA was "a hell of a note," and he added:

"I resent to the very core the dirty damn things said here today by these dirty damn bureaucrats."

Having thus unburdened himself, White assured Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) that he was not "mad." A roar of laughter swept the Senate caucus room.

Henry Kaiser, chairman of the board of Kaiser-Frazer, who followed White to the witness stand, charged that "pressure" was being exerted to nullify the transfer of the Cleveland blast furnace.

Wherry Presses Kaiser

Senator Wherry kept pressing Kaiser to say whether his corporation would be able to supply pig iron to the 400-odd foundries and others that heretofore have been supplied by Republic.

Kaiser said that if Wherry would act as umpire between him and White, they could "do some allocating."

The Nebraska law-maker said he hoped that Kaiser and White could work it out themselves.

"Listen," said Kaiser, "you've got to make a Christian out of Mr. White before you can do anything."

White, sitting just behind Kaiser, joined in the laughter.

The hearings, which opened at 10 a. m. and continued far into the night, were conducted jointly by the Senate Small Business Committee and the House Procurement and Building Subcommittee.

Deal Likened to Poker Game

At the afternoon session, James Mitchell, 65-year-old head of a Cleveland foundry, likened the negotiations over the blast furnace to a high-stakes poker game.

He said the players were White, Kaiser and Larson.

"When they showed their hands," Mitchell testified, amidst laughter, "Larson had four aces . . . Some powerful people were push-

Prelate 50 Years Oldest U. S. Catholic Bishop Dies

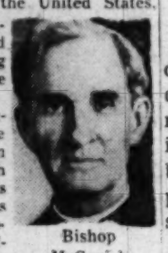
La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Most Rev. Alexander James McGavick, 85, oldest Roman Catholic bishop in the United States, died early today. He had been in failing health since July.



Bishop McGavick

Bishop McGavick was the senior bishop in the Nation both in age and years in office. He was to have observed the fiftieth anniversary of his elevation to the episcopacy October 17 at the National Catholic Rural Life Conference.

A native of Fox Lake, Ill., he was ordained to the priesthood June 11, 1887, and was appointed an assistant at All Saints Church in Chicago. In 1897 he became pastor of St. John's Church in Chicago and on November 2, 1893, he was appointed auxiliary Bishop of Chicago. In 1918 he became an auxiliary bishop to Cardinal Mundelein.

On March 21, 1922, he was installed as Bishop of the LaCrosse Catholic Diocese. In 1937 Pope Pius XI appointed Bishop McGavick an assistant at the papal throne.

The body of Bishop McGavick will lie in state at St. Joseph's Cathedral from Sunday afternoon until 10 a. m. Tuesday, when a pontifical requiem mass will be celebrated.

Pennsy Plans Trains Like Luxury Ships

$216,700,366 Budget Is Announced in Big Building Program

Philadelphia, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today it is launching a $216,700,366 building program, the largest in its history.

Martin W. Clement, president of the largest rail network in the Nation, set forth a plan that would make rolling luxury liners of the trains of the future.

Under the plan, every through passenger train will have supervised children's playrooms, movies, refreshment lounges, temperature controls and other supermodern conveniences.

Clement said the building program will cost the railroad more than the United States Government paid for such gigantic public works as Boulder Dam or the Alaskan Highway.

Here are some of the improvements Clement envisages:

1. Doors that open at a touch through use of compressed air.
2. New style wheel trucks eliminating virtually all sway on curves.
3. Fluorescent lighting throughout giving "a mellow, shadowless glow . . . no glare."
4. Longer passenger coaches with fewer seats, giving more leg room—"an important factor in overnight coach travel."
5. Sleepers that are all-room cars with "no more open-section berths . . . extra-wide panorama windows . . . enclosed wardrobes and ample luggage space."
6. Widespread use of private rooms for daytime travel on short trips.

Clement said the Pennsylvania Railroad has arranged purchase of 566 new Diesel electric locomotives and is aiming at abandoning steam locomotives on all its through passenger trains from New York to the West and South.

Also under contract are 395 new lightweight sleeping cars, overnight coaches, twin-unit and single

Stalin Offers Money Plan, London Hears

Move Reported To End Deadlock On East-West Talks on Berlin

London, Aug. 25 (AP).—A diplomatic informant said today Prime Minister Stalin has moved to break the deadlock in East-West talks on Berlin by proposing a two-point approach to the city's currency snarl.

First, the Russian leader was said to have put forward a special currency plan designed broadly to reconcile conflicting East-West views on the future control of the city's finances.

Secondly, he was reported to have expressed Russian willingness to join new Berlin talks among financial experts which would aim at hammering out a four-power accord on currency control. His specific plan presumably would be the basis of these discussions.

West to Study Plan

The source, who declined to be identified even by nationality, said he was unable to detail the nature of Stalin's compromise.

Meanwhile, fiscal experts of the three Western powers prepared to study these proposals in Washington, London, Paris and Berlin.

A Foreign Office spokesman indicated there would be a lull in the Moscow negotiations pending "necessary consultations" — first within the Foreign Office, then with Berlin financial experts and finally with the American and French governments.

Stalin's willingness to join expert-level Big Four currency talks could mean Russia is ready to accept in principle Western demands for sharing in the control of Berlin's economy. In turn this acceptance would acknowledge the right of the West to continue occupying Berlin—a right Russia has challenged since the Western decision to set up a Frankfurt government.

Authoritative Allied sources in Berlin saw little hope of success for an "experts" conference on Berlin's economy. They said if the Big Four were unable to settle the question on a governmental level, there was no reason to expect it could be settled in Berlin on a lower level.

Expert agreement on Berlin currency control would eliminate the main obstacle holding up settlement of East-West quarrels in Berlin which the negotiators have been seeking in Moscow since July 29.

Plane Jettisons Diapers to Limp 880 Miles, Save 35

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 25 (U.P.) — After jettisoning even babies' diapers to keep from crashing into the sea, a big C-54 military airliner carrying 35 passengers limped 880 miles on two of its four motors and landed safely at the United States air base here today.

As the plane halted on a runway at Kinderly Field after a perfect landing, the passengers, including 12 children, hugged each other hysterically and cheered. Several women burst into tears.

The plane, operated by the Military Air Transport Service and piloted by Lieut. (jg) R. C. Williamson, was en route from Germany to Westover, Mass.

Williamson said two of the engines failed suddenly when the plane was 880 miles east of Bermuda on a hop from the Azores. Heavy equipment, all personal baggage and even diapers were thrown overboard to lighten the plane.

Parley Unaffected By Consular Action

Moscow, Aug. 25 (NYHT).—The decision of the Soviet Union to close its consulates in the United States and to have the American consulate in Russia closed will not affect the course of the current four-power Moscow talks, it was observed here today.

Notwithstanding this decision, which was taken before the last meeting at the Kremlin Monday night, Prime Minister Stalin displayed good will and achieved a measure of agreement with the Western envoys.

Calls Appointment 'Void'

District Bar Directors Urge Tamm's Ouster Without Pay

Proceedings to oust Edward Allen Tamm as associate judge of District Court, or to recover money paid him as salary, or both, were urged last night by the board of directors of the District Bar Association.

The board adopted a report of a committee which maintained that the recess appointment of Tamm by President Truman on June 22 was "utterly void" because Congress was not then in recess. Moreover, even if Tamm was legally appointed, his appointment expired with the recent special session of Congress, the report argued.

By a "substantial majority," the board passed a resolution to send copies of the report to Attorney General Tom Clark and United States District Attorney George Morris Fay, and to ask them to start the recommended proceedings.

If the legal actions are not started, or if no response is received to the request "within a reasonable time," the resolution

Chambers Confronted by Hiss; Each Charges Other Is a Liar

Harris & Ewing

Ex-U. S. Official Quizzed 6 Hours About His Ties With Accuser

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers, together under the glaring lights of a congressio..l hearing room, remained worlds apart last night in their stories of who they were and what they did together in the mid '30's.

What will be the next move on Chambers' charge that Hiss was a dues-paying member of an elite Communist underground apparatus in the Federal Government here will be considered by the House Committee on Un-American Activities today. The committee will meet in executive session at 10:30 a. m. Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) said there would be no further public hearing today.

Hiss, slender, serious former State Department official, now president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was questioned steadily by the committee for six hours. Chambers, thick-set avowed former Communist writer and underground worker, now a senior editor for Time magazine, was on the stand for about an hour and 40 minutes before the hearing ended at 8 p. m.

"Damdest Liar," "Greatest Actor"

Each heard the other call him a liar. Each heard a committee member, Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) declare one of them was the "damnedest liar" ever to appear on the American scene, and the one that was lying was "the greatest actor" ever seen in this country.

Some 1200 persons crowded the hearing room, and other hundreds lined up outside in the corridor, as the hearing opened. The room stayed packed most of the day. Movie and television lights glared through the session.

Hiss was called to the stand shortly after 10:30 a. m. With him was Attorney John F. Davis of 1700 I st. nw. After preliminaries, Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling called on Hiss to stand up.

Then Chambers, also called by Stripling, stood up a few feet away, beyond a press table to Hiss' right, near the curving committee bench.

Hiss identified Chambers as George Crosley, whom he knew in 1934 or 1935 and thought he had last seen in 1935.

Chambers identified Hiss as the Alger Hiss he thought he had first met in 1934 and whom he had last seen about 1938. The two sat down.

While Hiss testified, Chambers sat quietly, sometimes with folded arms, sometimes with eyes fixed on the ceiling. While Chambers was on the stand, Hiss sat behind him at the second press table back, taking notes steadily.

Yugoslav Note Hits Romania For 'Insults'

Accused of Seeking To Cause Revolt And Overthrow Tito

London, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Yugoslav government today accused neighboring Romania of grossly insulting the Tito regime and trying to bring about a revolt to overthrow Premier Marshal Tito.

Tito's Foreign Minister, Stanoje Simic, made the charges in a hotly worded note handed the Romanian Ambassador in Belgrade.

Yugoslavia accused Mrs. Ana Pauker, Romanian Foreign Minister and a leading spirit in the Cominform, of leading in a campaign of villification against Tito and his aides.

Contents of the note were broadcast from Belgrade tonight.

It was the latest flareup in the fight between Tito and the Communist International Information Bureau. This fight came to a climax in July with the Cominform's decision that Tito and other Yugoslav leaders were not following Moscow closely enough. Early this month a former chief of staff of the Yugoslav army was shot to death, Belgrade announced, while he was trying to flee into Romania.

Today Tito protested to Romania against any continuance of "this monstrous anti-Yugoslav campaign." The Tito note said "such hostile outrages" threaten the two neighbors' diplomatic relations and weaken the Communist front.

Former Slav General Assails Tito Regime

Bucharest, Romania, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Pero Popivoda, former major general in the Yugoslav air force and once a close associate of Marshal Tito, said today he fled Yugoslavia to escape Tito's secret police.

Jumped to Escape From Reds, Mrs. Kasenkina Tells Press

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, central figure in the bizarre international incident which resulted in curtailment of consular relations between the United States and Soviet Russia, told her own story freely today.

In her room at Roosevelt Hospital, she told reporters that she had been held in the Soviet consulate against her will, that she leaped from one of its windows in order to escape, not with any idea of killing herself; that the Soviet regime had deprived her of her husband and her son; and that she had determined to escape into the free world even before she left Russia.

She added the charge that Soviet Ambassador Alexander Panyushkin and Consul-General Jacob Lomakin had concocted the story she had told the reporters at their last meeting. That was a press conference called by Lomakin on the day he said he had "rescued" her from White Russian "kidnapers."

In Lomakin's presence and in the consulate, she told reporters then that she had been "afraid" to leave the White Russians and had sneaked a letter out after asking Lomakin to rescue her.

While she talked, Vice Consul Zot I. Chepurnykh bade goodbye to reporters who have maintained a round-the-clock vigil at the consulate. He sailed a few hours later from Jersey City, N. J., aboard the Russian ship Marshal Govorova, bound for Leningrad by way of Mexico.

Chepurnykh was accompanied by his wife and three children and five Russian clerical workers, members of the United Nations staff here.

He told reporters that he thought the closing of the consulate general was "for the good."

Lomakin and the consulate staff were preparing to follow him as

Soviet Knew Consulates Faced Closing

State Department Had Been Thinking of Taking Action Itself

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The Soviet government knew its consulates here probably would be closed by American order if it did not close them of its own accord, it was learned yesterday.

More than a year ago Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith warned the Kremlin that it might lose its consulates in New York and San Francisco if it persisted in restricting the American diplomatic and consular establishment in Russia.

Smith had been negotiating for permission to set up a consulate in Leningrad, then for a building to house it, and for more staff, more housing and more food for the Americans already stationed in the Soviet Union.

Closing Was Studied

The possibility of closing the New York and San Francisco consulates was again under study in the State Department after last week's decision to expel Consul General Jacob A. Lomakin from his post in New York. It was being held as a bargaining counter until Tuesday night when the Russians abruptly acted first.

Consular relations with the Soviet Union will continue in spite of the Moscow order on the consulates, Secretary Marshall indicated yesterday.

He told his press conference that the Russians presumably would keep the consular section of their embassy in Washington, where passports and commercial matters are handled. He also recalled that they still had Amtorg, their foreign trade organization in New York, which has 103 employes by the latest American count.

Likewise, the Secretary indicated, the Soviet order would not stop the work of the consular section of the American Embassy in

2500 Leaving To Service Airlift Planes

By The Associated Press

The Air Force said yesterday 2500 maintenance men will leave for England September 1 to take care of American B-29 airplanes there and the transport ships used in the Berlin airlift.

The headquarters for the group will be at a wartime maintenance depot at Burtonwood, Lancashire.

The men leaving will be from the U. S. Air Force Fifty-Ninth Air Depot, now stationed at Griffiss Air Force Base, Rome, N. Y., and from the Weather and Communications Service of the Military Air Transport Service (MATS).

The Air Force said the purpose is to provide facilities, supply and maintenance for air craft in "op-

German Red Urges Allies Leave Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP).—Germany's top Communist today called on the Western Allies to leave Berlin. He charged the United States with postwar ruination of Germany just as the "senseless air attacks" wrecked her during the war.

In a Berlin speech to 300 representatives of the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party, Wilhelm Pieck, the party leader, accused America of wanting to saddle Germany with years of military occupation. He also charged the United States wanted to convert the Ruhr into a new munitions springboard for attack against Russia.

The Russians earlier had extended their blockade of Berlin to the intellectual level, banning the western press in the city's Soviet sector.

At the same time they launched a sharp attack against the elected anti-Communist city government, accusing it of splitting the police force and "backing" Western-sponsored currency in direct opposition to Russian orders.

A special session of the city administration rejected the charges as "unjustified."

American officials in Nuernberg meanwhile acknowledged that a German wounded fatally by Soviet zone police near Coburg inside United States-occupied territory

Pacifism, Palestine Topics

Church Council Closes Doors For Discussion of Communism

Amsterdam, Aug. 25 (AP). — The World Council of Churches today began secret deliberations over such controversial questions as communism, pacifism and Palestine.

One authoritative American churchman said that on the basis of informal lobby talk it appeared world political problems could be rated in that order of importance at this first assembly of the World Council.

Fireworks over Soviet policy and spread of communism only sputtered during the day. The controversy was brought into the open yesterday in speeches by John Foster Dulles of the United States and Prof. Joseph Hromadka of Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia.

Dulles told newsmen nothing developed on East-West differences in the closed session except a recognition that they exist.

Dulles, a Presbyterian layman and foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, addressed a section meeting today on "The Church and International Disorder." He spoke early so he could fly home to the United States later in the day. United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas flew here from London to discuss the European situation with Dulles.

A council spokesman told reporters resolutions would be passed along to section committees and their disposal would be announced at news conferences.

He specifically mentioned Palestine as among the subjects for resolutions and debate.

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, dean of the graduate school of the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia, said the Palestine question was a live one among delegates. One group, he added, favors recognition of Israel in terms ranging from lukewarm to hot. He said another faction wanted an expression from the assembly to the effect that justice was on the side of the Arabs in their fight.

Still another group holds that political issues such as Palestine are outside the competence of the council.

The assembly's agenda calls for discussion of the Christian attitude toward the Jew and it was expected that the Palestine quesion would be discussed under this generally.

Same Hot, Sticky Weather; 95 Today

More of the same, the Weather Bureau said yesterday, forecasting sunny skies and a high temperature of about 95 degrees today.

The mercury climbed Wednesday from a 72-degree low at 5:56 a. m. to 93 at 3:55 p. m. Humidity ranged from 92 per cent at 4 a. m. to 50 per cent at 4:30 p. m.

Attlee Rejects Churchill Plea To Lead in Europe Federation

London, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee has rejected wartime Premier Winston Churchill's appeal for Britain to take the lead in creating a United States of Europe, it was revealed today.

A series of letters between Attlee and Churchill was published by Churchill.

Attlee wrote his predecessor that he favored a European political federation, but thought "this is not the right time." He believed it should be left to private individuals and organizations.

France last week invited Britain, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg to a conference on a parliament for Europe. It would be a first step in setting up a European political federation.

A United Press survey of other government views showed a mixture of enthusiasm, lukewarm interest and uncertainty, plus a need for a leader. Britain's official

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Highways, Dams, Ships, Houses—to Kaiser Are Merely Problems in Heavy Materials

Sand . . . gravel . . . cement . . . magnesium . . . gypsum . . . steel . . . aluminum . . . streets . . . highways . . . bridges . . . dams . . . houses . . . planes . . . autos . . . ships . . . Ships . . . SHIPS . . .

These are the raw materials in the success story of Henry J. Kaiser, wartime whiz on the production line.

Kaiser took various combinations of the above-listed raw ingredients, and added certain natural stuff like dash, derring-do, and dynamism, to forge weapons for war and wares for peace.

The friends and admirers of Henry Kaiser regard the massive man as a genius who helped saved democracy by his efforts on the home front.

Coddled Darling, Says Bridges

The enemies and scoffers of Henry Kaiser regard him (in the words of Senator Styles Bridges, R. N. H.) as the "coddled darling of the New Deal who made millions out of the war and built himself an industrial empire at the expense of the taxpayers."

Between his supporters and deprecators, Kaiser is constantly involved in verbal sand-fights, stone-throwing and brick-bat skirmishes. That explains in part why he stormed into Washington yesterday to face another congressional investigating committee.

His latest appearance here is to explain some more of his complex and multifarious transactions with the Government during and since the war.

Henry Kaiser has an egg-shaped face and an egg-bald head. He looks like an easy-going guy, and he'll burst into song when he gets enthusiastic about a project, but he's a very tough egg indeed.

His Parents Poor

At the robust age of 66, Henry Kaiser can divide his life into two parts.

Before 1930, he was chiefly concerned with building streets and highways. He was born in 1882 at Canajaharie, N. Y., of poor parents. In Horatio Alger fashion he quit school at 11 to earn money as a photographer's helper.

In due course he bought out his employer, prospered, flourished, and met a girl named Bessie Fosburgh. To win her papa's consent, he quit picturetaking for street-paving, and through modernization and efficient operation traveled a freshly-paved road to wealth.

After 1930, Henry went in for dams, and helped build Boulder, Parker, Bonneville, Grand Coulee.

In 1940, forseeing a shipbuilding boom, landlubber Kaiser took a flyer at turning out ships on the West Coast, and soon was building them faster than any one else. He produced 1500 ships for the United States Maritime Commission, one in less than five days.

The name "Kaiser" becomes synonymous with "ships." He was hailed by patriots as a "miracle man" of democracy's arsenal.

Answer Sounds Simple

And the world wanted to know: How could a landlubber build ships so fast? His answer sounds simple. He said roads and dams and ships were "just problems in the handling of heavy materials."

Henry also wanted to build fleets of huge flying ships, but this vision failed of fruition for lack of high-command support. He and Howard Hughes got an order to build three of the big birds, and that only resulted in Kaiser getting involved in a congressional investigation, too.

After the war, Henry aimed his sights on steel, housing, aluminum products and autos, in addition to his activities in cement, magnesium, shipbuilding and—what he refers to his bread-and-butter operations—sand and gravel.

They say Henry Kaiser drives himself harder than any of his men, and sleeps only four hours a day. There are skeptics, however, who doubt this story. They want to konw how a single individual with so many irons in the fire can find time to sleep at all.

B & A Claims Service Saves $200,000 Annual Freight Costs

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad contended before the Public Service Commission today that communities it serves will have to pay an estimated additional $200,000 annually in freight hauling charges if it is forced to go out of business.

E. A. Gannon, freight and passenger agent for the B & A, made that statement as PSC rehearings on rival petitions, of the railroad and Red Star Motor Coaches, Inc., for an exclusive passenger bus franchise between Annapolis and Baltimore got under way.

Red Star was given the franchise after the original hearings last month. The B & A contended loss of passenger revenue might force it to close down entirely.

The railroad petitioned for a new hearing. Petitions asking a rehearing also were sent to the PSC by the mayor and city council of Annapolis, the Anne Arundel County board of commissioners and the county chamber of commerce.

The PSC granted the rehearing after resignations of two of the three members were accepted and Governor Lane filled their places with new appointees.

George Cochran Doub, counsel for the B & A, told the commission today that "general public sentiment" was against the original decision, that competition from an outside bus line might put the railway out of business, "thus ruining" small firms dependent on rail freight deliveries.

Mayor William U. McCready of Annapolis expressed fear that his city, the Naval Academy and small communities along the railroad would suffer if Red Star buses were allowed to compete with the B & A.

"The city of Annapolis might become the Athens of America," he asserted.

Red Star lawyers said they would seek to prove that existing trucking organizations could carry fuel and raw materials as cheaply and efficiently as the B & A.

The hearing will continue Thursday.

Steel Man Charges Raw Deal to WAA

ing him in a corner and he called their bluff."

Administrator Larson, testifying later, agreed with Mitchell that "Republic just bluffed too much."

"If I had known they were bluffing," Larson said, "I wouldn't have made the deal with Kaiser-Frazer."

He said that since the 28-million-dollar Governmert-owned blast furnace was "scrambled" in with Republic's huge operations in Cleveland, he "beseeched" and "implored" President White to enter into an agreement to keep it in operation.

Furnace Closes Aug. 31

Republic Steel refused to pay a rental established by the War Assets Administration, Larson said, and announced that it would close down the blast furnace on August 31. He said he offered to arbitrate the differences, but President White refused to go along.

Then, Larson said, he asked Kaiser-Frazer people to make an offer. They did, and a deal was made.

A dozen or more witnesses testified at the outset that the loss of the blast furnace to Republic would cause great hardship to foundries and others that had been receiving pig iron from that corporation. Unemployment and a dislocation of the national economy, they said, would be the result.

Foundryman Mitchell of Cleveland, who injected the poker game analogy, said he was not taking sides with Republic "because they have been too damn cocky."

Still, he said, Republic ought to be allowed to keep the furnace, because they had the "know-how." He said that he was afraid that Henry Kaiser would "out-trade" him.

Kaiser, on his arrival here yesterday morning, said his corporation had exercised its option to lease the blast furnace for 20 years with the privilege of purchasing the plant ultimately for $15,200,000.

During the morning session, Kaiser and White had a brush while both were out among the spectators.

When a witness was unable to give figures on Republic's pig iron production, Kaiser arose and began to volunteer some.

White jumped up and shouted: "Sit down, Henry, you don't know what you're talking about."

Senator Wherry, who was presiding, told both Kaiser and White to sit down.

"We don't want any disturbance here," he said, and a moment later called a three-minute recess or cooling-off period.

Bricker Charges 'Evasion'

While Administrator Larson was on the stand, Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio) asked whether he had submitted the contract with Kaiser-Frazer to the Attorney General for his approval.

Bricker said the transaction was "obviously an evasion of the provisions of the law."

Larson insisted he was not obliged under the law to submit the transaction to the Attorney General because it was not a "disposal." He said it was "an interim lease with an option to buy."

Now that Kaiser has decided to exercise the option, he said, the matter will be submitted to the Attorney General. But unless that official holds that it is in violation of the antitrust laws, he said, he would feel that the deal was "binding."

President White of Republic, taking the stand last night, said that all the earlier testimony about his "bluffing" was claptrap.

He said it was simply a case of WAA trying to get more money out of Republic than Republic was willing to pay.

"We've been kicked all over the place," he said. "We went as far as we could go. There was no bluff about it."

He expressed doubt that the "miracle workers" (Kaiser-Frazer men) would be able to get the raw materials to keep the Cleveland furnace working. And he was "damn sure" that the Government wouldn't get as much money out of Kaiser-Frazer as it would out of Republic.

Kaiser Blasts Collier

Kaiser, at the outset, charged that the earlier testimony of Raymond L. Collier, executive vice president of the Gray Iron Founders Society of Cleveland, was "a tissue of lies." Collier had told the committee that the deal with Kaiser-Frazer was a "bombshell out of the blue," and he predicted it would cause "tremendous upheaval and chaos."

Chairman Wherry tried over and over again to get Kaiser to say that he would continue to supply pig iron to those who have been getting it from Republic.

"I've taken all the punishment I'm going to take," Kaiser said at one point.

Wherry persisted, however, and Kaiser finally said:

"I think it can be done if Republic realizes . . ."

"Stop right there," said Wherry.

Preston Tucker, president and chairman of the board of the Tucker Corp., told the joint committee how he tried in vain to acquire the Cleveland furnace from WAA last winter.

He said his attorneys were checking the advisability of filing an injunction to restrain WAA from selling or leasing the furnace at this time.

The hearing was concluded shortly before midnight.

D. C. Guard MPs Rate Unofficial Sign of Approval

District National Guard trainees in the 163d Military Police Battalion yesterday got the unofficial high sign of approval from unexpected "brass" visitors.

Nothing, mind you, was said to the men by either Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, provost marshal general of the Army Department, or Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding officer of the District National Guard, but both officers prolonged their stay for lunch. The officers, on "separate" visits, saw the 300 men in preliminary marksmanship training and traffic control exercises.

Completing their two-week training at Fort Meade, Md., on Sunday, trainees will stand parade Saturday at 9:15 a. m., with Maj. Gen. Charles Mullins, deputy commanding officer of the Second Army, reviewing. Sunday at noon the MPs expect to be in line at the paymaster's window in the National Guard Armory, 6th and East Capitol sts., by noon for two weeks' pay.

Army Says Homeward Rush Just 'Routine'

The Army announced plans yesterday to speed up passage to this country from Europe of dependents of military personnel and civilian employes.

Beginning Friday, the Army said, some of the dependents will be routed over commercial airlines. Nothing of an emergency nature is involved, the Army stressed, saying it did the same thing six months ago.

Corporation Counsel's Office Facing Sudden Phone Trouble

The office of the Corporation Counsel in Municipal Court found itself without a telephone to call from yesterday as Walter F. Bramhill, chief clerk of the District Court, invoked economy.

Bramhill's explanation was simple: the Corporation Counsel's office should pay for its own telephone calls since it really isn't part of the District Court.

Clark F. King, chief of the office, asked bitterly:

"What do they expect me to use, pony express."

King said when he arrived at work yesterday he found all outgoing calls from his office through the Municipal Court switchboard had been suspended at Bramhill's order.

Outgoing Calls Stopped

He learned also that Bramhill had directed removal of five of the eight telephones in the Corporation Counsel's court office. The dials of the others will be removed to prevent outgoing calls.

Bramhill said that four other telephones in the courthouse will also be removed. He said the action is necessary to prevent a deficit in the court budget.

"The Corporation Counsel's office is a separate entity in the District Government and we can't afford to pay its phone bills," Bramhall said, suggesting that the Corporation Counsel pay the bills out of his own appropriation.

King announced he is sending a letter to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West asking for "relief."

King said that now all outgoing calls from his office will be referred through the court switchboard to the police headquarters switchboard and then to the outside operator.

"This is a cumbersome procedure," he said, "and besides, I don't see why the police department should pay for these calls."

Voluntary Pay Hikes to 12,300 In 2 W. Va. Plants

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Kanawha Valley's two major chemical installations announced today voluntary cost-of-living pay increases for 12,300 employes.

Carbide and Carbon Chemical Corp. posted notices that hourly wage rates at its South Charleston plant would be raised 10 cents on August 29 and that salaried employes would get an $18-a-month increase. The plant employs 7500.

At the same time, E. I. Dupont de Nemours told employes at its Belle plant that al employes would receive increases averaging 5½ per cent, varying from 7 to 11 cents hourly. Dupont employs 4800 persons.

Neither plant is unionized. Increases were announced by management without employe negotiations.

Cotton Exports Hit 76-year Low

By the United Press

The Agriculture Department said yesterday that United States cotton exports apparently hit a 76-year peacetime low in the crop year just ended.

The report increased the possibility of a large-scale Government program to support cotton prices this year.

It said cotton shipments abroad in the crop year ended July 31 totaled only about two million bales.

"Exports have not been this low during peace time since 1871-72," the department added.

Some 4400 new freight cars are on order while 8149 others are undergoing extensive repairs and construction.

Clement emphasized the high cost of new equipment and pointed out that 113 new lightweight overnight passenger coaches already received have cost about $90,000 each. The futuristic cars now under design will cost considerably more, Clement said.

The PRR president had this to say about fares:

"Though railroad fares have recently been increased, coach tickets still cost less than they did for nearly 16 years between the two world wars, and railroad fares in Pullman cars are no higher than during that period.

"Yet railroad wages and the prices of all materials and supplies the railroads use are far higher."

5 Killed, Several Hurt In Argentine Quake

Salta, Argentina, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—At least five persons were killed and several were injured in a series of strong earth temblors that rocked the Salta area early today.

Lasting about five seconds, the strongest shock sent people from their beds to the safety of open spaces.

Communications were disrupted for several hours throughout northwestern Argentina.

negative attitude will virtually kill any move now.

Ironically, Attlee often has been cited, especially by John Foster Dulles, Republican Party Foreign Affairs adviser, as an exponent of a European federation. He has been quoted as saying, "Europe must federate or perish."

Official quarters, following publication of the correspondence, tried to take the sting out of Attlee's rejection by declaring the government is not opposed to a Federation and even thought one is "inevitable in the long run."

Attlee's position, as revealed in the Churchill-Attlee letters, is based on the fear that a European federation would weaken Britain's ties with her empire. He said he could not express "any definite view" until after the Commonwealth Conference here in October.

However, the French invitation suggested the conference take place before October. The French government asked for parliament members of the five treaty States to meet as an advisory body in The Hague.

Hiss and Chambers Swap Liar Charges

It was Hiss who was having the uphill fight in the dramatic face-to-face showdown on who was telling the truth. At the outset Chairman Thomas gave a blunt warning that one of the two certainly would be tried for perjury. Near the close of Hiss' testimony, Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) told Hiss while the latter sat erect looking at the speaker that "on every point on which we have had verifiable evidence, Mr. Chambers' testimony has stood up and it stands unchallenged." In contrast, he said, some of Hiss' testimony had been "clearly refuted" and on other points it was "clouded by a strangely deficient memory."

Hiss replied he was not then making a final answer to Mundt's so-called summation" of the testimony. He said the "man who calls himself Chambers" for 10 years had been "peddling" to Government agencies the report that Alger Hiss was a Communist. He said Chambers had had ample time to check on the details he gave in testimony. He said he would try to produce witnesses who knew Chambers as Crosley. "So far as I know, you have only his (Chambers') unsupported testimony that he was a Communist."

Subpena for Peters

A strong suggestion of one future course the hearing may take came with Chambers' testimony that "J. Peters" was one of those who introduced him to Hiss in a Washington restaurant in the '30s. Peters, identified by Chambers as onetime head of the Communist underground in the United States and in that position when he knew Hiss as a member of the underground, is to be subpenaed by the House committee in New York Monday. At that time Peters is to be produced by his lawyer for a deportation hearing. He is now free on $5000 bond.

In the windup of his bout on the witness stand, Hiss dramatically called upon the committee to put to Chambers a series of 10 questions. For one thing he wanted to know if Chambers had ever been treated for a mental illness.

Asked About Mental Illness

Representative Herbert said he had asked Chambers that question in an executive hearing in New York and had received a negative answer. Hebert said it was a typical Communist smear to charge a witness as a mental case. He said Chambers had added that he was not an alcoholic. Hiss said he raised the question because he had second-hand hearsay reports that Chambers had received treatment as a mental case.

"I have never been treated for a mental illness, period," Chambers told the committee. "Nor have I ever been in a mental institution."

In another tense exchange, Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) asked Chambers why he had gone to Hiss to persuade the latter to break from the Communist Party in 1938.

"I was very fond of Hiss," said Chambers. "He was certainly the closest friend I ever had in the Communist Party."

Nixon asked what his motive had been for accusing Hiss as a Communist.

"The story is spread that I am working out some old motives of revenge or hatred," Chambers replied. "I don't hate Mr. Hiss. We were friends. But we are caught in a tragedy of history. Hiss represents the concealed enemy against which we are all fighting. And I am fighting. I testify against him with remorse and pity."

As he went on Chambers' voice slowed close to choking, and he appeared struggling to hold back tears. Behind him, Hiss looked up, head shaking as if in amazement.

"In a moment of historical jeopardy in which this Nation now stands, so help me God, I could not do otherwise," Chambers concluded. He reached for a paper cup of water and sipped it.

The passage brought into new focus previously secret testimony by Chambers about his association with Hiss, presented to the committee in executive session August 7, and made public yesterday.

Chambers then testified he knew that Hiss was a member of the Communist Party, because he was told it by Peters, head of the Red underground in this country. He said Hiss had submitted himself for the two or three years of their acquaintance as a "dedicated and disciplined Communist." He recalled Hiss as prompt in party dues-paying, but said that in the Communist group which included Hiss none of the members had party cards for reasons of security and concealment.

Lived Simply

In that session he was asked about whether the Hiss family had served any special dish at mealtimes, and Chambers gave this reply:

"No. I think you get here into something else. Hiss is a man of great simplicity and a great gentleness and sweetness of character, and they (referring to Hiss and his wife) lived with extreme simplicity. I had the impression that the furniture in that (the Hiss) house was kind of pulled together from here and there, maybe got it from their mother or something like that. Nothing lavish about it whatsoever, quite simple. The food was in the same pattern, and they cared nothing about food. It was not a primary interest in their lives."

Prothonotary Warbler

Both in the secret hearing and yesterday the Red probe got around to, of all things a prothonotary warbler, a very rare bird distinguished by rich orange and olive green coloring.

In the secret session, Chambers had recalled that Hiss and his wife had the same hobby—they were amateur bird observers. "They used to get up early in the morning," he said, "and go to Glen Echo, out the canal, to observe birds. I recall once they saw, to their great excitement, a prothonotary warbler."

Chambers said he had never seen one, although "I am also fond of birds."

Yesterday Hiss raised the point about his being an amateur bird observer, and said that fact was brought out in Who's Who. He mentioned it in protesting that he had not received a copy of Chambers' secret testimony. Stripling brought out that Chambers had not been given a copy of his own or Hiss' testimony.

Later Chambers referred again to the bird and spelled its name.

Chambers Tells of Car Deal

Much of the morning testimony revolved around the 1929 Ford which Hiss said he believed he had turned over to the man he knew as George Crosley throwing the car in with the sublease of an apartment to Crosley.

Chambers came back—via previous secret testimony—with this story. "The Communist Party had in Washington a service station—that is the man in charge, or the owner of this station, was a Communist,—or it may have been a car lot. The owner was a Communist. I never knew who this was or where it was.

"It was against all the rules of the underground organization for Hiss to do anything with his car but trade it in, and I think this investigation has proved how right the Communists are in such matters. But Hiss insisted that he wanted the car turned over to the open party so it could be of use to some poor organizer in the West or elsewhere. Much against my better judgment and much against Peters' better judgment, he finally got us to permit him to do this thing.

"Peters knew where the lot was and he either took Hiss there or he gave Hiss the address and Hiss went there and to the best of my recollection of his description of that happening, he left the car there and simply went away and the man in charge of the station took care of the rest of it for him."

Investigator Testifies

Chambers said the transaction took place in the District.

Recalling this testimony, Stripling yesterday called to the witness stand a committee investigator, Louis J. Russell, to testify about a photostatic record showing that on July 23, 1936, Hiss assigned the title of the 1929 Ford to the Cherner Motor Co.

The document showed on the same day the title was assigned to a William Rosen of 5405 13th st. nw. He said no record of Rosen was found at that address, and that the Cherner files, with sales records numbered in consecutive order, showed no such sale for that date. Stripling said the committee files showed two Rosens, and they were being checked, one in California, the other in Detroit.

Stripling emphasized that there was no evidence that top officials of the Cherner Co., quizzed secretly the day before, knew anything of the transaction. He said it was possible that an employe in the firm at that time may be involved.

Hiss Asked About Signature

Stripling called Hiss back and asked him if it were his signature on the photostat of the assignment of title. Hiss said it looked like his signature, but suggested that the original document be obtained.

"Well, Mr. Hiss," said Chairman Thomas, "can't you recall from the phostat what this signature is?"

"It looks like my signature," said Hiss.

Later Hiss told Stripling that from the outline of the writing assigning the title to the Cherner Motor Co., it looked not unlike his own writing. Stripling announced that the committee had quizzed W. Marvin Smith, who notarized the signature, and that he had testified it was Hiss' signature. Finally Hiss said that, with the eveidence shown him, the signature on the assignment of title was his own.

Called "Agile Young Man"

Hiss insisted, however, that he had no present recollection of the transaction by which he finally disposed of the Ford. His assertion brought from Hebert the comment: "You are a remarkably agile young man."

Discussion of the auto sale in the afternoon session led to Stripling's asking Hiss if he knew a man named "Bialek."

"The name means nothing to me," said Hiss.

Stripling later said, under questioning by Representative Nixon, that Benjamin Bialek lived at the address given by the car purchaser, William Rosen, at the time of the purchase. He said Mrs. Bialek recalled no one of that name, and that Bialek is now ill.

Committee Member Richard B. Vail (R., Ill.) said the Bialek name "rings a bell in my memory." He said that about a year ago four Chicago students, here to lobby for a GI subsistence bill, had come to his office to tell of being met in Washington by a Robert Bialek. He said Bialek took them to a home where there were tables loaded with communistic literature, and later they were taken to parties where they were subjected to communistic propaganda. He recalled that the committee had gone into their story.

"I think, in view of the fact that the (Hiss) automobile found its way into the hands of a man named Rosen, who resided at this same address of Robert Bialeck, is sufficient of a coincidence to justify some exploration," said Vail.

Stripling told Vail that Robert was the son of Benjamin Bialeck.

Different Answers

On nearly every major line of committee inquiry Hiss and Chambers came up with different answers.

Hiss, prefacing nearly every statement with the phrase, "according to my best recollection," stuck to his earlier picture of Chambers as a man named "George Crosley" who came into his office and introduced himself as a free lance writer. Hiss was then counsel for the Senate committee investigating the munitions industry. He told of a number of loans to "Crosley." He told of subleasing an apartment to "Crosley" and throwing in the car. He told of recalling that "Crosley" and the latter's wife and baby stayed at the Hiss home for several nights before they took over the apartment.

The apartment, records presented by Stripling showed, was at 2831 28th st. nw., and was vacated June 28, 1935. The house, 2905 P st. nw., was rented by Hiss from May 1, 1935, to June 15, 1936, for $105 a month. Hiss told his recollection that the "Crosleys" stayed at the P st. house for several days while they were awaiting some furniture from New York.

Claims Crosley Welshed

Hiss said he was still trying to find persons who knew Chambers as Crosley. He said he would continue to find all the information he could. He pictured his association as ending because he decided Crosley was a fourflusher, who kept on asking more favors, but welshed on his debts.

Chambers pictured the association as entirely a Communist Party matter, in which Hiss knew him only as "Carl." He said he had met Alger Hiss, the latter's younger brother, Donald, and others at an apartment in St. Matthew's Court here. He said "we separated Alger Hiss from that group rather early" to set up a parallel group. He said he knew Hiss was a Communist because "the assumption was in the whole setup—J. Peters was dealing with party comrades and these were dues-paying members of the Communist Party. Mr. Hiss obeyed party discipline in every respect."

He said he was allowed to move into the Hiss apartment, after Hiss moved to the P st. house, because "Hiss and I were Communists." He said he was absolutely certain Hiss had not given or lent him an auto.

Both testified to a recollection of making an auto trip from Washington to New York together.

Chambers said he saw Hiss continually, at least once a fortnight, through 1936 and 1937, and made the Hiss home a kind of headquarters during that time. He said he would discuss with Hiss the latter's Government work, and such topics as the world revolution, the Spanish Civil War, and foreign policy. He said "Mr. Hiss considered it a privilege to have a superior in the Communist organization in his home." Cahmbers had given his role in the party as that of a courier.

At one point Chambers said that to give his present home address, where he lives with his wife and two children, would be tantamount to telling the address to the Communist Party. "I don't want to expose myself and my family to an attempt on my life," he said.

Hiss Takes Notes

Hebert asked Chambers what his reaction was to Hiss' denial of the Communist charges. "He is lying," said Chambers. He called Hiss' testimony "80 per cent fabrication."

Hiss continued to take notes.

Herbert asked about Hiss' characterization of Chambers as a confessed liar and a confessed traitor.

"Perhaps he means that as a renegade from the Communist Party I was a traitor," said Chambers.

Hiss looked up and grinned broadly.

"You're almost as quick on your feet as Mr. Hiss," Hebert told Chambers.

On a final question from Representative Mundt, Chambers said: "It's unquestionably that they (Communist cells) are still functioning in our Government and will be until they are rooted out."

Services to Ask Boosts in Pay, Forrestal Says

By the United Press

Defense Secretary James Forrestal indicated yesterday the next session of Congress will be asked to increase the pay scales of the armed forces.

United States military pay, highest in the world, now ranges from $75 a month paid Army privates and Navy "boots" to more than $1200 a month for flying admirals and generals.

Forrestal's office said a civilian advisory commission which surveyed living conditions at various military installations will return here today and file its report in the near future.

Its findings, it said, are expected "to form the basis of recommendations to Congress, at the next session, for pay scales in all branches of the armed forces."

Supreme Court Review Demanded by Krupp

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 25 (AP). — Munitions Maker Alfried Krupp challenged today the United States military governor's right to confirm a 12-year sentence for war crimes.

His attorneys petitioned Gen. Lucius D. Clay to refer the case to the United States Supreme Court. They argued the military governor's powers are not wide enough to deal with the complex case.

An American tribunal sentenced Krupp and 10 associates of the steel and munitions combine to prison for looting occupied countries and using slave labor.

Maritime Union Expels Leader for 99 Years

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 25 (AP).—Clyde S. Ganaway, former Mobile port agent of the National Maritime Union (CIO) was expelled from the union for 99 years by a trial committee today.

The committee held that Ganaway "placed his personal aims and ambitions and those of the Communist Party ahead of the welfare of the members of the NMU."

Airline Plans $75 Tourist Fare To Puerto Rico

A $75 one-way "tourist" fare between New York and San Juan, Puerto Rico, will be inaugurated September 24 by Pan American World Airways, it was announced yesterday.

The reduced cost of the 1612-mile nine-hour trip will be made possible by use of DC-4 type Clippers seating 63 passengers instead of the 52 customarily hauled, and by eliminating meals and other "extras," the announcement said. The present one-way fare on the regular service is $133.

The new daily "tourist" service between New York and San Juan will be in addition to the regular San Juan Clipper service begun in 1929.

Governors Group Urges Cut in U. S. Aid to States

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Governors Conference Executive Committee, meeting with House and Senate Committees, today called for a 20 per cent reduction in Federal grants in aid to States.

The joint conference, under chairmanship of Gov. Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming, asserted that "States must cease relying on the Federal Government to do those things which they can do for themselves . . ."

Teacher's Demotion Protested

Arlington's first elected school board ran into its first major criticism yesterday as spokesmen for 1500 county residents labeled the demotion of a school vice-principal "arbitrary" and an "injustice."

Center of the controversy is Mrs. Frances Bell, who was not reappointed as assistant principal for girls at Washington-Lee High School, a post she had held 20 years.

The school board "unanimously reaffirmed" yesterday an earlier decision to assign Mrs. Bell as head of the foreign languages department at Washington-Lee.

Mrs. William A. Stewart, 940 N. Livingston st., and Mrs. Thelma Dawson, 3418 S. 14th st., who described themselves as spokesmen for the 1500 who had signed a petition protesting the demotion, said both Washington-Lee Principal C. M. Richmond and Arlington School Supt. Fletcher Kemp had recommended reappointment of Mrs. Bell.

They quoted the Virginia School Code as saying the school superintendent "shall have authority to assign to their respective positions all teachers and principals employed by the board," and asked how the board "with no personal acquaintance of Mrs. Bell," could justify the demotion over the recommendation of the principal and school superintendent.

In explaining its stand, the board said it desired "to strengthen the attention given to problems of individual students" by naming asistant principals with training in this field. Mrs. Bell will take her new post at no reduction in salary, board members said.

All five members of the board were elected last November on a ticket of school reform, replacing a board appointed by the Arlington Circuit Court.

West German Setup May Include Berlin

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 25 (AP).—Beleaguered Berlin may be represented in West Germany's new government-in-the-making, United States Military Government sources said today.

Proposals to give the former Reich capital 30 out of some 400 votes in the future parliament in Frankfurt have been drafted by a committee of German experts, the informants said.

The experts represent 11 individual states of the three western zones. They met for two weeks at Lake Chiem, near Munich, and completed last night a 300-page recommended draft of a constitution for the government of the United States, British, and French zones.

This draft probably will be offered to western Germany's "constitutional assembly" when it meets in Bonn September 1 to work out the shape of the new government, which is violently opposed by the Russians.

The representation of Berlin in the future parliament may be restricted only to the United States, British and French sectors. It depends on whether the three western sectors go ahead with city elections in October, which the Russians oppose, the informants said.

The door to Russian zone participation in the Frankfurt parliament will be left open permanently. This will be accomplished by calling the constitution "provisional" and by avoiding the terms "west German" in official texts and in the names of central authorities.

If the recommendations are accepted by the assembly, west Germany's future administration will be called the "Bund Deutscher Laender" (Federation of German States).

Its structure will be much like that of the United States—a central federal authority known as the "Bundesregierung" (federal government) with the individual states preserving much local authority.

The commission suggested that Germany's constitution should contain a paragraph banning preparations for war by any of the states of the federal government.

Harlan F. Stone Memorial Plaque Is Dedicated

Chesterfield, N. H., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed today praised the court's late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone as a liberal whose "strong opinions on civil rights" set a pattern for the protection of personal liberties.

Justice Reed spoke at the dedication of a memorial plaque here at the birthplace of Justice Stone. A commemorative stamp honoring Justice Stone went on sale at the town postoffice simultaneously with the dedication.

Justice Reed spoke of Justice Stone's position as the one dissenter in the famous Flag salute case when the other justices held that school pupils must salute the Flag as a matter of routine discipline, regardless of their religious beliefs. Later the court reversed its positions and adopted Stone's interpretation.

Two other Supreme Court Justices—Felix Frankfurter and Harold H. Burton—also came to this town of 600 for the dedication.

was one of scores employed as intelligence agents.

United States Army headquarters at Heidelberg reported the German, Erich Lutz, said he went to the border "to get news from a Thuringian border police officer."

Blockade of western publications in the Soviet sector of Berlin will become effective September 1 under an order issued by Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Russian commandant. Only Communist-sponsored organizations may obtain distributors' licenses.

An authoritative source said the American Military Government—and possibly also the British—would ban eastern publications in the west unless the Soviet restores free circulation.

The attack on the city government also was made by Kotikov. He alleged the government's "backing" of western currency had created economic chaos.

"Kotikov is just increasing the tension of the political tug of war between East and West," commented an American spokesman. "The attack undoubtedly is intended to strengthen the position of the Communist Socialist Unity Party. It also may be part of a build-up for eventual withdrawal of Russian recognition from the government."

U. S. Seizes 4 Bombers Feared Palestine Bound

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—United States Customs officials today seized four A-20 attack bombers, which they said were bound for the Israeli forces in the Palestine war. No arrests were made.

Chester A. Emerick, supervising customs agent, said the planes' owners were the same persons who exported three B-17 bombers to Palestine by way of the Azores and Czechslovakia last June.

Marshall Says Greek Army Much Nearer Victory Now

Secretary Marshall expressed confidence yesterday that the Greek army was much nearer victory over the guerillas than it was a year ago.

He cautioned, however, that total extinction of the guerilla forces would be difficult in view of the nature of the fighting and the wildness of the mountain country where operations were going on.

The Secretary had personal experience of fighting guerillas in the Filipino insurrection of 1902, and at his press conference yesterday talked freely about the Greek campaign.

He said the Greek army apparently showed high morale and great tenacity in the campaign just ended in the Mount Grammos region. The Grammos area, he said, was country that lent itself admirably to guerilla operations.

He estimated that several thousand guerillas were captured and numbers of others escaped across the Albanian frontier. He thought the success of the Grammos campaign would have a deterrent effect on the guerilla survivors, and hoped it would reduce future guerilla operations to negligible proportions.

However, he said it would be hard to get a decisive result, such as total annihilation, of such scattered forces as remain.

The Secretary added that interest in the military campaign should not be allowed to divert American attention from what he called the great improvement that has taken place in Greek economic conditions, partly as a result of the work of the American mission.

Asked whether he regarded the Greek government as democratic, he described it as a coalition government which has many difficulties and much room for improvement. He said propaganda had been directed at the Greek government in what he called rather subversive fashion.

eration vittles," supplying Russian-blockaded Berlin.

The group also will be used to maintain the three B-29 groups now temporarily based in England. The B-29 units carry their own maintenance personnel and are self-sufficient except for major maintenance and extensive supply functions.

The air depot and MATS units will travel by water. They are due in England about mid-September.

Lieut. Col. Walter W. Ott of Osyka, Miss., is commanding officer of the depot group.

Maj. Gen. Leon Johnson commands the three groups of B-29 bombers located at Marham, Scampton, Waddington and Lakenheath, England.

Burtonwood in Lancashire was a large United States maintenance base during World War II. Most of the MATS units will be based there. Some will be located in other parts of the United Kingdom. The Air Force did not specify where.

The British Air Ministry said in London Tuesday night that the USAF was opening a large central repair and maintenance base in England. It said this was made necessary by "the greatly increased air activities of the U. S. Air Force in Europe."

The baby was born by Caesarian section. The woman was taken to the hospital last night, unable to swallow, talk or even breathe unaided.

flower, will hold its elections at 9:30 a. m. today.

Barefoot, a member of the USWV for about 30 years, has been serving as senior vice commander in chief. Retiring commander in chief is H. M. Havner of Des Moines, Iowa.

Served in Marines

Barefoot, a member of the Marine Corps in the Spanish-American War, served aboard the warships USS Brooklyn, Panther and Dixie, and on land in Puerto Rico and in the Panamanian campaign.

Affiliated groups also held nomination or election of officers.

Lawrence B. Stretz of Brooklyn, N. Y., was elected national president of the Sons of Spanish-American War Veterans at a meeting last night in the Hotel Willard.

Stretz, a 39-year-old statistician, served three years in the European and Mediterranean theaters as a member of the Army Air Forces in World War II and received a direct commission as second lieutenant while overseas. He has been a member of the Sons since 1932.

Mrs. Mary Ross McKay of Cleveland, Ohio, was the only candidate nominated for president of the national auxiliary, which is meeting at the Hotel Statler. The auxiliary will convene again at 8:30 a. m. today.

Mrs. Emily Roewe of St. Louis, Mo., was elected national fort captain of the Daughters of '98, meeting at the Hotel Statler. The Daughters will hold a joint installation with the Sons at 9:30 a. m. today.

The USWV also nominated Henry H. Hunt of Hartford, Conn., for senior vice commander in chief. Four nominations were made for the post of junior vice commander in chief: Harry E. Williams of Portland, Oreg.; Dan S. Hewitt, San Francisco; Harry Bierma, Chicago, and Myon E. Bristow, Richmond, Va.

Other Nominations

Among other nominations for National Auxiliary offices were: Grace M. Alexander of Phoenix, Ariz., national senior vice president; Lillian E. Baumann, Michigan City, Ind., junior vice president, and Ruby H. Lyons, Hot Springs, Ark., chaplain. Mrs. Edna R. Summerfield of Washington was nominated for historian.

Other officers elected by the Sons were: Joseph T. Conow, Vallejo, Calif., national senior vice president; Arnold Lapan, Saugus, Mass., national junior vice president; Daniel E. Bowen, Washington, D. C., national chaplain; Charles A. Holt, Reading, Pa., national sergeant at arms. Elected trustees were: Howard Parker, Camden, N. J., John Crawford, Chicago, and Harold Strahan, Everett, Mass. Norman L. Larson of Milwaukee was reappointed secretary, and William C. Stieger of New York City, treasurer.

Among other newly elected or appointed officers of the Daughters of '98 were Ruth Buckridge of New York City, first lieutenant; Florence Murphy, Cleveland, second lieutenant; Pauline Eckbold, Sewall, N. J., chaplin; Dorothy Bowen, Arlington, Va., historian. Marjorie Rose of Washington was named head of child welfare work.

Boy, 3, Struck By Car, Skull Is Fractured

A 3-year-old boy sustained a fractured skull and multiple abrasions yesterday when he ran into the path of a car as he crossed the street in front of his home.

The boy, who was reported in critical condition last night at Freedmen's Hospital, is Reginald Bryant of 345 Oakdale pl. nw.

Police listed the operator of the car as Lawrence M. Bond, 32, of 3500 North Stafford st., Arlington, a salesman for the Hecht Co. The accident occurred at 1:35 p. m.

A collision between a taxi and an auto at 7 a. m. yesterday at 5th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., resulted in a possible fracture of the skull to Cornell Muldrow, 43, of 1021 3d st. se. Muldrow, a passenger in a car driven by Edward C. Bowen, 27, 1431 Duncan st. ne., was in fair condition last night at Casualty Hospital.

Police charged Egan Davis, 23, 627 14th st. se., operator of the cab, with failure to yield the right of way.

In a three-way accident, a Health Department ambulance ran into the rear of a standing truck at 1st and H sts. nw., causing the truck to ram an auto in front of it. No one was injured.

The car, driven by Ed Owens, 44, 1724 Florida ave. nw., had stopped just beyond the 1st and H sts. intersection to permit a pedestrian to cross, police said, causing the truck behind it, operated by Lawrence Griffin, 21, 413 5th st. ne., to stop.

The Health Department ambulance, empty save for Driver George Theodore Wade, 23, 1700 15th st. nw., rammed the rear of the truck, sending it forward into Owens' car. Wade blamed brake failure for the accident, police said.

8 N. Y. Congressmen Renominated in Light Primary Voting

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Eight New York State Congressmen, challenged for renomination, won easy victories on the basis of unofficials returns from yesterday's light primary balloting.

Representatives Donald O'Toole, Joseph Pfeifer and James J. Heffernan, Brooklyn Democrats who voted for the Taft-Hartley law, won handily despite heated contests.

Katherine St. George, Tuxedo Park socialite and New York's only woman Representative, retained the GOP designation in a three-cornered race in the Twenty-ninth District. Four other incumbents winning upstate Republican primary contests were Representatives Clarence E. Kilburn, Malone; Daniel A. Reed, Dunkirk; W. Sterling Cole, Bath, and John C. Butler, Buffalo.

American Labor Party-supported candidates suffered severe setbacks in their bids for major party indorsement.

A threatened write-in campaign to win both Democratic and Republican indorsements for Representative Vito Marcantonio in New York's Eighteenth District failed. Marcantonio, who had the Democratic nomination in 1946 and both Republican and Democratic nominations in 1944, received only 10 Republican write-ins and 126 Democratic. He was unopposed for the ALP nomination.

Republican-backed Philip Hodes beat ALP candidate Murray Rosof for the GOP nomination in the Ninth Congressional District, and ALP-backed Francis C. Nulty lost to Richard W. McSpedon, Yonkers, in the Twenty-seventh District.

In one of the closest races, William C. Murphy, Democratic designee, appeared to have defeated Andrew Peterson, CIO United Electrical local president in Schenectady, for the congressional nomination in the Thirty-first District. Representative Bernard W. Kearney, Republican incumbent, was unopposed.

Still another ALP candidate, George Provost, went down to defeat in Western New York's Forty-third Congressional District, where he had sought the Democratic nomination against Anthony F. Tauriello.

Delaware Democrats Reject Truman Rights

Dover, Del., Aug. 25 (AP).—Delaware Democrats slated their party's candidates yesterday for the November general election and the convention voted down a proposal to include President Truman's civil rights program in the State platform.

The Delaware plank advocates instead "genuine equality of opportunity for all people, regardless of race, creed or color" and urges "immediate steps be taken to place education in both white and colored schools on an equal footing."

Candidates named were: J. Allen Frear, jr., Dover, for United States Senator; Lieut. Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Laurel, for Governor; Alexis I. Dupont Bayard, Wilmington, for lieutenant governor; James W. W. Baker, Georgetown, for State auditor, and Willard D. Boyce, Dover, for State treasurer.

Burmese Rebels 'In Full Flight'

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 25 (AP).—The government today said Communist-led rebel forces were in full flight from the Tharrawaddy district in midwestern Burma, pursued by loyal troops who had split the rebels into two groups.

Today's communique detailed government successes on all fronts, including the killing of six well-known Communist leaders and capture of another.

Experienced political informants here have expressed concern for the 7-month-old Burmese Republic unless the revolt is crushed.

AFL Union Group Forms for Truman

Chicago, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—An independent group split away from American Federation of Labor policy today to indorse President Truman for another term in the White House.

AFL President William Green announced that the big labor organization itself, adhering to tradition, would not support a presidential candidate.

But an independent faction, headed by George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, organized for Truman in a meeting of 40 AFL union heads.

This was apart from a meeting of the AFL Political Education League, composed of the Executive Council and heads of 13 powerful unions, which set the nonpartisan policy. The league said it would sidestep the presidential race and spend money only on Congressional races in its pledge to defeat all supporters of the Taft-Hartley law.

Harrison said he would contact the heads of the AFL's 105 unions in an attempt to induce them to join the Truman movement.

Harrison said the independents would raise their own funds and spend them on the presidential election. He said it has not been decided whether to ask CIO unions to join.

Green declined to say whether he would join the independent movement, but repeated a statement that he would not support Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Green said guardedly that if labor succeeds in getting out the vote, "a majority of working people will vote for Truman."

'Oh, Look Who's Here . . .!'

THE FORMAL AND INFORMAL WAY—Mrs. Robert L. Eichelberger spots an old friend and forgets formality as she arrives with the general in San Francisco. Pay Accords Reached by Ship Unions

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Wage settlements for about 25,000 AFL and CIO seamen on the East, West, Gulf coasts were announced today.

One of the agreements affected CIO Marine Engineers who had threatened a strike after a Federal injunction expires September 2.

The settlements covered:

1. The CIO Marine Engineers Beneficial Association and 44 Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipping concerns. Their agreement, according to Federal Mediator Harry Winning, gives a 6 per cent monthly wage boost to about 12,000 engineers.

2. About 10,000 CIO National Maritime Union seamen working for 30 major oil transportation companies. M. Hedley Stone, NMU treasurer, said the settlement brought tankers' wages up to standards of AFL and CIO seamen on dry-cargo ships. The dry-cargo seamen recently obtained boosts of $25 a month for boatswains and $12.50 for other ratings.

Before the settlements, NMU wages ranged from $177 to $300 monthly. Able seamen were listed for $204.90 a month.

ITU Faces Contempt Action

The National Labor Relations Board's prosecuting office demanded yesterday that the International Typographical Union be adjudged in contempt of court.

The petition, if granted by the Federal Court at Indianapolis, might bring a heavy fine on the union's treasury.

Robert N. Denham, the board's general counsel, acting through Regional Director Jack G. Evans of Cincinnati, charged that the ITU has violated the injunction issued by Judge Luther M. Swygert last March 27, by continuing to insist on what amounted to closed shop conditions in negotiations with newspaper employers.

The step was the toughest crackdown by Denham since the Taft-Hartley Act became effective a year ago. The act outlaws the closed shop, but the 96-year-old printers' union has attempted to hold on to its practice of admitting only union members to their places of work.

The injunction was issued in a case brought by the American Newspaper Publishers Association for more than 800 newspapers. Similar action was taken by the Printing Industry of America, for the Nation's commercial print shops.

Evans' petition charged that the union's four top officers headed by President Woodruff Randolph have "failed and refused to comply with and have disobeyed and disregarded" parts of the injunction.

Gerhard P. Vanarkel, one of the attorneys for the ITU, said that Trial Examiner Arthur Leff had found "the union's conduct since the injunction to be lawful." Leff submitted his report to the NLRB last week.

"Therefor, having lost before the trial examiner, Denham now tries to upset that in court," Vanarkel said.

7-Day Walkout Ends at Los Alamos

Los Alamos, N. Mex., Aug. 25 (AP).—A seven-day walkout ended with return of construction and maintenance workers to jobs at the Los Alamos Atomic Weapons Center today.

Contractors estimated that more than 80 per cent of the 3500 idled workmen came back this morning. They said some of the others had left this vicinity, but are expected to return later. A settlement of the labor dispute was approved late yesterday.

500 Phone Equipment Workers Quit in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Some 500 CIO equipment installers in the long lines department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. quit work here today in protest against Western Electric negotiations in Chicago.

William Barry, president of Local 69 of the Association of Communication Equipment Workers, said he expects the walkout to spread tomorrow to about 8000 more telephone workers.

Detroit, Aug. 25 (AP).—More than 20,000 auto workers were idled directly or indirectly by "heat strikes" today as the temperature hit 95 degrees.

Some 9500 employes of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. left their jobs.

4 Killed as Planes Crash in Midair

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—Two small airplanes crashed to the ground after colliding near here today and their four occupants were killed.

One was identified as Mrs. Helen Schmitt McGilvery, sandy-haired, attractive former Wasp pilot who had been manager of the Annapolis airport which opened about two years ago.

With her in the plane that crashed in a pine growth four miles from Annapolis and burned was George Calvin Barnett, 24-year-old Navy enlisted man who was learning to fly.

Officers at the naval air activity in Annapolis said he was the son of Mrs. Lela L. Barnett of Meade, Kans., had served in the Navy during the war and had reenlisted this year as an aviation metalsmith, third class.

The other plane hit a marsh near Harness Creek. The occupants were identified by John W. Tyler, manager of the Lee Airport at Annapolis as Philip Mihaltian, 33, the pilot, of Essex, Md., and Charles Hydock, about 30, a Navy man stationed at Annapolis.

The bodies were removed from the totally wrecked craft by Anne Arundel County policemen and taken to Annapolis funeral homes. Witnesses said the planes were flying at between 500 and 1000 feet altitude when they collided.

Mrs. Coleman duPont, who lives near Harness Creek, said she heard a "not too loud noise" and saw one plane nosedive into the woods. The other, its wing off, fell about a half-mile away, she said.

Friends of Mrs. McGilvery said she was about 32 and was a former resident of Mineola, Long Island, N. Y. She had been a flier for many years and had ferried planes for the Army while a member of the Air Force Auxiliary during the war. Her father, B. Schmitt, a New York accountant, was visiting her in Annapolis and on a tour of the town as she met her death. Her mother was on her way to Annapolis.

CAA officials said investigators from New York and Washington would investigate the wreckage. One CAA man already on the scene said Mrs. McGilvery's craft apparently burst into flames immediately on impact with the other plane.

9 Victims in Crash of Bolling Plane Named

CLIPPED WING—Sergt. F/C Robert Brakebill of Knoxville, Tenn., looks over the clipped wing of a B-25 bomber at Stewart Field, N. Y., after the Washington-bound plane had collided in the air over Newton, N. J., with a C-117 transport. The latter plane, which had taken off from Bolling Field, D. C., crashed and killed its nine occupants. Except for the wing, the B-25 was undamaged.

Capt. Beety

Capt. Fitts

Names of nine men killed Tuesday in the crash of a C-117 transport from Bolling Field near Newton, N. J., were disclosed yesterday by the Air Force.

The Air Force previously had announced the dead crewmen of the plane as:

Capt. William D. Beety, jr., 30, the pilot, of 220 Wayne pl. se.

Capt. John B. Fitts, jr., 26, the copilot, of Linkhorn Park, Virginia Beach, Va.

Tech. Sergt. John E. Stringer, 31, crew chief, of 1400 18th pl. se.

The crew members were all from Bolling, as were four of the six passengers. The four from Bolling who died in the crash were:

Sergt. Forrest G. Grate, 20, of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Pfc. Fred R. Anderson, 18, of Duluth, Minn.

Pfc. James E. Ford, 24, of De Valls Bluff, Ark.

Pfc. Bernard E. Mahoney, 18, of Binghamton, N. Y.

The C-117 had picked up Staff Sergt. Albert M. Douglas, 25, of Darby, Pa., and Corpl. Donald L. Raum, 21, of Lancaster, Pa., at Middletown, Pa. They also died in the crash.

The C-117 was en route to a Protestant laymen's retreat at West Reading, Conn., when it collided in mid-air with a B-25 bound from Stewart Field, N. Y., to Bolling Field.

The B-25, its wing tip damaged, managed to land safely at Stewart Field.

The four enlisted men passengers from Bolling Field who died in the crash were not assistant chaplains as first reported by an Air Force officer, but were rank-and-file soldiers.

16 in Crew Die In Honolulu B-29 Crash

Honolulu, T. H., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Sixteen crew members were killed last night when an Okinawa-bound B-29 Superfortress crashed in flames near Hickam Field after losing an engine in flight. Four men survived.

Part of a mass flight from Spokane, Wash., to Okinawa, the plane took off from Barber's Point Naval Air Station, Oahu, lost an engine and attempted an emergency landing at Honolulu Airport.

It fell short, hit a taxi-strip adjoining Hickman Field and skidded 600 feet, striking an unoccupied C-47 parked on the strip.

Tamm Ouster Urged by Bar

directs the association's secretary to request that the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee (which failed to act on the President's original appointment of Tamm in February), urge United States Attorney Fay to take the recommended action.

Meanwhile, the Comptroller General is expected to announce today his ruling as to whether Tamm, former assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, should be paid for sitting on the District Court bench. The ruling was requested by the administrative office of the Federal Courts, which pays Tamm's $15,000 yearly salary.

The report adopted by the bar association directors was written by John H. Burnett and Arthur J. Hilland, members of a committee appointed by Lowry N. Coe, association president, "to investigate the questions of law posed by the 'recess appointment'" of Tamm. A third committe member, John C. Gall, submitted a separate report which concurred in the recommendations.

Nominated February 3

Tamm was nominated by the President on February 3 during the second session of the Eightieth Congress. The Senate failed to act on the nomination. Congress adjourned on June 20 and two days later the President granted Tamm a recess appointment. After convening a special session of Congress on July 26, the President again presented Tamm's name for Senate confirmation. Again Congress adjourned without Senate action on the nomination.

Attorney General Clark on August 11 ruled that Tamm was legally appointed and that his tenure continues "until the end of the first session of the Eighty-first Congress" (which would probably be in June or July of 1949).

The report of the bar association committee hinged on its interpretation of Article 2, section 2, clause 3 of the Constitution, which states:

"The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session."

The committee contends that when Tamm was given a recess appointment June 22, Congress was not in recess, and so the appointment was "utterly void." When Congress adjourned June 20, the report argues, it adjourned by House Concurrent Resolution 218 until December 31, or until called back by congressional leaders.

This, the report continues, was not an adjournment sine die, but "an adjournment during a session of Congress."

Says President Had No Power

The report further maintained that "the President had neither vested nor implied power to declare (or even regard) that adjournment as a recess."

"If he did have such a power over Congress," the report says, "it would necessarily follow that he would have the right to dissolve that Congress. That is ridiculous."

Even if Tamm's recess appointment were legal, his tenure has expired, the report contends, pointing out that he was sworn in on June 28 under a commission providing that his appointment should extend until the end of the next session of the Senate and no longer.

The special session called by President Truman was a "session" within the meaning of Tamm's recess appointment, the report says. Therefore, it concludes, Tamm's appointment expired with the special session.

The proceeding recommended to oust Tamm was a quo warranto action. This is an action to determine the legality of a claim to hold office and oust the officeholder if his claim proves unfounded. The report states only the Attorney General or United States Attorney can institute such an action.

Qualifications Not Discussed

The report did not discuss the qualifications of Tamm for the associate judgeship, but pointedly remarked that "time is not of the essence in either the naming or confirmation of a Federal judge."

"Undue haste therein may engender grave misgivings as to the qualifications of the appointee and tend to cause the citizenry to suspect that there is more than meets the eye in such a picture."

Leaders of the District and American Bar Associations protested Tamm's appointment at hearings held by the Senate Judiciary Committee last spring. They said he was not a lawyer, but rather an investigator and administrator and asserted he had never appeared as a lawyer in court.

A District Bar Association poll of membership disclosed 928 local attorneys opposed to the nomination, 173 in favor and 99 without an opinion.

Aged Man Slays Wife, Shoots Self At Family Grave

St. George, S. C., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—An aged couple who had grown old together held a rendezvous Tuesday at the graves of their two children.

The couple carried a picnic lunch to the bleak, old cemetery here and spent most of the afternoon arranging flowers on the graves of their long-dead children.

They left the scraps of their lunch and got into the car they had driven from Charleston.

Then L. H. Wiggins leveled a revolver at his 67-year-old wife and pulled the trigger five times. The sixth bullet he used on himself.

Hospital officials said Wiggins had a 50-50 chance to live with a bullet in his left lung.

Girls Spend 5 Days Locked in With Corpse

Paris, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Two young girls were under treatment in a hospital today after spending five days locked in a room with a dead man.

The girls, Josiane, 7, and Maude, 4, were left in the care of apartment house porter Jacques Verpi, an invalid. Verpi died and the children found themselves locked in his one-room apartment.

Smith Confers On Closing Of Consulate

Moscow, Aug. 25 (AP).—United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith conferred with his chief advisers in the embassy today on the closing of the American consulate in Vladivostok.

Earlier today Smith received a communication from the United States State Department on the subject of the Vladivostok consulate and the projected consulate in Leningrad.

It is believed here that the State Department soon will answer the sharp Soviet note, made public in Moscow early today, answering an American demand that Jacob Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in New York, be withdrawn for his part in the Kasenkina-Samarin case.

The Soviet reply announced its decision to close down its consulates in New York and San Francisco and demanded that the State Department close the United States consulate in Vladivostok. It added that the Soviet government was withdrawing its permission for establishment of a United States consulate in Leningrad.

The task of closing the Siberian post, the embassy said, fell to Scott Lyon of Columbus, Ohio, who has been on the job only two days. Lyon relieved Consul Oscar Holder of Elmira, N. Y., now en route to Moscow with his wife.

There will be no problems in dropping its plans for a Leningrad consulate, the embassy said. A building only recently was selected, but rental arrangements had not been concluded.

Lyon, a recently inducted foreign service officer, is a newlywed and his wife is with him. The other two Americans are the vice consuls, William Laird Warwick and James C. Risk.

Soviet Knew Of Closings

Moscow, where three career officers take turns in handling routine consular business.

The Secretary called the Soviet order regrettable but unimportant, and not entirely unexpected by the department. He said the American consul in Vladivostok was so circumscribed in his work that not very much was accomplished, and the closing of the consulate would be no great loss.

In recent months Consul Scott Lyon, an experienced career officer, has had less and less to do in the Vladivostok consulate, partly due to Soviet restrictions, partly to the falling off of Soviet-American trade in the Pacific. Only one American ship a month has put into Vladivostok harbor.

Almost Like Prisoners

Lyon and his two assistants, Vice Consul Joseph C. Risk and Clerk William L. Warwick, have lived comfortably in the consulate building, perched on a steep hill overlooking Amur Bay, but have been hedged about by more and more Soviet restrictions on their freedom of movement. They have been free to walk down the dirt-and-cobbled street into the town, and they have been allowed to use their cars within a 15-mile radius of the city, but otherwise they have been virtual prisoners.

One part of their job, which now will have to be done in some other way, is to handle supplies and communications for the American consulate at Dairen, the Russian-occupied port on the coast of China. With the closing of the American consulate at Vladivstok, China becomes the only country to continue a consular establishment in the Siberian port city.

In contrast to the puny American establishment at Vladivostok, the Russian consulate in New York had seven officers and 32 employes, and in San Francisco seven officers and 12 employes. Secretary Marshall declined to say yesterday whether any of these would be free to transfer to some other Soviet organization such as Amtorg or the purchasing mission in this country.

The Secretary said his officials were having a hard time in deciphering and translating the photostats attached to the latest Soviet note, purported to be letters from Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina before she jumped from the New York consulate window. He would not say whether the new Soviet note would be answered, or how.

Shortly after the Secretary met the press, President Truman formally revoked Consul-General Lomakin's credentials, as foreshadowed in the American note of last Friday. The President signed the revocation at Yorktown, Va., aboard his yacht, the Williamsburg.

now concentrate on the purge of "honest Communists," he charged in a letter to the Communist newspaper Scanteia.

"Our leaders have lost contact with the masses of the party," Popivoda said. "They have become conceited and inaccessible . . . Inside the party, Dictator Rankovic (Alexander Rankovic, minister of interior) and his staff have become unbearable . . ."

Hinting of revolution, Popivoda said Rankovic would be unable to stop "honest" Yugoslav Communists who are fighting the "treacherous line" adopted by Tito.

Anti-Tito forces, collecting here day-by-day, are rallying around Radonja Golubovitch, former Yugoslav Ambassador to Bucharest, who resigned with praise for the Cominform.

The "revolt" against Tito first came into the open with the disclosure that Col. Gen. Arso Jovanovic had been shot while attempting to flee into Romania August 22.

Mrs. Kasenkina Declares She Jumped to Escape

soon as they could. Lomakin and his family have reservations to sail Saturday aboard the liner Stockholm for Goteborg and thence to Russia.

At the hospital, Mrs. Kasenkina, whose efforts to avoid returning to Russia, brought about the whole affair, talked with ease and an obvious sense of security.

Teacher Smiles Frequently

The middle-aged teacher talked to three reporters who had been chosen by lot to represent the press, through an interpreter. She smiled frequently. She had primped for them—manicured her own nails, put on lipstick, and tied her hair back with two yellow ribbons.

She turned fitfully as she answered the questions, breathing heavily. Perspiration stood out on her forehead. It was a very hot day. But she smiled frequently and thanked reporters.

She explained that she decided to leave her native land after the Soviets kidnaped her husband and her son was killed in the war.

She said she was brought to this country to teach chemistry to the children of Soviet diplomats here, because the Russians thought her knowledge would be useful.

"But actually they made a great mistake in bringing me here from Russia," she said.

Tells of Decision

She said she decided to jump from the consulate after Lomakin brought her back from Reed farm, an anti-Russian haven in up-state New York.

"When they returned me to the consulate I knew, since they did not permit me to leave, that I would not be able to escape in Moscow either," she said. "Therefore I jumped out of the window to escape. I did not want to kill myself. I wanted to escape."

Reporters asked her: "When did you decide not to return to Russia, why did you so desire and what did you do after you decided?"

She replied:

"When I was still in Russia I felt that if I got to America I would be able not to return to Russia. The reason I wanted to escape was that in 1937 they took away my husband, and I have no idea where he has gone. He disappeared."

"I left Slovinsk in the Ukraine to visit my son in Moscow. He was a first-year student at the university. When the war broke out he was not a military man. He did not belong to any komsonol (Communist youth movement) or any political party. Therefore the Soviets looked on him as an enemy of the state.

"They took him into a storm troopers division without any training whatsoever. In Leningrad, January 12, 1942, he was killed.

"They have destroyed my entire life since I spent all my life on my son and my husband. Neither of the two were political people. My son was a student, my husband a teacher as was I."

The next question was:

"What did Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin discuss with you at the consulate the day you returned from Reed farm (an anti-Communist Russian haven operated by the Tolstoy Foundation, under Countess Alexandra Tolstoy).

Hoped for Mercy

She replied:

"I had written a letter to the consul (Consul General Jacob Lomakin) which first brought him (Panyushkin) into the picture. I thought these people had some semblance of human mercy and would converse with me. What he said was he would not speak to me but I would go downstairs and tell reporters this and this."

She referred to a press conference Lomakin called on August 7, to tell how he had "rescued" her from "White Russian kidnapers."

Mrs. Kasenkina said today that Panyushkin and Lomakin told her exactly what she was to say to reporters at the press conference.

She said they told her she would become a heroine by telling the story they told her to tell.

Stalin Policies Approved

Mrs. Kasenkina also told of the letter she wrote to Lomakin while she was at Reed farm—the contents of which Lomakin would never divulge to reporters. She said she had written Lomakin that after two years in America, she was becoming more and more dissatisfied with the Soviet because she was called an "enemy of the state" and was persecuted in many little ways. She told him that she had wanted to move away from the consulate, and because consul officials had not allowed her to do as she wanted, she had decided to do as she wished anyway. Whereupon, she said, Lomakin went to the farm and arrested her.

She closed her interview by saying:

"I do not agree with the policies of Josef Stalin. I love my people and my country, but I cannot agree with the policies of the Soviet."

Dr. Murray Safe at Edmonton; Vows His Flying Days Are Over

Grimy and wan from 17 days in the Canadian wilds, Dr. V. B. Murray of the United States Public Health Service here returned to Edmonton, Alberta, last night, vowing his flying days are over.

The Washington doctor-pilot was reported by the Associated Press as having satisfied RCAF officials that his crash in the wilds of northern Alberta was an accident and that no desire to escape from civilization prompted his crack-up at lonely Chip Lake, 80 miles southwest of his announced destination, Grande Prairie, Alberta. But two weeks of wandering through the bush has cured his zest for air travel.

The twin-engined Cessna aircraft that Dr. Murray overturned in the bush when he ran out of fuel, miles off his course, August 7, now is the property of J. McCullough, the trapper who found him at Nose Creek, a few miles from the scene of the crash, and took him back to safety by packhorse.

The doctor explained he planned to ferry the plane to Fairbanks, Alaska, and sell it there. He blamed poor eyesight for the 10-degree deviation of his course that landed him in the northern Alberta wilderness.

He was at a loss to explain the rumors of an abandoned airfield 100 miles from the nearest road, or trail where he was said to be seeking a back-to-nature holiday.

Murray's wife here said last night she was glad her husband gave his $3000 plane away. At their home at 4309 Van Ness st. nw., she declared, "it sounds like my husband and I'd certainly be happy if he did that. I think we've had enough flying in our family."

French Put Off Canton Poll Test De Gaulle Sought

Paris, Aug. 25 (NYHT).—The French National Assembly voted today for an indefinite postponement of the cantonal elections, a test of strength that Gen. Charles de Gaulle was very anxious to have in October.

The parliamentary decision was carried, 245 to 193, with the Communists abstaining.

It was notable that the parties with the largest representation in the present Assembly—the Communists, Socialists and Popular Republicans—were pleased not to face a campaign on a local election front this fall.

Last year's municipal contests showed that De Gaulle's Rally of the French People produced 40 per cent of the popular vote. The Gaullist reaction was to intensify demands for dissolution of Parliament or for new national elections. None of the other parties this year was eager to place another weapon of this type in the general's hands.

AFL Head Hits Reds On 6-Day Week Plan

Current news from Prague is proof to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that no labor organization can be free under communism.

Dispatches from Prague Monday told how the Red-directed Czechoslovakian General Confederation of Labor is propagandizing for the six-day instead of the five-day week.

The propaganda makes the point that the five-day week represents personal interests, whereas the six-day week represents national needs.

Commenting yesterday in Chicago on the Czech proposal, Green said:

"If any proof were needed that communism and reactionism are synonymous, it was provided today in dispatches that the Communist-controlled Confederation of Labor in Prague is conducting a propaganda campaign to convince the workers of that country they should surrender the five-day week and accept six days.

"This comes as a shock to American workers. It shows no labor organization can be free under communism because it is compelled to subordinate the interests of the workers to those of the Communist Party."

The Czech Confederation's newspaper says, according to The New York Times, that large factories introduced the five-day week in the winter of 1946 because of an electricity shortage "and stressed this would be a transitory matter."

The Czech paper said further:

"All economic arguments speak for a six-day week, which in most workshops has been in force for a generation. If anybody is so foolish as to think that the five-day week is modern progress we have to remind him that in the whole history of the workers' struggle there never has been any talk about a shorter working week, but only shorter hours.

"In the Socialist country, the Soviet Union, they did not introduce the five-day week. Finally, no other people's democratic state is forced to give attention to this issue."

Complaints that the shortage of consumre goods is so great that workers can get little for their money is reported to be a principal reason why the Communists want a longer work-week in Czechoslovakia.

Red Novelist Assails U. S.

Wroclaw, Poland, Aug. 25 (AP).—A blistering attack on the United States by a Soviet novelist opened the World Congress of Intellectuals here today.

Alexander Fadiejev, the novelist, spoke as chief of the Russian delegation. The violence of his attack surprised many conference observers, who commented "we thought this was supposed to be a peace conference."

Fadiejev charged that American "imperialists" are seeking war and trying to establish police states all over the globe. He attacked most American newspapers, films and books as "trash and filth." He said the "contemporary culture of American imperialism is giving off a stench of decay."

John Rogge, former assistant United States Attorney General and member of the American delegation, indicated he will answer the Russian Thursday.

Another speaker was Prof. Olaf Stapledon of London who urged tolerance between nations and said it is wrong for any one side to assume that it has all the truth.

Approximately 500 scientists, writers, artists, religious leaders and economists from 14 countries are attending the conference. About 34 Americans are attending.

Russians Balked at Defining 'Aggression,' Jackson Says

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Justice Robert H. Jackson of the Supreme Court disclosed tonight how Soviet representatives blocked efforts to write an official definition of what is "aggression" by one nation against another.

Jackson

The incident occurred, Jackson said, during a London conference which framed an agreement on how to conduct the International trial of the major Nazi war leaders. Jackson attended the conference and later served as chief American prosecutor at the trial at Nuernberg, Germany.

"Critics of the agreement have pointed to the absence of a definition of 'aggression' as a defect," Jackson stated. "The omission has an interesting history."

"During the conference the Soviet delegation suggested that 'it is quite possible that the accused would like to become the accusers in the course of the trial' and suggested provisions to exclude propaganda. The American delegate ventured the opinion that the best way to exclude such counterattacks would be to narrowly define 'aggression' so as to confine the issue to the actual attack, and suggested consideration of definitions used in nonaggression pacts to which the Soviet Union was already a party. The idea was coldly received. Perhaps the reference to the Soviet nonaggression treaties was not exactly tactful."

The most basic conflict of the conference, the justice stated, arose when the Soviet representative said bluntly: "The fact that the Nazi leaders are criminals has already been established. The task of the tribunal is only to determine the measure of the guilt of each particular person and mete out the necessary punishment—the sentences."

Jackson spoke before the School of Advanced International Studies, at the House of the Association of the Bar.

West Coast Shipping Peace Talks Rumored

San Francisco, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Shipping on the San Francisco waterfront was tied up today as Longshoremen walked off their jobs to attend a stop-work meeting.

The longshoremen quit work at 6 p. m. Tuesday, shortly before Harry Bridges, their chief, met with employers in a secret session. The meeting started rumors that "peace" negotiations were under way, only one week before a scheduled West Coast maritime strike.

Council-Manager

The patient and persistent Washingtonians who are preparing to submit to Congress once more the city's demand for home rule may be interested to know that 40 additional cities have adopted the council-manager plan of government this year. It is this type of home rule that the Auchincloss bill would have provided for the District if that measure had been enacted by the last Congress. We take it for granted that this popular and progressive form of local government will be retained in the new draft of the bill to be submitted next January. The International City Managers' Association reports that the trend toward adoption of city-manager plans by American communities has been especially marked since World War II. No fewer than 799 cities and counties in the United States now entrust the management of their affairs to experts hired by and responsible to elected councils.

Another Heretic

As a sort of footnote to our editorial of last Sunday, in which we sought to show that politics have become the final measure of truth and error in Soviet Russia, and consequently, for devout Communists throughout the world, we call attention to the anti-religious propaganda which has been resumed by the Moscow radio. These broadcasts, reverting to the original Marxist dictum that religion is the opium of the people, assert that religious forces and bourgeois governments are now in open alliance to prolong the life of capitalism.

The extreme difficulty of avoiding heresy under the Communist epistemology is well illustrated by an issue of the USSR Information Bulletin, published by the Soviet Embassy here in October, 1946. The leading article, by G. G. Karpov, was a touching tribute to the clergy and laity of the Russian Orthodox Church. Comrade Karpov, then head of the Council for Church Affairs, wrote:

> The extremely patriotic position taken by the Church from the beginning of the war was highly appreciated by the Soviet Government, which introduced measures that contributed to the organizational strengthening of the church and were directed to building up more normal relations between Church and State . . . Many other religious communities, suppressed and persecuted in Tsarist times, exist and enjoy freedom in the Soviet Union . . .

This is almost as much as to say that the Soviet government itself was deliberately encouraging the Russian church leaders to dose the people with religious opium, a statement that, in view of the current party line, comes pretty close to blasphemy. It looks very much as though the unfortunate Comrade Karpov let himself go out on a limb, and it will be interesting to see just how he will manage to crawl back from it.

Arkansas Example

The University of Arkansas has dealt with an awkward problem in a simple, sensible and essentially decent way. There would be nothing remarkable in this if so many other Southern institutions of higher learning had not stubbed their toes on the same problem, doing grievous injury to their own academic pretensions and coming into open conflict with the "equal protection" clause of the Constitution as it has lately been interpreted by the Supreme Court. Having received a request for admission to its medical school from a qualified Negro applicant, Edith Mae Irby, the University of Arkansas approved her entrance and announced that she would be accorded the same treatment as other students, without segregation or discrimination of any sort.

Now, it should be recognized to the credit of the University of Arkansas that this was not an easy thing to do. It ran counter to local prejudices and to a long-established tradition. At the same time, it was the only practicable course for the university to pursue in the light of the Supreme Court decisions in the Gaines and Sipuel cases. It is certain that the educational opportunities of Arkansas medical students will in no way be impaired by Miss Irby's presence among them. Presumably they are adult and educated persons. As such, they will discover very quickly, if they have not done so already, that the color of Miss Irby's skin is no more a matter of concern to them than the color of her hair. And this will be the most valuable lesson they can draw from their university experience.

Perhaps the ideal place to teach such a lesson is among graduate students. They will pass it along. And once it is generally learned, the South will have solved the problem which is its greatest incubus. The University of Arkansas could find no better way to discharge its responsibilities as an institution of learning than by the leadership it has displayed in letting this lesson be taught.

Chances In Moscow

No doubt the people of this country, who will have to pay the piper if things go wrong in Moscow, are utterly confused about the preliminary negotiations in Moscow. So we will set down the situation as we see it. Are the Russians preparing for war? No. With the caveat that a military state like Russia is always prepared for war, the negative is supported by two facts which we have gleaned out of the hush-hush: first, no new military dispositions have been noted by our observers of the Soviet zone of Germany; secondly, no propaganda has been noted on the Soviet radio to whip up belligerency in connection with the negotiations.

Yet the tug-of-war in Berlin that the diplomats in Moscow are trying to resolve has military overtones. Some of the military don't care whether it has or not, and since war and not peace is their business, they are not to be criticized. Some nonmilitary officials, thinking in terms of what Mr. St. Laurent calls the "blasphemy" of war, feel that the sooner it comes, the better, though a preventive war might pull down the pillars of our civilization. Pundits in the State Department thought there could not be a military situation when Russo-Western relations in Berlin originally came to a crisis. We have an idea that a different view is nowadays entertained. Otherwise they would not have initiated under duress these negotiations about negotiations, or agreed to consider a conference covering all Germany—both of which are concessions from the original Western stand.

The reason that the Berlin situation is essentially military is this. Soviet Russia is suffering from stresses and strains in the home country and the satellites. These are not pulling together—mainly because the strengthening as well as the sovietization of Germany, eastern if not western, has become the foremost plank in Soviet foreign policy, and this has alarmed the satellites. To the satellites the new policy represents a betrayal of the Slav idea, and they fear that the Soviet will soon swallow them up in order to keep them quiet. The fissures in the satellites are obvious, but on excellent authority they are said also to be present within Soviet territory, e. g., the Ukraine. This posture, as Secretary Marshall would say, makes Berlin all-important to Soviet Russia. She cannot yield very much without courting disaster throughout her domains. If one agrees that war is not forced by the strong, but by the desperate, it follows that the danger of war arises from a desperate Russia and an inflexible West.

The Western Allies are not suffering from fissures, but, on the contrary, are putting on increasing health and strength, though the prime requirement of unity is still in the stage of hope. However, the Western position vis-a-vis the Soviet Union is better than could have been dreamed 12 months ago. This relative position, in other words, shows that time is on the Western side, and the counsel of common sense is, in these circumstances, to nurse and use it with what John Foster Dulles calls "faith and works." This can be done by the firm but prudent diplomacy which the Western Allies, if we may hazard a guess, are pursuing, now that they have taken diplomacy out of the hands of the military, who two months ago were against concessions or negotiations and were itching for a showdown. It is the easiest thing in the world to force the Soviet into forcing a war; any numskull, let alone a general, can do that. It requires the greatest possible finesse, and is the mark of statesmanship, to win less than 100 per cent of policy on such a military untenable and such a legally blurred position as Berlin, without being forced into war.

The delicate negotiations are being sustained by the airlift which is being maintained magnificently by the American and British pilots. Yesterday we gave two contradictory accounts of the Anglo-American ability to keep it up. The truth, as we hear it, is somewhere between the two extremes. The airlift can be kept up through the winter, but the danger period happens to be the end of the fall, from late October through November, when weather conditions around Berlin are foul for flying. Presumably the policymakers, who a month ago seemed to look at the situation solely in terms of a poker game, have contemplated this critical period. A commitment has been assumed in Berlin which in one way or another will have to be fulfilled in the absence of the recognition of Western rights that is now being sought in return for Western concessions in Berlin.

Who Does What?

It used to be said that not until the passing of officers now above the rank of colonel or its equivalent could there be any real interservice unification. Unification does, indeed, involve the human element more than it does organization. It is a problem of the spirit more than of the blueprint, and no task has been more arduous for Secretary Forrestal than to develop the spirit in which unification could grow and flourish. He has now abandoned the velvet glove, and in a straight talk to the senior officers of the three services has called upon them to stop their wrangling and mutual jealousies. It seems that since the 70 air group program was legislated, quarrelling has been on the increase. With or without reason, Army and Navy felt that Air had taken an unfair advantage of them, and Congress aided and abetted the division by its particularistic legislation. The Nation as well as Secretary Forrestal has reason to be distressed by a situation which is taking military minds away from that indivisibility of military force which must be the guiding principle of the national defense.

It was on this principle that the chiefs of staff met last weekend at Newport to tackle the seemingly eternal problem of function: Who does what? Specifically, whose is the responsibility for strategic bombing? It was thought that at the conference at Key West early this year, the issue had been settled, but the squabble broke out again as soon as the effort was made to put the agreement on paper. Evidently the armed services are as touchy about terminology as the Russians. As Secretary Forrestal once said, the word "strategic" seems to have created a psychosis in every branch of the military establishment. It is at the root a problem in the responsibility for mass bombing. Last July Secretary Forrestal said this responsibility belonged to Air, and, according to the Chief of Staff reports presented to the senior officers, this was ratified by the Newport conference.

Such an agreement was the necessary prelude to the Forrestal bid for unity among the senior officers of the three services. You cannot expect harmony in the middle, and certainly not at the bottom, if at the top there is squabbling. The tone of relations is provided by the officers that Secretary Forrestal addressed, and we hope the effect will be salutary. The military establishment depends upon unity of public opinion and ought to provide an example of unity—especially in these crucial days of no war and no peace.

Soviet Effrontery

Well, the Kremlin beat us to it again in the matter of the Soviet consulates. Moscow announces that its two consulates in the United States, viz., at New York and San Francisco, will be closed, and requests the United States to do the same in respect of its solitary consulate in the Soviet Union, viz., at Vladivostok. At the same time the Kremlin says that all conversations on the opening of an American consulate at Leningrad are off. In this way Moscow is making a virtue out of necessity and retaining the diplomatic initiative. Our regret is that such action was not taken by the United States in the first place. Ample justification was provided, but the American attitude remained defensive, and so invited the Soviet Union to keep up the pretense that it was that country that had been offended, not the United States.

The key to the whole argument, meanwhile, remains in confinement at Roosevelt Hospital in New York—not as a prisoner, as the latest Soviet note alleges, but as a patient. As she explained yesterday to the newspaper reporters, it was the Consul General that held her prisoner, and her jump out of the window was an attempt to escape his custody. The Soviet insists on "free and unobstructed access to Kasenkina and Samarine." If this were permitted, the rest would be silence, as was the case in San Francisco a few years ago, when Consul General Lomakin participated in the shanghaiing of a Russian seaman who had jumped ship. The remainder of the note repeats the allegations of American misconduct which are now given the lie by Mme. Kasenkina herself. Only one misrepresentation need be mentioned—the insistence that the "invasion" of the consulate general by the New York police is "a manifest violation of the rules accepted in international practice." This is explicitly contrary to the Soviet's own interpretation of international practice. Thereunder, a consulate, unlike an embassy, cannot serve as an asylum to conceal anything or anybody wanted by the local authority, except the consulate's own archives. Hitherto the Russians have been most insistent upon this lack of immunity on the part of foreign consulates in their own jurisdiction.

The loss of the consulate in Vladivostok will be no deprivation to the United States. The consul is isolated from the community, and provides little information to the United States, less aid to the few Americans who are allowed to travel through the Soviet Union, and has lost his usefulness to commerce as a result of the reduction of Soviet-American trade to a trickle. In his present post he is a good man lost to the service of the United States. As for the projected consulate at Leningrad, the negotiations have dragged along for many months, and Moscow has never shown any serious intention of giving the United States reciprocity in consular establishments.

THE MOWED FIELD

Late in the afternoon, a little square
Of clover stands in the field and all the rest
Is drying in the swaths beneath the glare
Of sun . . .
A red fox trembles with his breast
Pushed hard against the shadowy cool ground
In that last stand of clover. On her nest
A ground bird still is motionless. The sound
The mower makes comes nearer, hissing through
The tall sweet grass . . .
What can I say to you,
Red fox, with such a place to rest and hide
Cut down about you now? Be up! Be gone!
A sly red shadow through the countryside!
And what to you, brown bird? The blade comes on
But, with your wings to fly, you must abide
To warm the fledgelings . . . if the nest is spared . . .
Though all the field to all the sky is bared.

"The Phony Tomato"

The August 23 column by the Alsops concerning Professor Lysenko, wax tomatoes and the parlous state of Soviet biology brings to mind an article on the same subject of Karl Sax in the Scientific Monthly for July, 1947. Some of your readers will remember that Lysenko is internationally famous for his putative discovery of "vernalization," a method of changing the growth cycle of plants used by the Russians in extending wheat cultivation into Arctic latitudes. Dr. Sax points out that vernalization was discovered in the United States as early as 1847 and has been found to be of little use. If this is correct, it would seem to follow that Dr. Lysenko is either a plagiarist or ignorant of the literature of his field.

The Sax article catalogues some of the extraordinary fallacies which Lysenko has expounded and which are imposed on all Soviet workers in the field, e.g., that chromosomes have nothing to do with heredity and that there are no mathematical laws applicable to biology. He concludes by questioning the value to the Russians of their large expenditures on scientific research in view of their habit of testing theories by dialectical materialism, rather than experimental evidence, and consequently giving demagogues an opportunity to control and regiment scientific work. "Little Big-Shotism"

May I comment upon a strange malady which afflicts many Government officials, particularly those of the minor variety? This malady might be called little big-shotism. Among the uninitiated it is probably called discourtesy.

Among Government officials the symptoms are first discernible when the victim has attained the status of a little big-shot. When, in other words, he has achieved the distinction of a cubicle of his own, a desk set at the proper "executive angle," a thermos bottle, tray and two glasses, an oversize desk blotter, a set of push buttons and permanently lowered venetian blinds. Sometimes, but not always, these marks of distinction are topped by a bowl of fresh flowers.

Along with these external manifestations come the first subjective symptoms of little big-shotism. Mr. Harrumph becomes inaccessible. He sees people only by appointment and the baffled appointment-seeker is dismayed to find that Mr. Harrumph's calendar is filled up for days ahead.

If Mr. Harrumph possesses a really efficient secretary the appointment-seeker is stopped in his tracks right there. But occasionally he is a persistent devil so he goes home and writes a letter to Mr. Harrumph asking for an appointment. Not realizing that Mr. Harrumph has become afflicted with the prevalent malady, he attributes his silence and inaccessibility to discourtesy, laziness or petty officiousness. Mr. Appointment-Seeker should have waited. Some six months later a reply may come.

In view of the lambasting that executive agencies are presently taking at the hands of assorted congressional committees, one would think that strenuous efforts were being made to combat this malady; that at least some thought was being given to some method of creating an illusion that little big-shots realized that they were public servants. There is no evidence, however, that such is the case.

I offer two simple but extremely effective remedies. In nonofficial fields it has been found that the disease yields quickly to the ax or a swift kick in the seat of the pants.

Mental Health Congress

Good international relationships and good interpersonal relationships boil down to the same requirement: a healthy attitude towards the other fellow.

There are always differences of interests, of problems, and of pressures. An awareness of these differences and the consequent possibility of an understanding of them may be the dynamic force toward the cessation of hostility and aggression.

Mental health officially took the international spotlight with the opening of the International Congress of Mental Health in London. That the scope of the congress is far-reaching can be attested to by the topics reported on by the commissions of 47 nations — world citizenship and good group relations, the individual and society, family problems, mental health in industry, planning for mental health.

An inquiry into the other nations' cultural patterns and ideals and national problems is one aspect of the task the congress set for itself. An appreciation of the varying concepts which the people of one nation have of their own and of other nations, is another.

Here, under the World Health Organization, is a group working together to find the cause of conflicts. That such a significant event has not had more publicity indicates the relative importance of agreement and disagreement in the public eye.

"Vishinsky's Fiat"

Commenting upon your editorial of August 21 entitled "Vishinsky's Fiat", the atheistic, materialistic philosophy which the Soviets espouse, under which they reject God and substitute worship of things material, does not admit of motivations higher than national politics, nor conceive that men can earnestly and sincerely set up and observe an international order based on law which would consider the good of the peoples of the earth as a whole.

The cleavage in thought of the USSR and Christian nations becomes more and more apparent and the writer agrees with you that the "like-minded nations must draw more closely together for their own security and for the strengthening of their way of living." A means to begin this in a concrete manner is at hand through the formation of a union of nations under the constitution of which individual nations, while retaining their individuality, would surrender certain powers to an international government in a manner similar to that in which the individual States of our own Union delegated certain powers to our Federal Government for the good of the member States. Such international government would be composed of three branches, the executive, the legislative, and the judicial; the offices of which would be filled in a manner similar to that in which offices in our own branches of the Federal Government are filled.

This plan, which envisions world union one day, calls for the immediate formation of a union of the adult democracies in the world today, the union to be open to membership by other freedom-loving nations as soon as they have become adults at self-government. Such a union, as a member of the United Nations, can continue to cooperate in international affairs with non-union nations.

Confrontation In Czechoslovakia

In view of the recent discussion of confrontation it is interesting to read a description of this procedure as it was carried out in Czechoslovakia. The following description was give by Justice Robert Jackson at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association and reported in their January 1947 Journal.

"Czechoslovakia was one of the first countries to be occupied by the Nazis and one of the last to be given up. In Czechoslovakia nearly all of the lawyers, intellectuals and leaders have been in exile or in Nazi concentration camps. These liberty-loving people never ceased resistance and never ceased to pay for it with horrible penalties. Lidice is the classic example. This village of some 500 inhabitants was wiped out because it was thought the assassins of Heydrich were being harbored there. Every man was shot, every woman sent to labor camps, the children were scattered among Germans; the town was burned to the ground, and not one foundation stone was left on top of another.

"Karl Hermann Frank, the responsible German official, was taken prisoner by the United States. Since he was a citizen of Czechoslovakia and his crimes were committed in that country, we turned him over to its authorities for trial. Frank denied that he had political responsibility for decisions such as that to destroy Lidice and claimed that such acts were done on order of his superior officer, Daleuge. Daleuge also was our prisoner, and we delivered him to the Czechs to use as a witness to 'confront' the defendant, according to the Czech procedure. This confrontation of witnessess is novel to us; and, accompanied by your president (of the American Bar Association) and members of my staff, I accepted the invitation of the government to attend as an observer. The trial was conducted with dignity and without passion. The confrontation warrants description, for it shows how, by proceedings strange and perhaps unacceptable to us, others manage to achieve just results.

"Daleuge testified that defendant Frank was responsible for the atrocities. The presiding judge asked the defendant if, after hearing Daleuge's testimony, he still denied responsibility. Frank still denied it. The witness then in substance was asked: 'Can you look the defendant in the eye and face-to-face repeat your testimony against him?' Daleuge said he could. The two men were stood face-to-face, perhaps 10 feet apart. Daleuge, in a clear voice and squarely facing and eyeing the defendant, repeated his testimony. As he did so, Frank's eyes dropped, and then his head. There was not a doubt in any observer's mind that this process solved the riddle of who lied. While such a confrontation may seem a little melodramatic to us, and we probably could not require a defendant to participate, it seems a more revealing procedural device than any known to our law . . ."

Queens In Today's World

By Malvina Lindsay

Dutch Pattern

WHEN THE fourth daughter of Princess Juliana of the Netherlands was born, a cocktail group in Washington toasted the new baby, then began a lament that a son had not come after all these years to inherit the Dutch throne. An American woman who had lived in Holland protested indignantly, insisting that the Dutch by now had established a tradition of their royal feminine succession and since it had been so successful should continue it officially. But several older women, including a Britisher, shook their heads. It was natural, they insisted, for any house, royal or otherwise, to want a son.

Yet certainly the maternal strength the Dutch have found in Queen Wilhelmina, who Monday will celebrate her fiftieth anniversary as ruler, is something a king could not have given them. Before she ascended the throne they found for eight years in the Queen Mother Emma, who acted as regent, a figure to love and reverence. And when Princess Juliana takes over as Queen on September 6 following her mother's abdication, they will have a symbol of the capable, strong, solicitous mother on the throne—though in modernized version.

The House of Orange has always stood for impregnability in the minds of the Dutch people. Wilhelmina had that virtue. Always the adjectives, "sturdy," "doughty," "intrepid," have clustered about her. Juliana has it in a less obvious way. And the Dutch say proudly of athletic 10-year-old Beatrix soon to be next in succession to the throne that she has the Orange courage and audacity.

ROYALTY of other countries, particularly the feminine side, has usually found one of its chief duties to be the symbolizing of glamour. Yet the Dutch have not expected that of their royal house. Rather they have been proud of their Queen's plain-as-an-old-shoe qualities in dress and in living. In a country where solid citizens were said to teach their children to "spend only the interest on the interest," the wealthy Dutch Queen's frugality was one of her most admired virtues.

Wilhelmina and Juliana have also been free to a large degree of traditional royal pageantry—certainly to a greater extent than the queens and princesses of England. Nor have they been affected by the increasing canonization of best dressed women.

Queen Wilhelmina is stepping out at the end of an era, yet some of the qualities she represents were never so strongly in demand; as current emphasis on the strong, sacrificial mother attests. While the Dutch did not regard her as a motherly figure in the more sentimental sense that they do Princess Juliana, yet she has been an "I Remember Mama" heroine to a nation. Her subjects have felt that she was a bulwark of dependability, protection and ingenuity, as are all the strong mothers of fiction, stage and life. President Roosevelt felt this when on the occasion of her wartime visit to Washington he toasted her as "the mother of her people."

JULIANA, the vigorous, 39-year-old princess who will shortly become Queen, has greatly pleased her subjects with her motherly qualities — her desire for a large family, her personal attention to her children, and her insistence on their being given a modern, democratic education to prepare them for the problems they will face in a new Europe. Ascending the throne at one of the most dangerous and uncertain times of history, she is said to be acutely aware of what she faces. Those who know her predict that she will become like her mother, a figure of reassurance and strength to her people, though probably in a less regal and austere pattern.

Communist winds blow through the Netherlands as elsewhere in Europe, and there are problems of empire and reconversion, and crises in legislation. But the Dutch generally, like the British, still look to their royal family to symbolize the social values they most admire, and to be visible reassurance of the continuity of their nation.

A current exhibition at The Hague in honor of Queen Wilhelmina's anniversary is called "The Woman." It shows what progress has been made by women in all walks in life during the 50 years the Queen has ruled. In 1917 she effected a revision of the constitution of her country making suffrage open to women. That was before women of the United States had the vote. But probably her greatest contribution to her sex has been to demonstrate through a half century that a queen can be as good—even better—than a king.

Return Of War Dead

On arriving late today in this peaceful, leisurely town, enriched in American literature, I noticed the casket of a soldier, killed in battle three years ago, being borne from the train accompanied by a sergeant of the Fifth Army, to a group of sorrowing relatives at the station. Peace had long since come to these tranquil bluffs, and time had soothed the anguish of this loss of World War II. Yet the old wounds were torn open again, grief renewed by the arrival of one of Missouri's sons.

Whether requested or not, it would have been much better if this fine young soldier had graced forever the field in which he fell.

Today And Tomorrow

The Importance of Berlin

A RECENT DISPATCH from Berlin, written by Mr. Drew Middleton, the correspondent of The New York Times, says that "the relative value of our position in Berlin and of the western German state have become slightly obscured in the heat of debate . . . The importance of the United States' position in Berlin has been exaggerated a bit." The purpose of the dispatch, which may be supposed to reflect what at least some responsible American officials in Germany are now thinking, is to suggest that it would be better to withdraw from Berlin than to agree to a reconsideration of the western German state.

LIPPMANN

This view now has the support of Mr. Sumner Welles, who thinks the best that is possible is to "agree to divide Germany provisionally into two states, with Berlin the capital of eastern Germany and Frankfurt the capital of western Germany under western control." Mr. Welles is prepared to accept the voluntary withdrawal of the Western powers from their exposed position in Berlin," though he hopes that this concession could be compensated by a peace treaty with Austria.

WITH ALL DUE respect, I venture to think that the one thing we should not do is to withdraw from Berlin and to recognize Berlin as the capital of eastern Germany. For I do not think it is possible to exaggerate the importance of Berlin in the future of Germany and of Europe. To withdraw from Berlin, to concede that it may be the capital of a German state under the control of Russia alone, would make our position in western Germany increasingly untenable. The surrender of Berlin would lead, I believe, to the loss of the whole of Germany.

Consider the position if we accepted the idea of what Mr. Welles calls "the provisional partition of Germany." There will be two German capitals—one at Frankfurt and one at Berlin. The one at Frankfurt will in German eyes be the symbol of the partition and of the defeat and of the destruction of Germany as a great power. The one at Berlin, will be the symbol of the German revival and of Germany's restoration as a great power. As between Frankfurt and Berlin the ultimate allegiance of all nationalist Germans must be to Berlin. It is inconceivable that they could accept Frankfurt as anything more than a makeshift and expedient, invented by their conquerors, which they must get away from as soon as possible in order to recover their self-respect.

THE SITUATION will tend steadily to enhance the importance of Berlin as against Frankfurt. What will be the foreign policy of the Frankfurt government? Surely its cardinal objective will be to end the partition and to restore the unity of Germany. In the pursuit of this objective, the Russians with their German government in Berlin will hold far stronger cards than we can hold with our government in Frankfurt.

For the Berlin government can give the Germans unity without war. In their dealings with the Frankfurt government, the Berliners will be able to make proposals for reunion and for the termination of the military occupation which we shall not like. When the offers are made, the Germans in our zones will be deeply tempted. We shall be compelled to veto the proposals. As we veto the proposals of the reunion, we shall become identified with the things that no nationalist Germans, can accept —with partition, with unending military occupation, with the maintenance of a puppet government, and with the dread prospect that Germany would become the theater of a great international civil war.

THE WESTERN German state, whatever its formal and outward authority, would inevitably have underground and secret relations with the Berlin government. General Clay, especially after he had left Berlin, could not conceivably control the underground relations between them.

As a matter of fact the existence of two German governments, each aiming at German reunion, would put a premium upon clandestine negotiation. Every German politician who took office in the Frankfurt government would, if he had any personal ambition or even regard for his own safety, live a double life. On the surface he would conform with the rules of the allied military government. Underground he would be preparing for the day when Germany is reunited and the occupying armies withdraw.

FOR THESE REASONS it seems to me that to stay in Berlin is infinitely more important than to push forward the establishment of a puppet government in a part of Germany. To stay in Berlin is to hold on to the right, which we won in the war, to play a full part in the settlement of Germany. To leave Berlin is to surrender that right, and to commit the future of Germany to the arbitrament of war or to intrigue and secret negotiation between the Germans and the underground. For once we had left Berlin, and had recognized it as a German capital, and given the western Germans a government, our own German state with its capital at Frankfurt would take over the problem, which we had been unable to solve, of negotiating a general settlement with Russia. We should have surrendered Berlin to the Russians and Frankfurt to the Germans, and after that the German peace treaty would become a matter to be worked out secretly by the Germans and the Russians.

State Vs. Federal Control Of Power

PORTLAND, OREGON.—Two hundred miles up the Columbia River from this flourishing city the Army engineers are building a great new power and flood control dam that will cost, when completed, nearly a quarter of a billion dollars. Fittingly, it will be called McNary Dam.

Childs

The late Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Republican, was Minority Leader in the Senate through the New Deal years. On the development of hydroelectric power with Federal money, McNary always voted with the New Deal.

When he was running as vice presidential candidate with Wendell Willkie in 1940 McNary's strong views on public power were the subject of a joke widely circulated in Oregon. It was said that if Willkie wanted to debate the power issue, taking the private utility side, he could find an able and informed opponent in his running mate.

THE VAST Columbia River power system is either built or in process of being built. That is a fact which no one can dispute. Almost every politician professes to be in favor of public power. When Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Harold Stassen toured this State in the primary campaign they promised to put dams over every housewife's kitchen sink.

But what is to be done with this vast reservoir of power is something else again. This is a question that touches high politics both in Government and industry.

Congress created the Bonneville Power Administration to distribute the power generated at Bonneville Dam built by the Army engineers. Grand Coulee Dam, twice as big, was built by the Bureau of Reclamation. By executive order of President Roosevelt, power from Coulee also was turned over to the Bonneville administration for sale and distribution.

The Bonneville Power Act provides that the benefits of low-cost power be passed on to the individual consumer. Voters in a number of communities have banded together, formed utility districts and these districts have voted to acquire the distributing facilities of private companies.

Using Bonneville's cheap power, they have one of the lowest power rates in the country. It is so low that it would be practical to heat homes with it in this mild climate, if the power were available. In view of the acute power shortage, however, nothing is said about the possibilities of house heating.

It is the distribution of power to consumers and the formation of public utility districts which have aroused private interests. Private utility executives do not quarrel with the idea of the Government building vast hydro projects. Only Government has the resources to build on this scale—Grand Coulee is the largest structure man has ever put together, dwarfing even the Panama Canal.

But the private companies want the right to distribute the power from Government dams. That is where the political controversy comes in.

THE BONNEVILLE Administration has been under attack from various sources with private utilities believed to be the guiding force back of most of these attacks. Henry P. Carstensen, head of the Washington State Grange, denounces Bonneville and argues for a State power authority which would oust the Federal Government.

The private utilities argue that the Government should sell its power at the bus bar, which is the engineer's term for the point at which the power leaves the generators and passes onto the high lines. The Idaho Power Co. recently applied for a permit to build a power line across public lands. This is believed to be a move to block a Government line from McNary Dam when it is completed and thus stop the extension of the Bonneville system.

Where does Dewey stand on this question vital to the Northwest? While he has never said so definitely, it is believed here that he favors taking the Government out of the distribution end of the power business.

But if that is to be the policy, then many people here want to know who is to get the benefits of the great Government projects. Will they go in larger profits to the utilities instead of lower rates to the consumer? The private power executive is likely to answer that the consumer will get protection from State utility commissions. That, however, is no answer here in the Northwest where the public is well informed on the power issue and aware of the failures of State regulatory bodies.

All in Cabinet But Marshall To Take Stump

The Democratic high command plans to use every member of the President's Cabinet except Secretary of State George C. Marshall as stump speakers in the election campaign, it was disclosed yesterday.

Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico, chairman of the party's speakers bureau, said Marshall and Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett would keep aloof from the campaign because of the bipartisan foreign policy.

They will not make any speeches unless the bipartisan foreign policy is attacked or some situation arises requiring them to explain the policies they have carried on," Hatch said. "In that event any speeches they make will be explanatory of the bipartisan foreign policy, rather than defenses, and they would not be political speeches under any circumstances."

Governors to Get Call

In addition to Cabinet members, Hatch said his speakers' bureau would call upon members of Congress, Democratic Governors and other State officials.

Among them probably will be some anti-Truman Dixiecrats in Congress to make speeches in border States where the Democrats will stage a determined drive to regain control of the Senate.

Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, who is pledged to vote for an anti-Truman presidential elector, already has volunteered to help in the Senate campaign. He headed the speakers' bureau in the 1948 campaign.

Barkley to Take Lead

In other Democratic quarters there were indications that Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the vice presidential nominee, will do most of the party's tough in-fighting with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential nominee.

The task falls to Barkley because of his long experience in political scrambles in Congress and his reputation for doing a good-natured, yet effective, needling job.

Dewey Starts N. Y. State University

Pawling, N. Y., Aug. 25.—(U.P.) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today struck back at critics of his educational policies as he named 14 [illegible] woman to organize and run the long-awaited New [illegible] ersity.

In his first public statement on education since he won the Republican presidential nomination, Dewey credited his administration with immense progress" in expanding educational opportunities and raising teachers' pay.

The Governor has been attacked by teachers' organizations for statements he was reported to have made about their "lobbying" activities.

Dewey, it was charged, said at a closed session of the Governors' Conference in Portsmouth, N. H., last June that "the teachers' lobby is the most vicious in the Nation today." The accusation was denied by an aide.

As a result of action during his administration, the Governor said today, "We now have the highest school teachers' salaries in the world."

"The State's support for common schools has been increased by more than 80 per cent over the formulas prevailing six years ago."

The State university is expected to cost an eventual 200 million dollars to set up and 50 million dollars annually to operate.

Under the Enabling Act passed by the 1948 Legislature 32 colleges and other institutions supported wholly or partly by the State were integrated into the university system.

Eventually the program calls for a State-wide system of higher educational facilities under which college training will be available to all qualified candidates, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin.

Life Insurance Pays 13 Millions in State

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Maryland families received $13,039,000 in life insurance death benefit payments during the first six months of this year, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today.

This compared with $11,369,000 paid during the first half of 1947 and $9,671,000 for the corresponding period in 1941, the institute said.

Truman Won't Use Priority Powers Now

With President Truman on Chesapeake Bay, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—President Truman said today the Government will not now exercise its authority to order industry to give production priority for materials to the armed services and the Atomic Energy Commission.

He told newsmen accompanying him on his vacation cruise that the National Security Resources Board had studied the Military's needs, particularly for oil and steel.

The board found that the Government's powers to force industry to produce military goods "is unnecessary at this time."

President Truman made known the board's findings as the presidential yacht Williamsburg reached the Yorktown, Va., naval base on the sixth day of his precampaign vacation cruise.

Northerners Hear South's Racial Views

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 25 (AP). Northern business and professional men listened to the South's civil rights view today at an open forum arranged with the hope that free exchange of views on regional problems would lead to better understanding between various parts of the country.

The roundtable was sponsored by the Blue-Gray Association

A Montgomery attorney, Thomas E. Martin, told the visitors that, Negroes as well as whites insist on segregation in the South. He said this is one thing the South will never give up. Martin stressed that the answer to the South's racial problem lies in health, education and economic opportunity for the Negro race.

Draft to Utilize D. C. Fire Houses

The District's fire houses will serve as draft registration centers for Washington men from 18 through 25 beginning August 30, William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director, announced yesterday.

Murphy

Leahy said Fire Chief Clement Murphy had offered the fire houses as registration centers for any draft-eligible men who care to use them, in addition to firemen of draft age.

Chief Murphy said he was "only too happy to cooperate," Leahy reported, in opening the fire houses to facilitate registration of an expected 50,000 men here beginning Monday and extending through September 18.

He offered to assist with registration at another center, if necessary, Leahy said.

Other Registration Centers

The city's police precinct stations will also serve as general registration centers, Leahy announced. Other booths will be located at the District Building, Municipal Center, National Guard Armory, Dunbar, Wilson and Roosevelt High Schools, and Thomson Elementary School.

Draft-age men employed by the Federal Government will register at the agency where they work, under a plan approved recently by the Federal Personnel Council, a group of personnel directors.

With registration almost at hand, Leahy yesterday issued another call for registrars to man booths at the various centers. Volunteers are asked to notify District Selective Service headquarters at 19th and D sts. nw.

Meanwhile, Franklin S. Gicker, sr., chairman of Fairfax County draft board number 39, announced that 12 registration centers have been set up over the county and will be open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. during the period.

They will be located at Herndon, Vienna, McLean, Falls Church, Baileys Cross Roads, Lorton, Groveton, Annandale, Centreville, Franconia, Burke and Fairfax.

In Prince Georges County registration plans of its three draft boards were revealed yesterday as follows:

The two Upper Marlboro boards—Boards 56 and 57—both will hold registration in school buildings, although the board offices are located in the Pollock Building at Main and Water sts. Mrs. Marjorie D. Rawlings is chief clerk for both boards.

Board 56 will handle registrants from Laurel, Bowie, Lanham, Bladensburg, Kent, Marlboro, Queen Anne and Mellwood Election Districts at three schools, Laurel High School, Marlboro High and Bladensburg Elementary Schools. L. B. Howland is chief registrar for Laurel High, W. A. Jones and Mrs. Gladys M. Henault at Marlboro High at Upper Marlboro, and George H. Robinson and C. Paul Barnhart at Bladensburg Elementary School. Members of Board 56 are Judge Charles C. Marbury, William F. McCormick and William H. Brooks. Ernest N. Cory is appeal agent.

Board 57 will register youths from Surrattsville, Piscataway, Brandywine, Nottingham, Aquasco, Oxon Hill, Spaulding and Seat Pleasant districts. Registration centers will be Surrattsville High School, Clinton, with John M. Pryde, chief registrar; Brandywine Elementary School, with William A. Price as chief registrar; Capitol Heights Elementary School with Mrs. Edna P. Nolan as chief registrar, and District Heights Elementary School, Miss Leila V. Hardesty as chief registrar. Members of Board 57 are Fabian Augustine, Claywood O. Baldwin and Griffith S. Oursler, with Wilmer D. Pyles as appeal agent.

Only 6 Days Remain to File Terminal Leave Pay Claims

The deadline for World War II terminal leave pay claims is midnight, August 31, the Veterans Service Center reminded yesterday.

Under the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946, former enlisted personnel of the services may be compensated for unused leave, up to 120 days, based on their rank and length of service.

The act provides that claims, accompanied by original or photostatic copies of discharge certificates, must be postmarked by September 1. They are to be mailed to various Armed Forces paymasters, depending on point of separation from the service.

All postoffices have the necessary forms, which must be filled out, notarized, and mailed. The forms carry the addresses of the various paymasters.

Veterans may have the forms notarized at the Veterans Service Center, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. In case a veteran has lost his discharge certificate, the Center will assist in obtaining a "certificate in lieu of discharge," and will indicate on the claim form that the certificate has been applied for.

The Center is open from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekdays and until noon Saturdays.

Nearby Maryland veterans may also go to the office of the Maryland Veterans Commission at the Hyattsville National Guard Armory. Maurice P. McGrath, assistant State service officer of the commission, is there daily, except Saturday and Sunday, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Taking Pictures

When Snapshooting at Beach Be Careful Not to Overexpose

By Ollie Atkins

SNAPSHOTS taken at the seashore are often disappointing, as about 500 amateur shutterbugs can probably testify after the free model spree at Drum Point Beach Sunday.

Exposure is the first pitfall which ensnares the photographer. Most of us tend to overexpose. Smart fellows who are aware of the tendency to burn up the film often lean too far the other way and underexpose their pictures. Use of a meter and the natural film exposure latitude will save most of your pictures in the long run.

My personal method of determining correct exposure around the beaches and other marine scenery is to judge my regular impression of the exposure, then stop down one more lens stop—it usually works.

It has been my experience that meters tend to underexpose in these cases. The meter registers the light all right but it requires one stop larger on your lens to get a well-exposed negative.

If the sun is out and the sky deep blue by all means use a K-2 (yellow) filter to bring out that sky. Flat white sky in the nonfiltered seashore picture is too plain. If humidity is high and the blue sky is really quite gray, cut into the sky heavier with the G (orange) filter.

Maybe your weekend of shutter snapping has been rained out but you're out there between showers in a photographer's typical "never give up" manner. That gray sky will flatten out all your well composed foreground scenery. To avoid this shoot from high perches looking down on your subject and the sand with its patches of wiry grass and pieces of drift wood. This terrain background will photograph very well in the soft light of a cloudy day.

Years ago I ran into a photographer making movies on Revere Beach in Massachusetts. He saw my gear and ambled over to complain about the dim light. I observed that the light was a little dull but very sufficient to make pictures and that if he'd remove his dark glasses the entire situation might become brighter.

TED SHANE told me Sunday he was disappointed that the 3000-up photographers he expected to snapshoot his models at Drum Point totaled closer to 500. A rainy morning kept a lot of the crowd away, but I felt he did very well and the turn-out of television, news and newsreel cameramen should have greatly pleased him.

Persons interested in joining the Old Dominion Camera Club which meets in the Buckingham Community Building, 313 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, may get complete details about the group from Lee Beiser at Oxford 1255.

The campaign to have an international salon of photography in Washington, being sponsored by the National Photographic Society in conjunction with all the other local camera clubs, has reached some final stages, we learned today.

The show will be held next July in the National Museum which has promised the entire lower display section for the pictures. Some 400 prints can be hung in the section and will include both monochrome and color.

This will be the first salon of its kind (pictorial only) ever conducted in Washington. Entry blanks are currently being made up and will be sent to all Photographic Society of America salon exhibitors which number about 1500 photographers located all over the world and who submit prints regularly to recognized exhibits. The show will be conducted strictly in accordance with the general rules of the PSA and the American Annual of Photography. Both color and black and white prints will be accepted with a limit of four prints per person allowed in each category. No cash awards will be offered but the committee hopes to give honorable mentions.

Any photographer may submit his work. For complete details write to Miss Ann-Katrine Shaw, secretary of the Washington International Salon, at 723 Upshur st. nw.

Bucking Bronc Crashes Into Stands, 21 Hurt

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 25 (AP).—Twenty-one persons were injured, three seriously, last night when a bucking horse threw its rider and crashed into the bleacher section at a Colorado State Fair rodeo performance.

Rearing up and twisting, the animal headed up through four rows of seats, plowing through the screaming section of fans in one headlong bolt.

Md. Plumbers Face Demand For 3d License

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (AP).—Judge Joseph Sherbow of the Baltimore Supreme Bench has ruled that it is necessary for a Maryland plumber to have three licenses to do business.

He gave his decision in a case brought by James P. Maguire, a master plumber.

Judge Sherbow held:

A plumber must have one license under Article 43 of the Maryland Code, which provides for State regulation of trades and occupations in the public welfare.

He must have another, and pay a fee ranging up to $15 and depending on the community in which he does business, under Section 290 of Article 56, which provides he must take out either a plumber's or trader's license.

Then there is section 291 of article 56. It provides "any person accepting orders or contracts for doing any work on or in any building requiring the use of galvanized iron, metallic piping . . . or any other building material . . . shall be deemed to be carrying on the business of construction."

A construction business license costs $15 annually.

It was this third fee to which Maguire objected.

But Judge Sherbow held the law is plain—a plumber must have the third license. The law has been in effect since 1916, but it was not until recently that the State comptroller started collecting the third fee.

Maryland has about 700 licensed plumbers.

Court Orders Miss Kellems To Move Plant

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Miss Vivien Kellems today was ordered to move her cable-grip manufacturing plant out of Westport, Conn., by December 1 because of a zoning ordinance.

Miss Kellems already is engaged in a test of the legality of Federal withholding tax laws.

Judge John T. Cullinan told her she must move her plant in the next two months and pay a $250 penalty for violating a zoning commission order. Unless his order is obeyed, he said, the company is subject to a $5000 fine.

Miss Kellems hinted she would take legal steps to remain in Westport.

Westport has no industrial zone and the zoning commission has ruled her plant was a violation of zoning regulations.

Maret School Gets Permit for Kindergarten

The Maret School, Inc., was granted permission yesterday by the District Board of Zoning Adjustment to erect a five-room school at 29th st. and Cleveland ave. nw. for operation of a kindergarten and first grade.

The decision was one of 17 made by the board yesterday after a series of public hearings in the District Building on appeals. In other decisions, the board:

Approved appeal by Samarkand, Inc., on behalf of the Foreign Service Educational Foundation for permission to establish a private school at 1830 19th st. nw.

Approved a request by R. P. Hernandez to establish a language school for 30 students at 1765 R st. nw.

Approved a request by George B. Furman to remodel a building front at 13th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. on the 13th st. side, but not the other, for use as a professional office building.

Approved, conditionally, an appeal by Harry and Rose Geller to change a paint shop to a cleaning, pressing and laundry establishment at 1746 U st. nw.

Approved a request by executors of the estate of Arthur Taplett to establish at the rear of 1318 G st. ne., a dry-cleaning plant employing not more than five employes.

Scottland Farm Estate Sold In Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—"Scotland Farm," a 750-acre blue grass estate five miles from historic Scottsville, has been sold by William H. Faulconer to Harry Langhorne of Greenfields, for more than $100,000.

The main residence, built more than 100 years ago, was the home of the late United States Senator Thomas S. Martin. He served as a Democratic Senator from Virginia from 1895 until his death in 1919.

The home, which is surrounded by 650 acres of grazing sod, is situated in southern Albermarle County. It has been completely remodeled. The front section, oldest part of the building, includes a living room, dining room and two bedrooms which have been left in their natural log finish.

Sale of the property did not include 200 head of Hereford cattle or farm equipment.

East Chicago's 65,000 Drinking Water Again

East Chicago, Ind., Aug. 25 (AP).—Industrial East Chicago's 65,000 residents had drinking water again today.

The city water plant's 30-inch pipe from Lake Michigan burst yesterday as the temperature hit a season's record of 100.

The break was repaired but the water had flooded electric pumping machinery. A crew of 30 electricians from the Inland Steel mill helped dry out and repair the pumps and pressure was restored last night.

And Play Tops Molnar's

Olney's Polly Should Fit Broadway's Mood

By Sonia Stein

AH, there's a dimpled darling! "The Magistrate," currently playing at the Olney Theater, is the main point up for discussion here, but somehow the presence of Polly Rowles as Agatha Posket seems very important. Ah, there is a dimpled darling!

I hasten to assure you she is not a little ingenue, but a full-blown flower of mature figure, face and acting ability. And because there is talk of taking the play into New York, this is important, since surely Faye Emerson is one of the major reasons for Molnar's talky, "The Play's the Thing," making the grade on Broadway this season.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Magistrate" is a far less sophisticated piece than Molnar's, but it, too, depends on clever word exchanges, sly deceptions and other such trivia which must be deftly acted lest they be shown up in their slightness.

Of the two, I find Pinero's play vastly more amusing. The situations are delightfully absurd. Whereas bald coincidences are a source of pain in most plays, in "The Magistrate" they come as pleasantly as th last line in a limerick.

Merely a Suggestion

"The Magistrate" himself is played by Arthur Treacher, with a restraint quite refreshing after Edward Everett Horton's kneading of last week's show. The Treacher technique is very appealing.

His confusion, his anguish, his little delights are just barely visible on his face. These, after all, are a man's private emotions, and Treacher does not fling them about.

The plot has a charming innocence. A pretty widow marries a magistrate whom she has known but briefly. And somehow, what with one little thing and another, she cuts five years off her age. This, in a stroke, thrusts her 19-year-old son back into an Eton jacket. As a youngster of 14, he seems quite precocious in many matters—as his 16-year-old piano teacher discovers between finger exercises.

One stormy night in the 1880s, the magistrate's wife goes out to "visit a sick friend." Her true mission is to find a Colonel Lukyn, newly returned from Bengal, before he tells her husband the exact year in which he became her son's godfather.

This same little chap is busy, meanwhile, persuading his stepfather to go stepping with him. By the most wonderful kind of coincidence, Magistrate Posket, Mrs. Posket, Colonel Lukyn, Mrs. Posket's sister, her fiance and Master Cecil are all in the same private dining room when the police come in to nab those drinking after hours.

Bad Morning After

Because the room is dark, and the author has conveniently made things come out that way, the magistrate does not actually see his wife, his sister-in-law or his "wife's first husband's only child's godfather" until they are hauled into his court next morning. Besides his own remorse because he had promised his wife not to go out and then did, by gad, he finds himself in deeper water still when he sentences the lot of them to jail.

There are a number of tickling touches in this play—Treacher, bruised and tattered after escaping the police in the hotel raid, trying to look askance at Colonel Lukyn, bruised and tattered after not escaping the same police in the same raid, for instance.

Everybody in the cast handles his role very well, although not all of them have the natural endowments required. Vivian Yeager as the piano teacher is quite adept, but thoroughly unsuitable just the same. Peter Fernandez, as the boy with the variable age, gives a good account of himself, and yet he looks nearer 14 than 19, which very nearly kills that little joke.

Philip Coolidge, as the bristling old colonel from Bengal, and Dan Stapleton as Sergeant Lugg, turned in particularly good performances among the supporting players.

All the way round a very satisfactory production, to my way of thinking.

Restoration Meeting Set at Port Tobacco

Port Tobacco, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—Plans for the eventual reconstruction of this old Charles County town—one of the most important communities of the State in colonial days—will be discussed here Sunday.

Members of the Society for the Restoration of Port Tobacco will meet in an old chapel that was once a wing of the Charles County Courthouse, which burned down in the 1890's. Only a few houses are still standing in the town.

'Velvet Touch' Is Slightly Heavy

Conscience Plays a Lead in a Whodunit

HOW wrong can you go with a murder story?

Inasmuch as "The Velvet Touch," which opened yesterday at Keith's, is in part a murder tale, it is in part a lively, suspenseful story. But the major part of the film is devoted to the murderess' battle with her conscience.

This doesn't make it a poor picture, but it certainly keeps it from being a full-fledged whodunit.

Rosalind Russell is the murderess—although you have to draw a fine distinction between murder and manslaughter to call her that—and she winds up in the clutches of the law. Precisely how tightly it clutches her is not made clear as she confesses her guilt to Detective Sydney Greenstreet and goes off to the courthouse.

The plot is set in that exciting world of the Broadway theater—and for once in a lifetime it seems to be presented as it really is, barring complications like everybody seeming to be rich as Croesus.

"The Velvet Touch" refers to Miss Russell's habit of wearing gloves at all times, even when eating. Why she does, or why it matters especially that she does, isn't mentioned. They do keep her fingerprints off the murder weapon, however.

A Handy Ornament

Miss Russell plays a Broadway comedy star. Her producer, Leon Ames, has been more than just a business associate, and when Miss Russell falls in love with an architect, Ames threatens to blacken her reputation so that the architect will despise her.

In a moment of combined rage and an attempt to get out of Ames' embrace, Miss Russell taps his skull with the first thing on which she can lay her velvet glove. It happens to be an unfortunately heavy statuette.

Chance gets her out of the producer's office and it begins to dawn on her that she may very well get away with the murder, although that was not her original plan.

Another actress, long in love with Ames, finds his body and faints. By the time she becomes conscious, she is thoroughly trapped by circumstances.

Miss Russell's conscience finally gets the best of her and she is on the verge of confessing when the suspected actress commits suicide, confirming her guilt in everybody's mind.

Everybody but Miss Russell. For her it confirms a suspicion that she is a pretty shabby creature and widll not be able to live with either her conscience or her architect. So, after the curtain is rung down on the last act of a crummy performance (my opinion) of "Hedda Gabler," Miss Russell prepares to pay her debt to society.

Very Special Character

Apart from the rather lush surroundings in which these theater people live, the most indigestible item is Leo Genn. On top of being that socially eligible creature, an architect, he is architect for the U. N.! On top of that, he has an English accent. And, needless to say, he is handsome, witty and romantic.

It doesn't seem right to cavil over the fact that Miss Russell is neither pretty nor charming in this, although she is supposed to be both. She lopes gracelessly when she walks and behaves in a very unlovely fashion. But her acting is quite up to standard.

Sydney Greenstreet's detective belongs in the pages of an English murder mystery, but here he is, a New York cop, with a heavy brand of humor.

Claire Trevor, who is back with a bang in a number of grade-A movies after a long absence from the screen, is very appropriate as the other actress. In some of the early scenes, she crosses verbal swords with La Russell in a highly diverting manner.

Leo Rosten wrote the script from a story by William Mercer and Annabel Ross. John Gage directed. And it was all for Independent Artists, Ltd., a firm owned by Miss Russell and her husband, Frederick Brisson.

NAACP Asks Actors' Equity To Include Virginia in Ban

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has asked Actors' Equity Association in New York to include Virginia in its ban against members playing before segregated audiences, it was reported yesterday.

The NAACP action followed reports that owners of the Virginia Theater on Mount Vernon blvd. in Alexandria are considering converting the movie house into a legitimate playhouse.

Directors of the Alexandria Amusement Corp., which owns and operates the Virginia Theater and six other movie houses, will meet Saturday to consider conversion plans, Elliott Hoffman, president of the firm, said last night.

Hoffman said Virginia State laws prohibit nonsegregation and therefore the owners will have no choice if they do decide to adapt the theater as a legitimate playhouse.

Hoffman noted that Equity members now appear in productions in other Virginia communities where the State segregation law applies. Moreover, he said, "Negroes in Alexandria have their own very fine playhouse, the Carver, where theatricals are presented Saturday nights, so they should have no objections."

Jerusalem Fighting Renewed; Arabs Started It, Jews Say

Jerusalem, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Fighting broke out last night after two days of relative peace in Jerusalem, and the Jews charged today that the Arabs started it.

An Israeli high command bulletin said Egyptian troops were repelled in an attempt to advance from new positions near the disputed Government House area into the suburb of North Talpioth.

Hand grenades were thrown from Arab positions within the Old City walls. Jewish positions near the New Gate were subjected to automatic and artillery fire and two northern Jerusalem sectors came under mortar fire, the bulletin added.

This flare-up came as United Nations observers charged the Jews with a "flagrant violation of the truce" for remaining in the Government House area 36 hours after the withdrawal deadline.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli government spokesman denied reports that Arabs and Jews were holding secret peace talks.

Israel Will Fight Immigration Order

Tel Aviv, Aug. 25 (NYHT).—Faced with an order to halt the immigration of Jewish fighting-age men by September 2, the government of Israel will inform Count Folke Bernadotte that it will not accept suspension or limitation of any category of immigrants, it was established today.

Government sources predicted bluntly the first major clash between Jews and the United Nations mediator would be fought out before the Security Council as a result of Count Bernadotte's decision to chop off the flow of military-age males to Israel.

Perpetual Hits New Asset Top Of 100 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

Perpetual Building Association of Washington has passed the 100-million-dollar mark in assets for the first time in the history of any American savings and loan association.

Secretary William H. Dyer reported yesterday that Perpetual first exceeded the 100-million point on July 23. Latest statement as of August 19 showed $100,076,781.

In resources, Perpetual is the largest such association "under one roof" in the world. The Abbey National Society in England has more resources than Perpetual but, it was pointed out, Abbey is a combination of many associations.

Perpetual's rapid growth is emphasized by these figures: in October, 1945, resources totaled $73,239,000; in October, 1946, assets had risen to $82,100,000, and to $92,414,000 in October, 1947.

Three other Washington associations are among the 30 largest in the country, as of June 30, 1948, according to a survey by the United States Saving & Loan League.

First Federal Savings & Loan Association had assets of $32,022,529 at midyear, American Building Association $27,747,962, and National Permanent Building Association, $26,746,334.

REOFFERING: A banking group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., is reoffering a three-million-dollar school bond issue of Montgomery County, Md., at prices to yield from 1.25 per cent for those maturing September 1, 1949, to 3 per cent for those maturing September 1, 1968. The winning bid for these bonds, producing a net interest cost to the issuer of 2.99257 per cent, was 100.0155 for a combination of 4s, 4¾s, and 3s.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Anthony Siragusa, a consultant to the Treasury Department's bureau of Federal supply, has been appointed assistant to vice president - purchases of U. S. Steel Corp. . . . John R. Bergan is manager of the newly-formed merchandising department of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. . . .

Siragusa

Gordon C. Ballhorn, comptroller, has been elected a vice president of General Mills . . . V. H. Garabedian has been named advertising manager of Western Union . . . Buell A. Patterson is the new director of public relations for U. S. News and World Report .

RECOMMENDED: For effective merchandising ideas, read the August 15 issue of Sales Management on how two Washington firms put across a sales campaign that won a national prize. The award was won by the Joseph M. Zamoiski Co. (Columbia Wholesalers Division—Philco distributors in Washington) and its advertising agency of Kal, Ehrlich & Merrick. Steps in the imaginative campaign are detailed in the magazine article.

PROFITS: A sharp lesson in corporation management was given this week by a young lad named Harlan Abbey from Chicago to some of the highest corporate executives in the world gathered at the New York Stock Exchange. Harlan runs Teen Tattler Publications, project of Junior Achievement which teaches youths how to engage in business. The executives were rocked back on their heels when Harlan blandly reported he paid a dividend of $1.84 on each 50-cent share of common stock—a little matter of 268 per cent profit on capital investment for shareholders.

DIPLOMAS: Thirteen employes of Peoples Life Insurance Co., Washington, were presented diplomas and awards at a luncheon Tuesday in the Statler Hotel. Among them were S. W. Hauser, Peoples Life President, who attended an Investment Seminar conducted by American Life convention at Lake Geneva, Wis. The others completed special training courses of the Agency Management Association and the Life Office Management Association.

NEW RUST FOE: The Sinclair Refining Co. announced the development of an inexpensive rust-preventing compound which can be added to petroleum products to inhibit rust and corrsioon damage in pipelines, tanks, fuel lines, carburetors and oil furnace nozzles. The fluid, called "RD-119," preserves the efficiency of the fuel products to which it is added, the company said.

YIELD CLIMBS: The average yield on 92-day Treasury bills rose to a new postwar high of 1.072 per cent this week on an offering of one billion dollars of these bills to be dated August 26. This compared with an average yield of 1.066 per cent for a bill offering last week, which marked the first time the yield has gone over 1 per cent since the beginning of World War II.

EARNINGS: Norfolk & Western Railway reported net income of $19,367,610 for the first seven months this year, equal to $3.35 a common share, compared with $17,263,150 or $2.98 a share in the same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Broadmoor Tenant Anger Seethes

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

All was quiet on the Broadmoor Apartment front yesterday . . . outwardly.

Edward J. Flynn, president of the newly formed cooperative that hopes to sell the apartment house's 194 home units between now and November 15, said he had sold "at least a hundred" of them between Monday morning, when the sales began, and day's end yesterday.

A majority of the tenants interviewed in a spot check of the building had taken the news of the cooperative quietly. Many had lived at the Broadmoor for 10 and 15 year periods. None of those interviewed planned to "buy into" the new cooperative. None had found any place to move to since announcement of the change-over last weekend.

But some of the tenants were angry, and showed it. One group declared it plans to protest the cooperative's formation to the Rent Control Administration. "We consider it a clear violation of the letter and spirit of the rent control law."

"Bludgeon" Charged

Another tenant, an attorney, charged, "They're trying to bludgeon us into paying more rent without a hearing before the rent board. I don't see anything in this whole proceeding which guarantees anybody title to a single blade of grass on the lot, or to a single personal thing in the building."

Flynn, now employed at a monthly fee of $400 as managing agent of the property, said he is following the same pattern in sales of cooperative apartments at the Broadmoor that he has been following in Washington for the past 28 years.

The Broadmoor Apartments is "home" in Washington to seven members of Congress. None could be reached yesterday for comment on whether they wish to "buy into" the cooperative. Most were back in their home States during the congressional adjournment.

Flynn said present tenants face evictions proceedings "at the option of the new owners" and that 30 days' notice will be given where new apartment owners want to exercise their option, pay their down payment (40 per cent of the purchase price) and move in.

Of tenants questioned by The Washington Post yesterday, none wanted to reveal his identity to the public.

"I Have No Choice"

Said one woman: "I have lived here since the Broadmoor started. I have seen a lot of happiness and sorrow here. My children have grown up, played in the park here and married from here. My sister became ill and died here. It has been home to me. I go with regret, but I must go. I have no choice."

Said another woman, a Government official: "I had hoped to spend the rest of my days here. I am a grandmother and I hoped soon to retire and live quietly here. It has been pleasant. I do not know that I want to sink all the money I have or expect to earn into owning an apartment here, though. I don't believe in 'buying on time.' Yet I have no place else to go. I don't know what I shall do."

One young matron, more fortunate, said, "Thank goodness we don't have to worry about it. We've been staying here while we've been looking for a place large enough for the children. We found one last week."

The wife of a retired Army general: "We certainly are not going to buy an apartment here. We bought a house once and sold it after two years. We don't want to own any property. I don't know what we will do."

Aside from their personal concern for their future, most of the tenants seemed to resent the failure of the management or the newly formed cooperative to notify them that a change was in the wind.

Lived There 15 Years

One tenant said he would have been willing to pay up to a 15 per cent increase in rent, if the management would promise some form of rehabilitation of the building.

"I've lived here for 15 years, and I went for eight whole years without having a thing done to my apartment!"

Those who flocked to see the apartments yesterday thronged into Flynn's office, pored over a sample floor plan, looked out at the green trees in the Broadmoor's back yard, and figured how much money they could sink into the business of owning a part of an apartment building.

Here's Where You May BUY an Apartment

The Washington Post

THE BROADMOOR, WHERE APARTMENTS ARE BEING OFFERED FOR SALE UNDER PLAN

This is how the plan works, Flynn said.

Buyers of a $10,000 unit containing hall, living room, bedroom, kitchen, dinette and bath must make a down payment of $4038 with monthly payments of $68.75 over the next 21½ years. They also must pay 1 per cent of the purchase price at the time they settle up for the unit to provide the corporation with working capital.

Monthly payments include operating and maintenance costs, which Flynn explained would be "common costs" to cooperative owners.

Not Chargeable

Any changes in individual apartments in the way of repair, or changing of fixtures, etc., "made at the whim of the individual," he said, would not be chargeable to the general common cost fee that cooperative members must pay.

The Broadmoor garage, which has a capacity of 200 cars, Flynn said, also will not be considered part of the operation and maintenance charge. "It would not be a common cost as we considerer it," he said. He explained that the monthly fee for garage use has not yet been decided, but "it probably will be in the neighborhood of $10."

Said one woman: "I can't go on living where I am. It just isn't worth it for all the noise and dirt and inconvenience; and I can't even cook there. Even if I had to go without things, it would be worth it to me to move here, just to get away from my housing worries."

Oak Hill Owner Swears Denial Of Armed Court Defiance

Frank C. Littleton yesterday said he wanted to cooperate with United States marshals in charge of his Oak Hill estate in Aldie, Va., until its court-ordered sale at auction September 2.

His statement, and a denial that he had threatened or hindered officials were included in an affidavit filed in the Alexandria branch, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

The affidavit was Littleton's answer to the August request of the estate trustees that the court order marshals to take over the property and allow prospective buyers to see it.

Trustees Howard W. Smith, jr., and E. E. Garrett claimed Littleton had blocked access to the grounds and house and had threatened a deputy sheriff with a pistol. The deputy had gone there to preserve order when the house was first opened for inspection.

Littleton stated yesterday he had "at all times attempted to cooperate with the trustees and will continue to attempt to cooperate with them and the United States Marshals if they will advise him of the cooperation they desire."

He enclosed copies of two letters in which he had asked advice of the trustees on the proposed inspection and sale, and to which he said he had received no answers.

Littleton also stated that:

1. Of about 100 gates on the estate, the only one locked is one that has been locked for 10 years.

2. No demand was made on him for admittance through that gate or to "any building where [Littleton's] personal property is stored."

3. Main doors to the house have been locked with a "No Entrance" sign placed on them since 1939. Also, the signs "Private property, no trespassing" have been on the main gate and other entrances for "many years."

4. He did not threaten anyone with his pistol.

Indians' Lemon Blanks Bosox, 9-0, to Regain Lead

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE SAD NOTE AT this point of the pennant race is the collapse of Connie Mack's Athletics, who as we went to press, had dropped their last five games and are now a long shout from the league lead they held for a spell last week. What had been a four-team race no longer includes Mr. Mack's surprising young men who had been up there mingling with the big clubs since April.

POVICH

At the same time in which they have run out of good pitching, their luck otherwise ran out. Eddie Joost, the shortstop of whom Joe McCarthy says "he don't make errors," has been benched by a bruised hand. Joost wasn't just a good shortstop. He was a run-producer, the rallying point of the A's entire infield play and represented one of the A's few claims of having class

But even if the A's finish as good as fourth, a place they're practically clinched, they are the surprise club of the year. They won't be held lightly next season. With the deepest pitching staff, good catching and adequate defense, all they need is a bit of a lift in their power department to stack up as one of the 1949 pennant threats. One big outfielder with power could have won the pennant for the A's this season.

THE INTERESTING DEVELOPMENT of this week was the Cleveland Indians' display of bounce. After taking that heart-breaking 9-8 licking in the opener of the series with the Red Sox, they muscled right back into the league lead yesterday by pouring it on the Boston Club, 9 to 0. Bob Lemon, who applied that white-wash, and has been the Indians' top pitcher all season, is doing very well for a guy who a year ago was a flop as a third baseman.

The Yankees owe their status as a contnuing pennant threat to a young fellow who, a month ago, had never pitched a game of big league ball. He is Bob Porterfield, the rookie southpaw up from Newark, who not only has won three of his first four starts but has been pitching in a manner to guarantee that he will win many more for the Yanks in these vital stretch weeks.

New York's baseball writers must be credited with an assist if Porterfield does help pitch the Yankees to the pennant. The Yankees were reluctant to bring him out of Newark and wreck that club's pitching, but the Manhattan correspondents set up such a hue and cry about Bucky Harris' desperate need of such as Porterfield that General Manager George Weiss capitulated.

IN THE PAST there has been no great respect for front-running Cleveland clubs, but this year Bill Veeck has apparently come up with something quite different—a Cleveland team that doesn't fold. The invitation for the Indians to collapse was there late Tuesday night when the Red Sox stirred up three runs in the ninth to beat 'em, 9-8, and the futility of trying to beat Boston in its own park might have assailed the Indians.

But when they rebounded from that one to pour it on the Red Sox, 9-0, yesterday the Indians might have won their most important game of the season. It stemmed any Cleveland rout in the Boston series, probably went far toward reestablishing the Indians' confidence, and was something to flaunt at the die-hards who long have maintained Cleveland teams have no great amount of guts.

The fact that he is in a tight pennant race for the first time while his contemporaries, Bucky Harris and Joe McCarthy are inured to that sort of thing, is hardly something to annoy Manager Lou Boudreau. It is when the going is toughest that Boudreau personally rises to the test with his own play, and the Indians this year have reflected the resolution of their manager.

EVEN THE BOOKIES are stumped by the tightness of the race. Right now they are asking the bettors to lay 6 to 5, and take their pick of teams. The Indians are still a winning ball club, the Yankees' pitching has improved tremendously in late weeks, and the Red Sox have all that power; or at least are supposed to have it.

In one respect, the Yankees may have an edge. In Vic Raschi they have a big strong, young guy who is not only a consistent winner, but who is a workhorse as well. If it comes down to a crucial game or two, Bucky Harris can work Raschi out of turn in an effort to win the game the Yanks need to win.

Meanwhile, every club in the first division is getting rich. The American League couldn't have better staged a four-club race through the last three months of the season if it had told the teams to follow a script. There's no cry to break up the Indians, Red Sox, Yanks, or anybody else. That's a healthy state.

Horses Don't Respond

Maryland Hearings May Put End to Pre-Race Saliva Tests

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (AP).—Chairman Stuart S. Janney of the Maryland Racing Commission indicated today it may abandon its prerace saliva tests for horses running at Maryland tracks.

Janney said public hearings on the question will be held in two or three weeks.

Giants Win On 8-Run 9th

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Held to three hits by Southpaw Bob McCall for eight innings, the New York Giants exploded for eight runs in the ninth today to come from behind and defeat the Chicago Cubs, 9-4.

It was their sixth straight victory and gave them undisputed possession of fourth place. A pinch-hit home run with two on base by Rookie Don Mueller put the Giants ahead.

He reported three horses which have run at State tracks this summer showed the effects of stimulants in post- race tests after passing the prerace examination.

Prerace saliva tests were introduced in 1946 when the commission was under the chairmanship of George C. Mahoney and were the first ever required by a State commission as standard procedure.

Mahoney set up an elaborate rolling laboratory in an automobile trailer and equipped it with mice.

Backed up by a certain amount of technical testimony, he contended that traces of narcotics in a horse's saliva will show up quickly when the saliva is injected in a mouse. The mouse does a dance, he argued, and its tail flicks around crazy.

Organizations of owners and trainers bitterly protested the prerace examination and presented conflicting testimony of scientists that the mouse test is not reliable.

Mahoney later strengthened his pre-race precautions by instituting the "receiving barn." An hour or so before post time, all horses entered in a race must be taken to the barn for the saliva test. The racers are then held there under guard of commission personnel until time to go to the paddock. A guard also remains with them in the paddock and until they step on the track for the parade to the post.

The receiving barn idea aroused more bitter protests from owners and trainers. W. L. Brann, famed Maryland breeder, withdrew his horses from State tracks. He said the barn and the ever-present guards reflected on racing.

Mahoney was removed as racing commissioner by Governor William Preston Lane jr., not long after the latter came into office in 1947 and at a time when Mahoney was campaigning for Nation-wide extension of his "honest racing" precautions.

He was succeeded by Janney, attorney and gentleman jockey who held a monopoly for several years on winning Maryland's gilt-edged and very social point-to-point steeplechase races in the spring.

Most other States have postrace tests of saliva and urine for stimulants.

Nats Wallop Browns, 14-6; End Streak

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Truth being stranger than fiction, this morning's little oddity is the astounding fact that the Nats finally won a ball game.

To break their nine-game losing streak and also herald the rapidly approaching football season, the Griffs, bewildered 4600 customers and befuddled the Browns by scoring two touchdowns and converting both extra points to rack up a 14-6 victory.

The 14 runs the Nats scored off their 19 hits represented high marks for the season in both departments.

Everybody except Ray Scarborough, who pocketed his twelfth triumph, shared in the slaughter with Al Kozar and Eddie Stewart whacking out four hits each.

The Nats held a 13-1 lead at one stage, but the intense heat and two errors, one his own, worked to Ray's disadvantage in the eighth when the Browns scored five unearned runs.

Ferrick Finishes

Tom Ferrick finished up and set the Browns down in order to put Scarborough's success in the deep freeze.

The Nats wasted no time in gaining a command they increased as the hit-fest wore on. They routed Lefthander Joe Ostrowski in the first inning with a four-run outburst, tacked on a fifth run against Al Widmar in the third, made it 7-0 at the expense of Ralph Schwamb in the sixth and banged Frank Biscan all over the lot in a six-run seventh inning expedition.

Their 19 hits were good for 25 bases. Kozar punched out two doubles, Stewart chipped in one, Tom McBride the fourth and Pinch-Hitter Sherry Robertson lashed out a triple in the eighth to drive in the fourteenth run.

Against Scarborough, the Browns made only seven hits. Their only legitimate run came in the seventh, fashioned on Dick Kokos' triple to right center and Whitey Platt's fly.

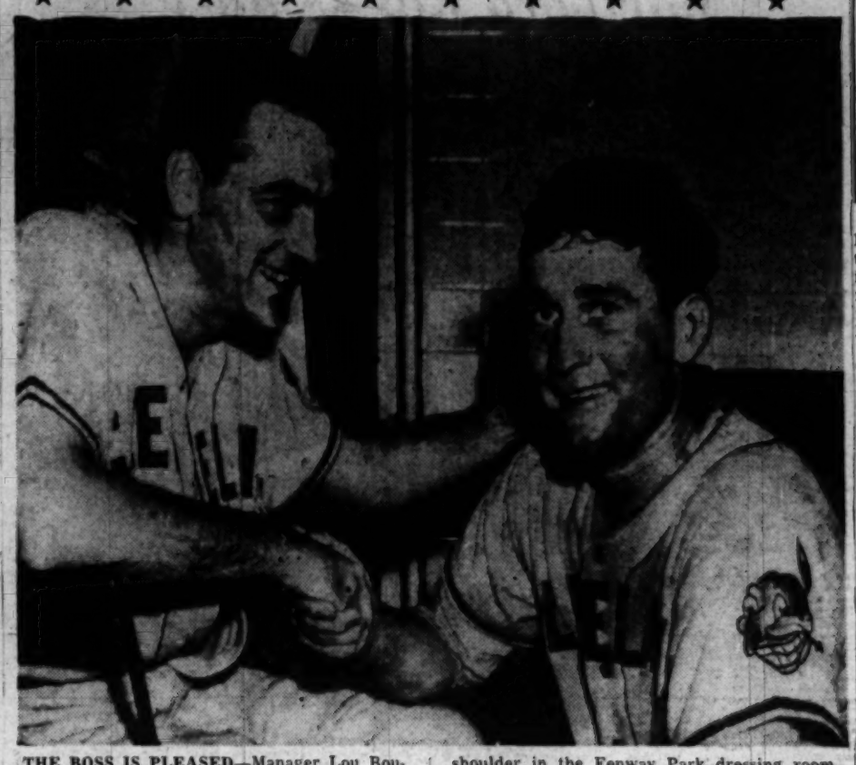
Vernon on Bench, Trade Probable

For the first time since he became the Nats' regular first baseman, Mickey Vernon rode the bench last night and indications are that he'll be traded this winter.

Unable to snap out of a batting slump now in its second season, Manager Joe Kuhel pulled Vernon in favor of Earl Wooten. Vernon has made only 7 hits in his last 51 appearances at the plate and is currently hitting .246, more than 100 points below his .353 average which led the league in 1946.



THE BOSS IS PLEASED—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians (left) smiles proudly as he pats Pitcher Bob Lemon on the shoulder in the Fenway Park dressing room after Lemon had shut out the Boston Red Sox, 9 to 0, to regain the American League lead.

Billy Talbert, Mulloy Gain In Doubles

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 25 (AP).—Foreign stars faded under a glaring sun today as the members of the newly named U. S. Davis Cup defending forces made impressive progress in the national doubles championship tennis competition at Longwood.

Gardnar Mulloy of Miami and Bill Talbert of New York, the two-time titlist who are expected to represent this country in the challenge round doubles against the Australians at Forest Hills, N. Y., next month, qualified for the quarterfinal round with a one-sided 6—1, 6—3, 6—4 win over Dick Mouledoux of New Orleans and Tony Trabert of Cincinnati.

They were joined by their U. S. teammates, Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., and Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, who bore the torrid 90-degree heat well enough to polish off Frank Sedgman of Australia and Bill Vogt of Los Angeles in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Aussies, Czechs Wilt

But the punishing playing conditions raised havoc with such strong foreign entries as Australia's Adrian Quist and Billy Sidwell, who have drawn their nation's Davis Cup singles assignments, and Czechoslovakians Jaraslar Drobny and Valdimir Cernik.

Quist and Sidwell were knocked out of the third-round action by unseeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Sidney Wood of New York, by 4—6, 8—6, 6—1, 6—4 margins.

Both Drobny and Cernik complained that they were affected by the heat while dropping their third-rounder to Tom Brown of San Francisco and Irvin Dorfman of New York, 7—5, 4—6, 9—7, 6—3.

The six-time championship tandem of Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., were slow getting under way against Mrs. Dorothy Bundy Cheney of Santa Monica, Calif., and Betty Rosenquest of South Orange, N. J., but the defending titlists soon regained their usual superlative form and breezed into the semifinals with a 9—7, 6—0 victory.

Also reaching the semifinals were Doris Hart of Miami and Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and the team of Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Africa.

Spahn Stops Cards, Braves Win, 2 to 0

St. Louis, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Boston Braves Pushed two runs across in the fifth inning as Warren Spahn huled a 2 to 0 shutout against the St. Louis Cardinals tonight before 22,765 fans.

The victory put the Braves four games ahead of the second place Brooklyn Dodgers. Howie Pollet was the victim in the left-handed pitchers' battle.

Clint Conatser opened the fifth with a double and scored the first run when Phil Masi's grounder took a bad bounce over Marty Marion's head for a single. Spahn bunted to force Masi at second and went to second himself on Tommy Holmes' single. Spahn accounted for the second tally as Al Dark singled sharply off Red Schoendienst's glove.

Both teams missed many other scoring chances with the Braves leaving 10 men on base and the Redbirds 9. The Cardinals biggest chance misfired in the third when they had the bases loaded with two out and Mike McCormick pulled down Terry Moore's long fly ball to end the inning.

Porterfield Hurls Yanks To 8-2 Win

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The New York Yankees returned to their winning ways today, defeating the Chicago White Sox, 8-2, to move within a game and a half of the league-leading Cleveland Indians.

Rookie Bob Porterfield, who pitched seven scoreless innings before he was forced to retire due to the excessive heat, received credit for the victory. It was the 24-year-old Virginian's third triumph against one defeat since his promotion August 5, from the Newark Bears.

The White Sox got their two runs off Southpaw Tommy Byrne in the ninth on a double by Don Kolloway, three walks and an error by Bobby Brown.

The Yankees pounded out 13 hits, including home runs by Yogi Berra, his twelfth, and Tommy Henrich, his sixteenth, off former teammate Randy Gumpert. Gumpert went all the way to suffer his third loss as a White Sox, compared to one victory.

A's Lose Fifth In Row, 10-4, to Tigers

Philadelphia, Aug. 25 (AP).—Freddy Hutchinson went the route today for his fourth pitching victory of the season over the Philadelphia Athletics as Detroit pounded out a 10-to-4 victory. The defeat was the fifth successive setback for the Mackmen and left them 2½ games behind the third place Yankees.

Hutchinson checked all of the A's except Sam Chapman. The Philadelphia centerfielder drove in all of the Athletics' runs with a two-run homer in the sixth and a long fly in the eighth.

The Tigers got to four Athletics hurlers for 12 hit and scored five of their runs in a seventh-inning attack against Charlie Harris and Lou Brissie. Phil Marchildon, who was charged with the defeat, started the game and Rookie Alex Kellner finished up.

Grinder's Horse 2d By a Nose

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 25.—Jockey Danny Scocca, Washington, D. C., boy who has had little saddle luck of late, staged a comeback today.

The former Eastern High student put up a strong stretch ride aboard Mrs. K. Ayres' Cateyes to hang a nose decision on Mrs. H. S. Grinder's Country Dude with Jockey Sammy Palumbo aboard. Third money in the test, the Meadows Purse, went to E. A. Nicodemous" Double Duty.

Cateyes, in winning his second straight race of the meeting, returned a $10. mutuel and was clocked in 1.08 2/5 for the 5½ furlongs over a fast (for Marlboro) track.

High Heart was the only other contender. The Saportas gelding, however, was squeezed back approaching the stretch and then came the sizzling duel between Cateyes and Country Dude. Double Duty was not a serious menace but was a lonesome third.

Jockey Patsy Grant rode two winners on the card, being successful with Cedar Hills Stable's Bugler in the fourth at $5.60 and with G. S. Fockler's Bus V Z at the identical $5.60 price in the fifth. Both are trained by J. K. Fockler.

The daily double on the 2 and 3 combination paid $96.60. I. Beavers' Emmaethel won the first race, paying $7.20 while handled by apprentice R. Rigby and Mrs. J. D. S. Coleman's Honey Bun took the second, returning $16.80 after being handled by Jockey Stanley Austin.

BETWEEN RACES—It is true that several cases of "doping" on half-mile tracks this season will come to light in a few days . . . Was it a coincidence that Jockey Johnny Tammaro was suspended for 15 days after he testified about the blind horse at Cumberland? . . . Local stewards gave Tammaro the limit. Any more time would have meant sending his case to the commission where it would have been fought by the jockeys' guild . . . Wasn't a jockey strike narrowly averted as the result of Tammaro's suspension? . . . Riders on the Thursday program will donate all their fees to the jockeys' guild . . . Jockey Danny Scocca applied for a license to drive trotters and was told he would have to be around a year before being okayed . . . Scocca learned to drive in a couple of hours and doesn't that prove it must be easy? . . . The Marvin Greenes (he's the trainer) have a brand new baby . . . Jockey Jimmy Rankin arrived from Wheeling . . . Jockey J. Hummer became ill after the first race today and had to cancel his mounts.

3 Area Golf Hopes Ready For Amateur

Four area hopefuls depart this weekend for Memphis and the National Amateur. Play starts at the Memphis Country Club on Monday and continues on through Saturday.

Roland Mackenzie, who runs a farm near Baltimore but whose membership at Columbia allows Washington to claim him, heads the list of locals. Mackenzie was National Amateur medalist in in 1925, and twice made the Walker Cup team. When he made it the first time at the age of 17, he became the youngest golfer ever to be chosen for this signal honor, a record which still stands. A former Congressional pro, Mackenzie recently regained his simon-purity and last week became medalist of the 169th Maidstone Club Invitation at East Hampton, L. I.

District Amateur Champ Bobby Brownell of Manor, Maury Nee, Columbia, and Edward A. Johnston, Country Club of Maryland, are the other well-known local golfers who qualified for the top amatuer event of the year. Both Nee and Brownell have had previous experience in the gruelling National Amateur match play. Nee drew a bye in the first round at Memphis.

First day's pairings for District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland golfers:

Roland Mackenzie, Baltimore, vs. Richard L. Smart, Pine Bluff C. C., Pine Bluff, Ark.; Robert W. Brownell, Manor, vs. Ronald Williams, Oswanie G. and C. C., Mount Clemens, Mich.; Edward A. Johnston, C. C. of Maryland, vs. John O. Levinson, Webhannet G. C., Kennebunk Beach, Me.; Maurice Nee, Columbia, bye.

J. Davis Ewell, jr., Hermitage C. C., Richmond, Va., vs. Walter E. Beckjord, Yale G. C., New Haven, Conn.; Benno Janasen, jr., Farmington C. C., Charlottesville, Va., vs. Edward White, Houston C. C., Houston, Tex.; Walter Hagen, jr., Hermitage C. C., Richmond, Va., vs. Tim Moore, La Gorce C. C., Miami

Kenwood Launches Club Title Play

Kenwood reports that a record number of contenders will be out gunning for Mrs. Betty Meckley's club championship tomorrow, when qualifying rounds begin. Among those considered capable of supplanting Mrs. Meckley are Mrs. E. R. Harris, Mrs. P. J. Trouchard and Mrs. Rex Howard, who has turned in the best card of the season so far, a 77.

D. C. Amateur Meet To Open Sept. 7

The District Amateur is being stretched to five days this year. Starting on Tuesday, September 7, the tournament will run on through Saturday. Tournament play will be interrupted on Wednesday and Friday, days on which Columbia has reserved the course for other activities.

Bubby Worsham, back from the National Junior, is expected to show up for his first District Amateur. Bobby Brownell, the current titlist who burned up Woodmont in last year's finals to take Maury Nee 10 and 8, will also be on hand, as will Nee.

Billy Griffith, Prince Georges, captain of the George Washington University golf team, and Allan Weisberg, Indian Spring, are two more of the younger players headed for Columbia next month who are well thought of locally.

Seniors in Action At Columbia

On the following Monday, September 13, professionals and seniors—golfers over 50, that is—converge at Columbia for the pro-seniors and senior sweepstakes.

The sweepstakes will serve as the practice round for the Twentieth Annual Seniors' Tournament, on tap for Tuesday, September 21, at Columbia.

3-Day Payne Cup Tourney Slated

A 54-hole medal-play tournament for the Payne Trophy Cup is scheduled for Columbia for the three days beginning Tuesday, October 5. All women with handicaps of 1 to 14 and membership in clubs affiliated with the Maryland State Golf Association are eligible.

Annapolis Club Gets 2-Ball Meet

A mixed two-ball tournament, under the aegis of the Maryland State Golf Association, is scheduled for the Naval Academy Golf Club, Annapolis, on Sunday, September 12.

8 Pitchers See Action, Give 35 Hits

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped out of a four-game losing streak with a vengeance today, walloping four Pittsburgh pitchers for 18 hits in outslugging the Pirates, 11-9.

It was a slugging match all the way. The Dodgers also used four pitchers with Erv Palica, the starter, getting credit for the victory. The Bucs collected 17 hits, including home runs by Ralph Kiner, Ed Stevens and Wally Westlake. It was No. 34 for Kiner, who leads the league in that department.

After the game, Manager Billy Meyer of the Pirates protested Brooklyn's victory to plate Umpire Jocko Conlon, basing his protest on the grounds that relief pitcher Erskine did not complete pitching to one batter.

The game was interrupted in the seventh inning by a tussle between several Brooklyn players and Danny Jacino, an Associated Press photographer. With Jackie Robinson at bat, Umpire Bill Stewart waved Jacino from the third base coaching lines because he had two cameras. As Jacino retreated toward the Brooklyn dugout, he had some words with Tommy Brown, Dodger reserve infielder, who swung at him. It was soon broken up by other Dodger players.

8 Pitchers See Action, Give 35 Hits

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped out of a four-game losing streak with a vengeance today, walloping four Pittsburgh pitchers for 18 hits in outslugging the Pirates, 11-9.

It was a slugging match all the way. The Dodgers also used four pitchers with Erv Palica, the starter, getting credit for the victory. The Bucs collected 17 hits, including home runs by Ralph Kiner, Ed Stevens and Wally Westlake. It was No. 34 for Kiner, who leads the league in that department.

After the game, Manager Billy Meyer of the Pirates protested Brooklyn's victory to plate Umpire Jocko Conlon, basing his protest on the grounds that relief pitcher Erskine did not complete pitching to one batter.

The game was interrupted in the seventh inning by a tussle between several Brooklyn players and Danny Jacino, an Associated Press photographer. With Jackie Robinson at bat, Umpire Bill Stewart waved Jacino from the third base coaching lines because he had two cameras. As Jacino retreated toward the Brooklyn dugout, he had some words with Tommy Brown, Dodger reserve infielder, who swung at him. It was soon broken up by other Dodger players.

Military Speeding Civil M-Day Plans

Plans by which civilian personnel could be mobilized quickly in event of another war are being drafted by the Army, Navy, and Air Forces. They are being speeded up to order of Defense Secretary Forrestal.

For the Government as a whole, personnel mobilization plans are being drawn by the National Security Resources Board with the assistance of the Civil Service Commission.

The military agencies today have about 875,000 civilian employes, which was about the number in the entire prewar Government. And the number is increasing steadily as the postwar defense program moves into high gear.

Last month, for example, estimated Federal employment jumped up 17,000. About 1300 additional people were hired in this city. Much of the increase both here and elsewhere was in the military. Since the Federal Government began to expand again early this year, employment has increased more than 100,000 and about 10,000 of it has been in and near Washington.

Among the other agencies reporting larger staffs in July were Postoffice, Agriculture, Interior and Veterans' Administration. The biggest layoff was reported by War Assets, which is being liquidated. Other decreases were in State, Labor, Maritime and Internal Revenue.

POLITICS: Several members of the House Civil Service Committee won renomination—and probable election—in this week's balloting. Among them are John Bell Williams (D., Miss.), John Butler (R., N. Y.), and Katharine St. George (R., N. Y.). Mrs. St. George was one of the first committee members to push a general pay raise bill for all Federal workers during the last session of Congress.

GPO: Cash awards for suggestions that have led to greater production at the Government Printing Office have been made to Stanley D. Bradshaw, Wilbur S. Carper, Harry A. Miller and Wilbert A. Garner.

NOTES: W. D. Termohlen, chief of Agriculture's poultry branch, yesterday was elected president of the World Poultry Science Association, in convention at Copenhagen, Denmark . . . Fred Emerson Clark, a Northwestern University faculty member, has been appointed economist to the Senate Committee on Trade Policies by Chairman Capehart (R., Ind.) . . . The Navy now pays its civilian teachers at its War College and Annapolis Academy salaries comparable to those paid by leading colleges and universities, no longer following the Classification Act on teacher's salaries.

COMMERCE can be expected to close out its office on voluntary controls within the next month or so. The law under which that agency operates will expire February 28. Voluntary agreements on the allocation of goods are usually made effective several months in advance.

NATIONAL GUARD: It will increase its civilian staff. The Guard yesterday announced a plan to employ officers and enlisted men as civilian administrative assistants to relieve the local commanders of paperwork and other administrative duties. The Guard was given the authority The Guard estimates that 500 officers and 4500 enlisted men will be employed as full time civilian administrative assistants. The guard was given the authority for extra help in its 1949 Appropriation Act.

JOBS: Civil Service has exams open for elevator mechanics and mining engineers. The mechanic jobs pay from $2350 to $3024 to to start, the engineer jobs from $3727 to $6235. No written test for either; both require experience qualifications.

SURVEY: The Hoover Commission is making a sample survey among past and present doctors, dentists, and nurses in the Government service, both civilian and military. The questionnaire asks about their Government work, whether they liked it, professional opportunities, etc.

It urges them to volunteer as much information as possible on what could be done to better the Government's medical services. The questionnaire was sent out by Dr. Edward D. Churchill, chairman of the medical manpower subcommittee of the commission's committee on medical and hospital services.

2 Civilians Charged With Shooting at Belvoir MPs

Soldiers Accuse Fort Employes Of Firing 3 Shots From Speeding Car

Two Fort Belvoir civilian employes were charged yesterday in Alexandria with shooting from a speeding car at two military policemen on the post Tuesday night.

Identified as Charles L. Rollins, 27, and William R. Kidd, 38, the men were released on $500 bond each for arraignment before United States Commisisoner Stanley King in Alexandria Friday at 9:15 a. m. Both men live in dormitories at the fort. The incident allegedly occurred when Corpl. Donald P. Hanna and Pfc. Lester Elzig went to Belvoir Grill, just south of the fort on Route 1, about 9:15 a. m. to investigate a complaint that someone was throwing bottles at passing cars.

According to the story told Fort Belvoir public relations officials by the military policemen, they received no information at the grill. But as they started to walk back to their post, they said a car with two men in it drove off at high speed from in front of the place and fired three shots.

The soldiers said they saw sparks fly two yards in front of them where one slug struck the pavement. Racing back to their jeep, they cruised up the highway and found the car parked in front of the Lunch Box, a restaurant on Route 1 just north of the fort.

They said they found a .32 caliber pistol of Italian make inside the car. Rollins and Kidd were arrested in the restaurant and taken to the Alexandria police lockup.

Special agents of the FBI charged them with assault with a deadly weapon and "shooting along a road" on a military reservation.

Police Trap 2 For Pulling 6 False Alarms,

Two men were held under $500 bond each yesterday after pulling six false alarms which kept the Northeast and Southeast fire departments busy during the morning hours.

The pair was captured after Police Inspector George R. Waldrodt, night police supervisor, threw a cordon of 50 policemen around the area where the alarms were being pulled. Arrested were Lester Cicala, 27, of 1321 B st. ne., and Terrell Roberts, jr., 26 of 7191 Tucker rd se.

Police said the men pulled their first false alarm at 14th and E sts. ne. at 2:13 a. m., and followed up with alarms at 7th and L sts. ne. at 2:20 a. m., 13th and B sts. se. at 2:31 a. m., and 17th and Massachusetts ave. se., at 2:43 a. m.

Just as they pulled the fourth false alarm, inspector Waldrodt saw a car pulling away from the box. He followed it after alerting all police cars and motorcycles in the area.

The pair pulled another false alarm at 18th and Potomac ave. se., at 2:45 a. m. Ten minutes later, they were captured by two traffic division men as they pulled an alarm at 13th and B sts. ne.

Appearing before Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon, the men were held on six charges of pulling false alarms and their cases were continued until August 31.

District Clerk Discharged in Funds Shortage

The District Commissioners yesterday served a five-page discharge notice on Robert A. Cornelius, clerk and assistant cashier in the Collector of Taxes office, on three charges "constituting malfeasance."

Cornelius, who lives at 2809 51st ave., Dillon Park, Md., was informed that in the absence of "any answer" from him to formal charges served last week, the Commissioners found him guilty on the three charges."

The cashier, who disappeared briefly with tax funds, later returned $595.61 in cash, an amount larger than the shortages revealed during a preliminary audit.

In addition to the cash, Cornelius authorized the District to "hold any and all other funds due him, including funds in the Civil Service Retirement fund, until final settlement" of his accounts.

Cornelius was charged with failing to report for work on August 16. A check of his cash box at that time disclosed $391 missing, in addition to receipts from water bill collections during three months and a $100 shortage in a daily report, the commissioners charged.

The Commissioners discharge notice commented that they were "of course impressed with the fact that Cornelius voluntarily offered to make restitution, that his offer followed immediately upon the discovery of the shortage, and that he has made restitution in full of all shortages known to date," the notice added:

Cornelius could not be reached for comment.

Woman Foils Holdup; Chase Nets Suspect

Shooting Averted When Gunman Yields to Arrest

A 27-year-old laborer who tried to hitch a ride from a woman at the point of a gun yesterday was captured by a rookie policeman after a brief chase during which gunfire was averted by mere chance.

The man was identified at the Sixth Precinct Station as John Edward Kirby of no fixed address. He was charged with assault with intent to kill and attempted robbery.

25, a member of the force for only six months, displayed courage as did two women involved in the incident.

At about 3:30 p. m., Mrs. Edmund B. Ault, 36, of 1409 Nicholson st. nw., mother of four children, was sitting in her car outside the office of Dr. William Wolf, a dentist, 6605 Georgia ave. nw.

A man approached the car and confronted Mrs. Ault with a .32-caliber revolver.

"Get going, you're taking me some place," he ordered.

As Mrs. Ault stepped from the car the gunman demanded her pocketbook.

"You can have my pocketbook," replied the determined mother, "but you can't have my personal effects."

She opened her pocketbook, removed her wallet and started to take out $6 to hand to the bandit.

Her calm manner apparently was too much for the gunman. He turned and fled.

Mrs. Ault dashed across the street into the dentist's office and told the nurse, Miss Nancy Shenk, 25, of 1122 Spring rd. nw.

Miss Shenk got police on the telephone and while Mrs. Ault gave them a description of the gunman the nurse dashed to the street.

Dykes commandeered a cab and caught up with the gunman at 13th and Tewksbury sts. nw.

The bandit turned and leveled his revolver at the policeman. He pulled the trigger. The gun didn't fire. (Police learned why later when they examined the weapon; the safety catch was on.)

Dykes dropped alongside the curb and took careful aim with his service revolver. Just as his finger was tightening on the trigger a woman passerby walked into the line of fire. Dykes couldn't shoot.

"Drop your gun," he ordered the bandit.

Smithsonian's Skulls, Fossils Help in Studies of Early Man

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

A combination of active minds and aged skulls at the Smithsonian Institution is bringing to a head what scientists hope will greatly facilitate the study of man's development.

These two ingredients are producing a collection of skull casts and fossil bones which, the Smithsonian believes, will give anthropologists a chance to study a complete record of human development in one research center.

According to Dr. T. D. Stewart, currator of physical anthropology at the Institution, relatively rare relics of prehistoric man in the past have been scattered in museums all over the world.

Since so many of them have been comparatively inaccessible, the Smithsonian's undertaking—which includes plaster casts of originals dating back as far as the Ice Age.

Take the real skull of what is called China Man, for example. That is, if you could find one. He was the second most primitive generally recognized member of the human race of which remains have been found.

Originals were at Peiping at the start of World War II. The Japanese, perhaps through carelessness or on purpose, seem to have lost them when Marines were evacuated from Tsin-Tsin. The Smithsonian, fortunately, has minutely accurate casts of the original.

The existence of cast copies of invaluable relics serves a dual purpose: (1) protection against irrevocable loss, and (2) preclusion of long journeys over the world by scientists, who frequently had to rely on inadequate verbal descriptions by others for their results.

Dr. Stewart's associate curator, Dr. Marshall T. Newman, will tell you some startling things about the days when men were men and women were pulled about by their coiffures.

That's on condition, of course, you don't mind finding that man's early ancestors looked more like King Kong than you may care to believe.

He can show you a "skull cap" fragment of a Neanderthal man who kicked around some 50,000 years ago. It's an unimposing chunk of bone which suggests its owner may have been the victim of a prehistoric tomahawk.

From this fragment, nevertheless, scientists have pieced together a complete skull — with fancy uppers and lowers—by applying knowledge gained through other "finds" and exhaustive research.

Then there's a cast of the lower jaw of a fossil ape, to go back a few hundred thousand years. Despite a pair of fang-like canine teeth, it "belonged to that ape which is about the closest thing to the missing link."

Parrying questions on the theory of evolution, Dr. Newman readily turned to a specimen of the Java Man. It is the most primitive known, having roamed the South Seas about half a million years ago.

Next in chronological order is the Neanderthal type. It is followed by casts of "essentially modern man's skulls" from the late Ice Age. Of the latter, an "Oberkassel Female" reposes wide-eyed on a shelf to show what the Lana Turner of about 25,000 B. C. looked like.

In its original form, as a sample of early American man between 1200 and 1450 A. D., is the skull of an Arizona Pueblo Indian—unscalped.

Montgomery Curriculum Wins Support of Nearly 300 Parents

Nearly 300 persons attending a curriculum workshop sponsored by the Montgomery County Board of Education last night expressed confidence in the county's school curriculum.

The victory for school supporters who have opposed a disgruntled parent group protesting school instruction methods, came after a Bethesda father, Irwin H. Wensink, 7220 Bradley blvd., spoke in support of county educators.

Wensink, father of three Bradley Elementary School pupils, strongly backed county principals, teachers and the board of education and called for a vote of confidence from the assembled parents.

All but 20 or 25 of the 300 persons present rose to their feet.

50 Graduates Appear

The dramtic finale to the month-long workshop by school officials and 48 teachers which started early this month, also was highlighted by the surprise appearance of 50 recent high school graduates who spoke out in favor of their former teachers.

Peter Kirby, a Bethesda-Chevy Chase High Cchool Graduate and University of Pennsylvania student, said the mixed delegation had found upon entering college that county instruction is equal to that of most preparatory schools and better than other high school systems.

Attending the meeting almost in a body were the 100 members of the Parent League for Curriculum Improvement who several weeks ago began campaigning for major revisions in the present curriculum.

John H. Hiser, Bethesda theater owner and head of the group, charged after the meeting that the confidence vote resulted only because the meeting was packed with teachers and the delegation of former students.

Studied Possible Improvements

"We could have brought as many students who would have expressed the opposite point of view," he said.

Started early this month, the workshop studied possible curriculum improvements. Forty-eight teachers volunteered their time, and parents in five previous conferences made numerous suggestions.

Assistant School Superintendent E. M. Douglass said one of the workshop recommendations was that more county schools adopt advisory councils to work out local problems.

The councils, he said, should be made up of school trustees, the P-TA president, the principal and faculty representatives and class presidents or other appropriate student representation.

Youth Dies as 'Unloaded' Gun Is Fired by Chevy Chase Girl

An "unloaded" pistol, reluctantly fired by a Chevy Chase schoolgirl, killed a 19-year-old youth Sunday in Yosemite National Park, Calif., it was learned yesterday.

Victim of the accident was Charles W. Edwards of Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

The trigger was pulled by Janet Jackson, 12, of 525 Rolling rd. Chevy Chase, a Leland Junior High School student.

According to an Associated Press report, Edwards exhibited a German Luger pistol and insisted it was not loaded. Janet expressed disbelief, and Edwards replied: "I'll prove it isn't loaded. You pull the trigger."

Whereupon Edwards placed the pistol against his temple. He died instantly when Janet fired. The clip had been removed from the "unloaded" gun, but a bullet was left in the chamber.

Janet was visiting the park with her mother, Mrs. Roy Jackson; her brother, William, 3, and a friend of the family. Miss Polly Pierson, a physical education teacher at Chevy Chase Junior College. The four had been visiting the grandparents of the Jackson children in the West and were touring the Yosemite ne route back to Washington. They were due back for the reopening of school early next month.

Janet's father, Capt. Roy Jackson, is presently on a Navy assignment in New York.

Crime News Gag Hit by Press Group

Maryland Association Opposes Extension Of Baltimore Rules

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Maryland Press Association, made up of most of the weekly newspapers in the State and some of the dailies, today proclaimed its opposition to State-wide extension of the Baltimore rules that restrict crime news.

The opposition was in the form of a resolution and statement of arguments handed to Judge Levin Claude Bailey of Salisbury, who is chairman of the Court of Appeals standing committee on rules and procedure.

A subcommittee has recommended to Judge Bailey's group that Rule 904 of the Baltimore Supreme bench be incorporated in the oCurt of Appeals rules for all Maryland State courts.

The Baltimore rules, in effect since 1939, prohibit the publication of evidence found by the police in a criminal case after they have made an arrest, particularly any statements made by an accused.

They also prohibit prosecutors and police officers from discussing their plans for prosecution of a case or the actions of the defendant while he is under arrest.

The objections of the press association were drawn up by a special committee composed of John Worthington, publisher of the Belair Aegis; G. Bowie McCeney, publisher of the Laurel News Leader, and Elmer Martin Jackson, jr., general manager of the Annapolis Capital-Gazette Press. They were handed to Judge Bailey by Glenn T. James, publisher of the Record-Observer at Centerville and president of the association.

The argument against extension of the rules was based on contentions that they deprive the public of accurate information, lead to the loss of confidence in public officials and the democratic form of government, tend to foster corruption, and put the welfare of the accused above the welfare of the whole public.

The newspapermen pointed out that reporters depend upon the State's attorney, the sheriff, and the police for much of their information. If these sources are closed off, they said, garbled news and gossip result in a misinformed public. This, they added, could result in the circulation of detrimental and vicious stories about the officials.

"The rule," said the association statement, "might become a curtain drawn against public scrutiny of the police and courts. A free and unhampered press is one of the greatest safeguards citizens have in the administration of public affairs."

Play Center Field House Is Approved

Climaxing a decade of activity toward the erection of a recreation structure at Turkey Thicket, 10th st. and Michigan ave. ne., the District Recreation Board yesterday approved awarding a contract for the building of a field house.

The structure, first of three proposed units, will be built by the Joseph B. Bahen Construction Co. of 6220 3d st. nw for $44,450. It will include a large recreation room for indoor activities as well as office space.

When the other two units are completed, the structure will offer a combination gymnasium-auditorium, recreation activity rooms, showers, lockers, office and storage space. The first unit represents the first major construction project initiated by the Recreation Board since its organization in 1942, Harry S. Wender, chairman, said.

The building will be located on a 13.43 acre tract where outdoor facilities consisting of baseball, football, softball, tennis, basketball, volleyball, badminton and paddle tennis have been placed in operation.

6-Year-Old Girl And Cousin, 15, Victims of Polio

5 Cases Reported In District, One In Prince Georges; Area Total Is 88

Prince Georges County reported its first adult case of the year, a 24-year-old Radian Valley woman who is being treated at the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda.

The new cases brought the Washington total to 45, as compared with five as of this date last year. The Greater Washington total is now 88, as compared with only 13 this time last year.

Joseph J. Polvinale, 1809 B st. se., believes that his 6-year-old daughter, Dorothy, and her cousin, who became ill within a short time of each other, may have transmitted the disease from one to the other by exchanging bubble gum.

But Dr. C. C. Dauer, epidemiologist with the District Health Department, doubted bubble gum was a factor. The father said the children were playing together with bubble gum last Thursday or Friday, and Dr. Dauer pointed out the time between that and the time the girls became ill was too short for the polio virus to incubate.

"It requires 7 to 14 days for the polio virus to incubate," the doctor said. He said it could be transmitted by two children exchanging bubble gum, as could many other diseases, but he added he did not feel bubble gum was any particular factor. The prevailing opinion, he said, is that polio is transmitted by person-to-person contact.

Other polio cases reported here yesterday were a 5-year-old girl from the 1900 block of 23d st. se., who is being treated at Children's Hospital; a 16-year-old girl from the 2700 block of 29th st. se., being treated at Gallinger; and a 5-year-old girl from the unit block of Defrees st. nw., who is under treatment at Children's Hospital.

Polio Peak May Be Past, Health Unit Says

The Nation may have passed the peak of this summer's infantile paralysis outbreak, the United States Public Health Service said yesterday.

Health service officials said last week's case total showed the first drop since the week ended May 22. The peak probably has been reached in the three epidemic States of California, North Carolina and Texas, USPHS said, with some increases to be expected in northern area States within the next few weeks.

"Unless epidemic proportions are later reported in those areas, however," the report said, "it is quite possible that the peak of the disease has been reached for the country as a whole."

At Alexandria

X-Ray Plan To Include All Patients

Alexandria Hospital yestetrday announced a plan to start late this fall whereby every patient may be X-rayed on admission for $1 extra charge.

Sponsored jointly by the hospital and the Alexaindria Tuberculosis Association, the main purpose of the plan will be to discover tuberculosis in its early stages.

Besides tuberculosis, the hospital said, a routine X-ray also may turn up other hidden ilments such as bone and heart diseases and cancer.

Dr. A. C. Wyman, hospital radiologist, will be in charge of the work. The $1 fee will be to cover the cost of the X-ray. The Tuberculosis Association will pay for X-raying indigent patients, it was said.

Doctor Warns Against VD In Telecast

In the Nation's first television broadcast about venereal disease, Station WTTG last night presented a program warning of the alarming increase of gonorrhea in the District.

A doctor pointed out to a patient, during the program, that gonorrhea increased six-fold in the last six years and now infects three times as many persons here as do the next 10 communicable diseases, including syphilis.

This startling increase can be checked, the doctor reported, because the painless drug pencillin is quickly effective, in virtually all cases, with one or two swift injections.

The physician stated that symptoms of gonorrhea are pain in urination and appearance of an unusual discharge from the sex organs—more difficulty to detect in women.

With the aid of charts, the doctor pointed out that most victims are young, median age of female victims being 21½ and of males, 23.

Gonorrhea cases increased to 12,934 last year, as against only 2296 cases in 1941, the doctor said. Persons who suspect they have the disease were advised to call the District Health Department's venereal disease information number, MEtropolitan 4600, for information about free treatment at clinics or referral to private physicians.

I. Lee Potter Indorsed for County Board

Builder I. Lee Potter last night was indorsed for the Arlington County Board by Arlington's Better Government League. The action was taken in a meeting attended by 25 persons—including two candidates seeking support.

In the past when the league has indorsed a candidate for county office, it has asked other aspirants to withdraw so as to concentrate independent support behind the one indorsed.

Last night, however, only two candidates out of the five seeking the one board position open this fall were present.

One of them, Coast and Geodetic Survey employe H. Herbert Howe, said he would definitely not withdraw from the race and, instead, he resigned from the league.

He accused Potter of being "sympathetic" with real estate interests and charged county independents and Republicans had entered a "deal." Potter is vice chairman of the County Republican Executive Committee. Earlier Howe had resigned from the Citizen's Committee for School Improvement when that group also voted to back Potter.

County board candidates who failed to present themselves for indorsement at last night's meeting were: Board incumbent Alfred A. Frisbie, the Democratic nominee and a stockbroker; independent Francis J. Clair, a free-lance writer; and Jacob Bechtel, a retired carpenter.

Better Government League Chairman Malcolm Miller denied any deal with Republicans in Potter's selection. He said Potter had been picked on his own merits.

Rent increases on 162 apartments in the Cathedral Mansions Center, 3000 Connecticut ave. nw., and on 134 units in the Keystone Apartments at 2150 Pennsylvania ave. nw., were recommended yesterday by District Rent Examiner William F. Mansfield.

A 7 per cent rent boost was recommended on the Cathedral Mansions apartments. Present rents range from $31.50 a month for one-room-and-bath unit to $100 a month for five-room-and-two-bath units. Proposed rents are from $33.75 to $107. The owners had asked for an 11 per cent rise.

An 8.8 per cent rent rise was recommended on the Keystone units. Present rents range from $43 for one-room-and-bath units to $72.50 for three-room-and-bath units. Proposed rents are from $46.75 to $79. The owners had asked for a 13.75 per cent rent boost.

Riding 2 on a Bike May Be 1-Way Trip

That was the warning issued last night by George R. Hammond, safety and education director of the American Automobile Association's division here.

Hammond said there had been an alarming increase in bicycle accidents in Eastern States and the District of Columbia much of it due to "plain carelessness."

It is illegal to ride on the handlebars of a bicycle, Hammond said, "nor may the bike enthusiast 'drive within or across any sidewalk area except at a permanent or temporary driveway.'"

Hammond said major faults of bike riders seen in Greater Washington are: Riding double—one on the crossbars; failure to obey stop signs and traffic lights, which are meant for bicyclists as well as motorists, and lastly "hitching rides."

Dollar Value Rules Bequest To Cathedral

Whether or not the Washington National Cathedral gets a bequest of more than $20,000 depends on the value of the dollar.

This is an odd feature of the will of Miss Janet Buchanan Grover, daughter of the late Gen. Cuvier Grover. She resided in Washington for many years, but died in Boston in April, 1946, leaving an estate of more than $158,000.

The will is now being probated in District Court.

Miss Grover divided the bulk of her estate into parts, but stated in her will dated 1938 that "if at the time of my death our U. S. money be further deflated so that it would be more difficult or impossible" to carry out her intentions, two items were to be deleted from the will. Those were bequests to the Cathedral and the American Academy in Rome for scholarships.

Justice Richmond B. Keech signed an order giving all persons interested in the Grover estate 40 days to intervene, before the court determines what should be done with the disputed parts of the will.

The American Security & Trust Co. told the court that it wanted instructions "because of the inflationary conditions" existing today.

If the court should determine that the dollar has been devalued because of inflation too far below the 1938 level, the shares due the American Academy in Rome and the Cathedral would go to the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States for domestic and foreign missionary work.

The court must also determine disposition of another $10,000 bequest left to Elena, deposed queen of Italy. This money was to be distributed by the former Queen for Italian charities. But she is now in exile and it is felt that she might not be able to carry out the provisions of the will.

Miss Grover also left $10,000 to be awarded to a cadet of the United States Military Academy graduating "the year following my death." The court was asked to decide whether the lucky cadet should be of the class of June, 1946 or 1947.

New Law Slaps Prince Georges Trailerites

By Phillip Austensen
Post Reporter

Even the President of the United States couldn't do anything about it. Or at least he didn't answer the plea of Mrs. Catherine Orlean, a former Wave that he save her trailer home for her family.

Prince Georges County is cracking down on trailers and all the permanent additions of the past several years must be torn down. Trailers must be just that—not part of a house. They also have to stand on their own wheels, the law decrees.

Head of the Orleans family formerly was known as Lieut. Frank W. Orleans, United States Army Air Force. Close quarters were not so bad until along came David, now 17 months, and Diane, 3 months.

Like many other families at the Cherry Hill Trailer Park, Berwyn, Md., the Orleans added a closed-in addition to their trailer. They were "snug as a bug in a rug" until the new trailer law was enacted at the special session of the General Assembly making the permanent addition illegal.

Mrs. Orleans took the matter to their old Commander-in-Chief, but no reply came from the White House. The little family now has decided to move trailer, additiona and all to Anne Arundel County where the law is more friendly to trailer families.

Morris Gurevich, proprietor of the camp, has told all of his approximately 100 tenants that he intends to comply with the law and that the offending additions must come down before the September 1 deadline.

Approximately 60 per cent of residents of his camp are veterans, a recent survey showed. Gurevich also will comply with new rules requiring hard-surfaced streets and allotment of 1000 square feet to each trailer, and other innovations.

He sighed as he looked at the knoll back of the camp where he intended building himself a home. "No use now. The money is going into the new requirements," he sighed.

"I always believe in obeying the law. I wish they had allowed us a little more time, though."

One family spent nearly $1000 on an addition with hardwood floor and insulated walls and ceilings, which also must come down. Occupants gave up their home to their son and his family since return of the veteran son. They have fenced in their plot and have an attractive cottage; it too, must come down. They are employed at the Bureau of Engraving.

Most of the trailer occupants have pulled down the sides of their porches already. A platform with an awning over it is legal.

But for the de luxe fixings, there doesn't seem to be any remedy.

Internal Revenue Up $2.75 Billion

Internal revenue collections jumped 2.75 billion dollars in the fiscal year ended June 30, over the previous year, the Treasury reported yesterday.

Scholarship Will Honor Auto Victim

A memorial scholarship fund in the name of Charles Mervin Johnston, 21-year-old Washington ministerial student, will be set up at Bob Jones University, Greensville, S. C.

Mr. Johnston was killed in an automobile accident Monday as he was returning to the college from a weekend in Washington. Three other passengers were slightly injured when the car turned over near Gaffney, S. C.

Funeral services for the young man were conducted yesterday afternoon at the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw. by his father, the Rev. Irving D. Johnston.

Father Is Ordained Minister

The father, an ordained Presbyterian minister, is a hydraulic engineer at the Federal Power Commission. He lives at the Mission and does volunteer work there.

In announcing Charles' death, the family requested that flowers be omitted. They asked, rather, that the money which would normally go for flowers be used for the scholarship.

Native of Texas

Young Johnston, a native of Texas, had attended Greenbelt elementary school and Langley and Anacostia Junior High Schools here, Bob Jones Academy, and was in his sophomore year at the university.

Seven years ago, when Mrs. Johnston died, friends used money which would have been spent for flowers to establish a memorial to her at the Greenbelt Community Church.

Survivors, in addition to the father, include a brother, Carl I. Johnston, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Johnston Shipley, both of Washington.

Mrs. Laura H. Koop

Mrs. Laura H. Koop, 78, mother of Theodore F. Koop, Washington news editor for the Columbia Broadcasting System, died Tuesday of a heart attack at her son's apartment in the Woodley Park Towers, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw. She had been ill for about two months.

A native of Monticello, Iowa, Mrs. Koop was graduated from the Monticello High School in 1887. The year following her graduation she was married to Frederick W. Koop, a Monticello merchant who died in 1913. She lived in Monticello until she joined her son, who was with the Associated Press in New York City prior to coming to Washington in 1936.

Besides her son, Mrs. Koop is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. H. Johnson of Ottumwa, Iowa, and Mrs. E. D. Merikle of Tucson, Ariz.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be Saturday in Monticello.

Woman's Purse Stolen From Pew as She Prays

A woman's pocketbook containing $65 was stolen from the pew beside her last evening as she knelt in prayer.

SlainGunman's British Wife Held for Jury

Mrs. Jean K. Lincoln, 22, English wife of the gunman who was slain while trying to hold up the Whitestone Hotel here, was held under $10,000 bond yesterday for grand jury action on a robbery charge.

The British war bride appeared briefly in Municipal Court for arraignment on a charge of participating with her husband, Edward, 26, in the holdup robbery of the Bellevue Hotel, 15 E st. nw., last Friday.

After her court appearance, Mrs. Lincoln was taken to District Jail. Later, however, she was permitted to leave the jail under guard to visit the Gawler funeral home, 1750 Pennsylvania ave. nw., where she viewed her husband's body.

Wife Bursts Into Tears

She remained there a few minutes, burst into tears and then was escorted back to jail, police said. Lincoln's body is to be shipped back to his home in Colorado.

At court, reporters were allowed to interview Mrs. Lincoln, who came to the country three years ago.

"I want everyone to know," she said, "that my husband was not a hardened criminal. He might have stolen from people but he wouldn't harm a soul."

She declined to talk about Tuesday, when her husband walked into the Whitestone, gun in hand, and was fatally shot by Douglas L. Farr, 34, night manager there.

"How did you and your husband get started in robbery?" she was asked.

"Edward was a bulldozer operator," she said. "We found that wherever we could get a place to live, he couldn't get a job, and where he could get a job, we couldn't find a place to live. So we started traveling."

Participated in Eight Robberies

She estimated that her husband participated in eight robberies while she knew him. Police said he was wanted for holdups in Long Beach, Calif., Detroit, Chicago, Richmond, Baltimore, Newark as well as Washington.

The Whitestone holdup was to be his last stickup she said. They planned to go to New York with the proceeds, get jobs and finally to go to England where she believed he would work in the reconstruction of London.

She repeatedly asked that the British Embassy be informed of her case. Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short said the embassy had been notified but declined to intervene.

Luchs Wills Old Friend $5400 a Year

Mrs. Della Dombhart of 4707 Connecticut ave. nw. will receive $5400 annually under the will of the late Sylvan J. Luchs, a real estate executive, who died here August 2 at the age of 68.

The will of Mr. Luchs was filed for probate in District Court yesterday. It recites that he left $83,000 exclusive of an undisclosed amount in insurance policies.

Mr. Luchs was a bachelor and a native of Washington. He was associated with the firm of Shannon & Luchs and retired 10 years ago. His residence was the Woodley Park Towers.

The will guarantees Mrs. Dombhart the yearly stipend, and authorizes the executors to take proceeds of the life insurance policies to make up the $5400 a year if necessary.

Wallace Luchs, jr., a nephew and attorney for the estate, said that Mrs. Dombhart is a "longtime personal friend of the Luchs family."

There are other minor bequests.

Upon the death of Mrs. Dombhart, the entire estate will be divided among Wallace Luchs, Frank J. Luchs, another nephew, and a member of the Shannon & Luchs firm, and a niece, Mrs. Frances Luchs Legum, 3530 Cumberland st. nw.

Details about Mrs. Dombhart were scanty. She was described as middle-aged, was at one time a manicurist in a Connecticut ave. shop, and later tended Mr. Luchs when he became ill.

Mrs. Mary M. Allen

Mrs. Mary Mulvihill Allen, widow of Henry A. Allen, a former New York stockbroker, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital.

She leaves three nieces, Mrs. Katherine C. Bready and Mrs. Mary Ellen McEnery, both of Washington, and Mrs. William Stanton of Oakland, Calif., and two nephews, Eugene J. Sullivan of this city and J. J. Mulvihill of Oakland.

A funeral service will be held at 8:30 a. m. Friday at Collins funeral home, 3821 14th st. nw., followed by a requiem mass at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

No August Doldrums Noted

Lush Parties Are Match For Flamboyant Settings As Hollywood Entertains

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 25.—Out here in Hollywood August doldrums don't exist. Californians tan torsos by day, sleep under blankets nights. Entertaining is done on a more restrained tone than before but the settings are still breathtakingly flamboyant. Doyen of exquisite hosts is Sir Charles Mendl, husband of Elsie De Wolfe, the famous interior decorator. While Lady Mendl is summering in Versailles entertaining international set survivors Sir Charles carries on in the film capital.

The Mendl house is a dream of delight, its high raftered living room painted dead white, lit by huge lamps in the shape of Venetian blackamoors, done in white plaster touched up with vivid green, with tiny jeweled ornaments, earrings and such. The white leather divans are piled with green cushions embroidered with wittily wise quotations.

There's a bamboo bar, the stools, comfortable settees, even the glass-topped tables upholstered in Lady Mendl's favorite leopard skin fabric. The dinner table's set in the flagged patio, an enormous affair centered by a big tree softly floodlit and trimmed with four fat, white silken ropes a-dangle with giant tassels.

The food prepared by a Filipino chef is literally out of this world. Dinner, starting off with fresh green pea soup adrift with crisp croutons followed by a curry, asparagus, innumerable other dishes, is finaled with a rich strawberry mousse accompanied by a tray of assorted fruits, jumbo strawberries, figs, heaven knows what else.

Stars Model Own Frocks

THE other night Cobina Wright, who is about to debut as a Hollywood columnist for Mr. Hearst's San Francisco Examiner, gave what was rather loosely called a champagne supper. Everyone turned up around 10:30, sat on sofas, chairs, the floor while an informal fashion show passed in review.

The gowns were made by Marusha, the Polish wife of radio announcer Don Wilson. Marusha Wilson started designing dresses as a way of making money for Polish relief, was immediately successful and now has launched into a profitable wholesale business.

The models were stars wearing the creations they had bought for their personal wardrobes. There was Dinah Shore whose hair is cut very very short and tinted in the peculiar orange so fashionable hereabouts; Binnie Barnes, who tripped in and out shy as a rabbit; Lucille Vanderbilt, the slim, dark Mexican-born third wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt; and, prettiest of all, sparkling starlet Ann Miller, who has an infectious smile, wears her dark hair in a huge mass of curls pinned up in the back and is fresh as a button.

Among the Guests

SITTING on the sofas were such Hollywood notables as Atwater Kent, the amiable Philadelphian, who is devoting his far from declining days to giving parties, presents and other agreeable evidences of generosity; Marina, daughter of the great singer Nina Kosehetz; Mrs. Ray Milland whose vital white hair swoops handsomely, Judy Garland, Joan Fontaine and so on.

Except for their expensive dresses and sprinklings of gems they all looked surprisingly nice and unmovielike. Regrettably, young masculine movie stars also look alike to a Washingtonian. They're tanned, muscular, have lots of hair, nothing startling to contribute conversationally. Exception, though, is half Turkish Turhan Bey who is agreeably intelligent and fun to boot.

After the show supper was served in the terraced garden. The stars shrugged into their platinum mink stoles, and braziers, filled with glowing coals, were thoughtfully provided to warm those in lower echelons who hadn't, as yet, achieved such elegant pelt coverage. The food itself was most exquisitely decorated—we say decorated advisedly—big bowls of salad every leaf, every whorl of avacado, just so, platters of fruits and olives, nuts, all sorts of Pacific delicacies—figs, for instance, coated in creamy cheese then rolled in flaked nuts.

Late in the evening the local columnists arrived after, we suppose, a similar round of entertainments—led off by Hedda Hopper who is as gay as she is shrewd, more fun than a score of stars rolled into one. Visiting firemen include anything from New York decorators to Igor Stravinsky, jr., photographers like Jerome Zerbe to weekenders from Santa Barbara like Mrs. Josh Cosden who has made a tremendous success also in interior decorating. And overall there was an obligingly full moon while far below the red, green, yellow lights of Los Angeles crickled in the still air.

New York Decorator Is Host

ANOTHER night Pierre Dutel, a New York decorator out to do over a few Hollywood palaces, gave a dinner at the Bill Gardners. The smallish house all on one floor was filled with beautiful French furniture. Outside the terrace, beyond a scrap of very green lawn, a swimming pool shaped very much like a human foot was lit from underneath. An accordion player pulled his stops dreamily sitting beside the pool.

Inside Pierre Dutel had run up enchanting special decorations—huge straw hats filled with flowers, one placed casually over a mirror, another all scarlet gladiolas, carnations and green ribbon bows atop the piano. A third hat, an openwork affair, was trimmed with knitting needles, bows of colored wool, spools of thread and given as a gag to Hedda Hopper.

The dinner started off with champagne bowl—champagne made as a punch with sliced peaches and other delightful ingredients—continued on through a rice tafel—a magnificent collection of lovely tasting things to toss on rice and curried chicken, then ended with slices of frozen eggnog.

Each of the ladies was given a flower trimmed sandalwood fan and special ladies were allowed to take home the flower laden hats. Queen beeing it was Constance Collier who for the first time in nine years has been acting on the legitimate stage.

And so it goes—a far different world than Washington. Hardest workers amongst all this lushness are Los Angeles' equivalent of Washington's Diplomatic Corps—the Consul Generals. Outstanding are Sasha de Manziarly, the French representative, and Robert Henry Hadow, of Great Britain who, until a few months ago, was the counselor of the British Embassy in Washington. While De Manziarly spreads Gallic charm and encourages things cultural "Shadow" has cut himself an exhausting speaking tour talking at every kind of civic gathering. His energy is a constant surprise and as a result he has done much needed British propaganda uplift on these shores which are far indeed from rationed Britain and the badly explained mechanics of the Marshall Plan.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Line for Her Grandfather's Substantial Estate, Wife Asks How to Tell Husband He Can't Spend It, As He Did Her Other Legacies

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My grandfather's estate is now being settled and the lawyers say I will inherit about twenty-five thousand dollars net. When my husband heard this he immediately planned the spending of it, to enlarge and improve his small business.

I said nothing then, but that definitely isn't where the money is going and my problem is how to break the news to him without breaking up our home also.

Twice before I've had smaller legacies which I turned over to him, on his promise that I was to receive a percentage of the net income with no questions asked, but so far I haven't received a cent. From the time he started this business, every spare penny has been plowed back into it.

Live Hand-to-Mouth With Seven Children

WE HAVE a large family, seven children, and we are still in the same small house we rented when we first married. Our furniture is a wreck, the curtains in shreds, we need sheets so badly that a rainy washday is a major calamity, the rugs are threadbare and all the children need clothes.

I know that if I give Larry this money, we will still be in this house 10 years from now, only by then there will be several more children. Therefore I intend to use grandfather's money to make a substantial down payment on a really big house, furnish it comfortably and keep the balance (if any) in my name for emergencies.

I realize that money troubles are merely symptoms of deeper disturbances, and I know what they are in our case, also that there is no cure or even hope of alleviation except what time may bring; but in the meantime I intend to live as comfortably as possible. So, is there any way to tell Larry this, without antagonizing him too much? N. C.

Man's Intent Isn't Artless

DEAR N. C.: There is an old saying, "First be sure you are right, then go ahead." That's the motto to keep in mind, in denying Larry the spending of your latest and largest legacy.

No matter how you phrase the decision, which on every count seems justified, he will display antagonism, not because he will sincerely believe he's being mistreated, but rather because he will feel accused, by implication, of wrongful behavior in aspiring to hog the gift, as he has done twice before, and his angry defensiveness will derive from his own convictions of guilt on that score.

His manner of taking for granted that he is to have the spending of your money is a canny maneuver intended to vote himself the prize before you've had time to dissent, and he hopes to create the illusion in your mind that of course it's for him, as nominal head of the house. In brief, he's not voicing artless assumption.

Faltering Appeal Isn't Advisable

WHEN his hand is called, his past success in getting away with your legacies after some verbal tussle, will cause him to trade on a marginal chance of "bulling" his purpose through again this time, and because the stake is large and his childish cupidity great, he will give you a very disagreeable time in the first rounds, I daresay,—i. e., while testing the strength of your stand.

Larry's fiscal policies, also his fumbling at being in business for himself, where he barely keeps afloat (lacking aptitude for commercial enterprise or public service), are sparked by low self-regard. He is under compulsion to act big, to compensate for acute inferiority feelings.

Hence his insistence on being his own boss, also his dislike of your having money of your own, which (he thinks) would leave him no advantage whatever in dealing with your literally bigger and better personality. He is a childish fellow, and at this crossroad you should treat him accordingly, defining and defending your dear-bought decision with calm finality.

Antiques Add To Charm of Home of '48

ANTIQUE bibelots, pictures, and clocks will add to the charm of the house in Columbia Pines to be furnished by the Hecht Company for the "Homes of '48" exhibit in September. Jay Owens, who heads the interior decorating service at Hechts, lived in France and Italy for several years and collected some of these engaging articles then. Others are American antiques. Furniture in the model home will be Eighteenth Century reproductions, and the old accessories will go well with these. The antiques, Mr. Owen says, are not expensive ones, ranging in price from $5 up. The Columbia Pines house, which is being built by S. Weinberg & Sons near Annandale, Va., is one of 12 which will be open to the public for 4 weeks, beginning September 12. They comprise the "Homes of '48" exhibit, sponsored by The Washington Post, 12 local builders and 12 local furniture dealers

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

AN old French Provincial clock of painted tin will decorate the wall in one of the rooms; beneath it will hang an English Staffordshire plaque in a mariner's arms design. The pretty miss is Fran Gorbutt, of Hecht's interior decorating staff

JAY OWENS, director of the recently expanded decorating service at Hecht's, holds an English Staffordshire whippet figurine in this picture. The French print of an American Indian on the wall, the china Indian Head jar on the table, the brass candlestick behind it, and the old globe at the right will be used in the boys' room of the Columbia Pines house

Architect Designs Pattern for Making Functional Bed

A handsome, functional bed and headboard are easy to construct at home when you follow the furniture pattern presented in the September "Right on the Job" issue of Charm, the magazine for the business girl.

Designed by Klaus Grabe, noted architect, this modern bed and headboard combine to provide maximum comfort and space for bedside essentials. The bed can be built to any size to fit any standard mattress, says Charm. The headboard, 30 inches high, is an independent unit; its twin shelves will accommodate a small radio, books, a telephone, ash trays and other incidentals. The top shelves are placed so that bedside lamps will cast a comfortable reading light.

From sturdy plywood, a carpenter or lumber dealer can cut the wood pieces for you according to the pattern's specifications. The ability to wield a few simple tools and the application of your own good common sense, says Charm, are the only requirements for assembling the furniture.

Home Topics

Giving the bed springs a coat of white or cream-colored paint will prevent rust stains on the mattress and bedding.

When the first course of the dinner is a cold one, save confusion by having it on the table before the guests are called.

If you must stack the dishes for future washing, try to find time to let the cold water run over them while you are piling them. It will mean a much easier job for you when you come back to them.

Uruguayans Celebrate National Holiday

NATIONAL DAY of Uruguay was celebrated yesterday at a small reception held by the Minister and Senora de Mora in their apartment at Hotel 2400. Members of the embassy staff and Uruguayan colony attended. The date dates back to August 25, 1825, when Uruguay declared her independence from Spain.

To Attend Conference

There will be an annual student leaders conference at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., preceding the opening of the College on September 13. Young Washington women who will attend the conference are Miss Ruth Elizabeth Averill, Miss Katherine Gordon Gantz, Miss Shirley Hill, Miss Rosemary Tollefson, and Miss Jacqueline Ann Cease. This is the 116th year in the history of Stephens College.

An Idea for Flowers

Fill a gaily painted watering can with flowers or branches of shrubs when you want to send flowers to the hospital. The watering can will help later in adding fresh water to other bouquets adds Better Homes and Gardens. You can use the inexpensive type found at the dime-store toy counter.

Wax for Walls

Apply liquid or self-polishing wax to newly washed painted walls when thoroughly dry. Better Homes and Gardens says this will restore luster and resist fingerprints and soil.

How to Care for Mirrors

In these days of so many mirrors it is well to know a few facts concerning them.

Never hang a mirror where it faces a glare of light.

The back of the mirror should be protected so that no light or water can possibly enter.

When cleaning, be careful about using so much water that it trickles under the frame. A semidry method of cleaning is preferable.

Hang the mirror where it adds to the size as well as attractiveness of the room. A couple of well-hung mirrors can do wonders to the small living room.

Freezing for Two Is Economical Food Saving

By Cecily Brownstone

If you're a new homemaker you may have wondered whether a freezing cabinet is practical for everyday meals for two. If you buy an appropriate freezer model—one that is small and gives you table-top use—and use it well, it can be a most economical investment both from the point of view of your budget and your time.

Seasonal foods can be stored in the freezer when they are at their peak and best in price, too. You can have untold variety for two and save time because you can prepare food in the regular quantities given for a family of four to six, freeze it in two-person packages, and eat it at various meals.

Just to show you how this works, here is a special freezer menu with recipe suggestions. If you have a freezer you can use the menu and recipes right away. If not you can still use them for two plus company.

FREEZER MENU
Fried Chicken
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Tossed Vegetable Salad
Parkerhouse Rolls
Chocolate Ice Cream Roll

Fried Chicken

Fry a 2½ to 3-pound chicken by a standard recipe, using the skillet or oven-fried method. When it is ready, place the part to be frozen in the refrigerator to chill. Then package the chilled cooked chicken in meal-for-two size portions by wrapping in aluminum foil. Place in the freezing cabinet to freeze. To serve, the frozen fried chicken can be thawed and then heated in the oven, or it can go directly from the freezing cabinet to the oven to thaw and heat.

Candied Sweet Potatoes

Prior to freezing, cook six sweet potatoes (medium-sized) in boiling water to cover until nearly tender. Peel and cut them lengthwise in one half inch slices. Place in a shallow greased baking dish and sprinkle lightly with salt and paprika. Sprinkle with three quarters cup brown sugar, a half teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1½ teaspoons lemon juice; dot them with two tablespoons of butter or margarine. Bake uncovered in a moderate (375 F.) oven for 20 minutes. In preparing sweet potatoes for freezing, undercook a little to allow for reheating. Cool. The sweet potatoes should then be packaged for freezing in meal-sized portions for two, either in waxed paper cup containers or small special glass freezing jars. To thaw, reheat in oven, and serve hot.

Tossed Vegetable Salad

This is the only dish on the menu for which freezing is not recommended. Salad materials should be kept in a refrigerator and the salad prepared just before the meal is served. As a different kind of salad for this particular menu try putting young spinach leaves, carrots, celery, cabbage, onions—in any amount desired—through the coarse blade of a grinder. Moisten this kind of salad-relish well with French dressing or a well-flavored thinned mayonnaise or creamy salad dressing.

Parkerhouse Rolls

Make up a batch of Parkerhouse rolls from a standard yeast roll recipe. After baking and removing from the pans allow the rolls to cool. Divide them into meal-for-two size portions and package each portion in a cellophane sheet or bag. Heat seal and freeze. To serve, let frozen rolls stand in their wrappings for 34 to 40 minutes at room temperature, then place in oven for quick heating.

Chocolate Ice Cream Roll

Ingredients: ½ cup sifted cake flour ¼ cup cocoa, ¾ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, ¾ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 quart vanilla or coffee ice cream.

Method: Sift together the flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt. Separate eggs, putting whites in a large bowl, yolks into a smaller one. Beat eggs whites until just stiff and gradually beat in 6 tablespoons of the sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time. Using the same beater, whip egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually beat in the remaining sugar, then the vanilla and the cold water. Fold egg yolk mixture into beaten egg whites until just blended. Fold dry ingredients into egg mixture, sifting in about ¼ cup at a time. Occasionally scrape down sides of bowl. Turn into jelly roll pan (about 9½ by 13½ by ¾ inches) that has been greased and lined with waxed paper, then greased again. Slash batter with a knife to break up air bubbles. Bake in a moderate (375 F.) oven for 15 to 18 minutes or until surface springs back when pressed slightly. Working quickly, trim off crisp edges with sharp knife. Turn upside down on a clean towel dusted with a confectioner's sugar, lift off pan, and immediately peel off paper. Turn short end of cake up and over to make a firm close fold. Roll quickly and carefully and closely wrap in towel. Cool thoroughly. When cool, unroll, spread with ice cream and roll up again.

Pennsylvania Dutch Recipes Unearthed for Bicentennial

Reading and Berks Countys, Pa., are celebrating their two hundredth anniversary this month (August 14 to September 6) and a treasure trove of recipes has been unearthed in honor of the event.

They're all included in "The Bicentennial Cook Book," which has just been published by the Berks County Federation of Women's Clubs. Every attic, corner, and cranny of the many historical homesteads in the Pennsylvania Dutch country was searched in collecting these recipes, many of which have never before been published.

Present-day favorites are found in the book, too, as well as such old-time dishes as funny cake, pfeffernuese, schnitz un knepp, moravian cake, milch rivil soup, and shoo-fly cake. The volume is charmingly decorated with old Dutch motifs.

One recipe that was a favorite in great-grandma's day and is now being served at homecoming parties in Berks County is this one:

DUTCH POTATO CAKE

2 large potatoes
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup lard or other shortening
1 yeast cake, dissolved in ½ cup lukewarm water
4 cups flour

Boil the pared potatoes in enough water to cover. Drain off potato water and save. Mash potatoes and beat lightly. Measure the potato water and add more water if necessary, to make 1½ pints. Combine with rest of ingredients, using enough flour to make a rather stiff batter. Cover and let rise in warm place until morning. Knead in the morning, adding as much flour as is necessary again. Spread well in greased tins and when light (about 1½ hours) brush melted butter over top. Stew with rivels (crumbs).

RIVELS (Crumbs)

½ cup flour
2 tablespoons butter

Crumble together and sprinkle on top of cake. Bake in medium oven (350 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Forum Discusses Marriage Pitfalls

A group of "marrieds" gave their idea of marriage today in a forum held at the Willard Hotel yesterday afternoon. The forum was held in connection with opening of the motion picture, "Pitfall," which treats of a happy family and the other woman. The picture opens today at the Warner Theater.

Among the participants in the forum was a couple who had been married 48 years. Mr. and Mrs. James Parker, now attending the Spanish-American War Veterans' convention in Washington, attributed their happiness to the teamwork in the family. Marriage was a 50-50 proposition with them, they said.

One married man said in his opinion a marriage without children is false. Mrs. Harvey Barr thought jealousy and money matters broke up the American homes. All participants agreed that honesty in marriage is essential.

Girl Scout and Guide Delegates Are Entertained at White House

By Nicha Soure

The international delegates from the Twelfth World Conference of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides—wearing different costumes and speaking different languages but united in purpose, were received at the White House at tea yesterday at 5 p. m. Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, received the guests in the absence of Mrs. Truman.

Earlier yesterday, the group was taken on tour of the Capitol, the Supreme Court and the Library of Congress by members of the D. C. League of Women Voters. Talking and taking notes the group asked interested questions about the working of the Government. "Does the United States have State and Federal Courts?" "How do the two houses of Congress work?" Lecturers and guides did their best to answer the numerous questions.

Although the delegates arrived late Wednesday night after a bus trip from Cooperstown, N. Y., where the 10-day conference was held, their energy seemed endless as they walked from building to building. Among the group were approximately 12 delegates from Brazil who were flown to New York by a plane chartered by the Brazilian government.

At the Capitol the international scouts and guides were welcomed by Senator Elbert D. Thomas, senior Senator from Utah. The Senator said that our national foundation can be likened to a cornerstone or a square. In one corner belongs George Washington and in the other Abraham Lincoln because they have earned the right to be there. In the third corner is the person whom the American citizen wants to honor, as Thomas Jefferson, Woodrow Wilson or Benjamin Franklin. But the fourth corner is forever vacant so that every boy or girl may project himself into it.

The group had lunch in the National Art Gallery cafeteria and stayed in the air-conditioned comfort of the gallery until they went to the White House for tea.

Today the delegates will visit Mount Vernon and Arlington Cemetery and will be guests at a reception at the Army-Navy Country Club. The delegates will leave for their homes tomorrow.

Harris & Ewing

THE Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are points of interest to Girl Scout and Girl Guide delegates who yesterday took a tour of the Capitol, Supreme Court and the Library of Congress. Members of the D. C. League of Women Voters were hostesses at the tour to the 40-odd delegates from all parts of the world. Mrs. Charles F. Brannan (right), wife of the Secretary of Agriculture and treasurer of the league, answers the numerous questions of (left to right) Mrs. G. A. Vicente, Philippines; Mrs. C. E. Peereboom-Kikkert, The Netherlands; Mrs. Begum G. A. Khan, Pakistan, and Princess Maria Massimo-Lancellotti, who is from Italy

Woman Heads Trade Unions Of Britain

London, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A woman of 55, who as an orphan at the age of 12 earned $1.60 a week as a cafe dishwasher, has become the labor boss of all England.

She is Miss Florence Hancock, who will take over the presidency of the all-powerful British Trades Union Congress when it opens its annual conference September 6 at Margate.

The T. U. C. is the British equivalent of the AFL or CIO. But it is even stronger, since its leaders to a large extent control the Socialist government. T. U. C. leaders are a shadow cabinet, and Miss Hancock will become the shadow premier.

Representing eight million British workers in mines, factories, shipyards, transportation, cotton mills, shoe factories and the clothing trades, the congress will meet under the direction of its new woman chief to debate all questions affecting British socialism.

Their decisions will become directives for Prime Minister Clement Attlee's Labor government.

Born in England's west country, Miss Hancock went out to work as a dishwasher in a restaurant when her mother and father died. She had to support herself, her two little brothers and a small sister on her meager wage. She had just turned 12.

From the cafe's kitchen she went to work in a condensed milk factory. There she began to awaken to the suffering, starvation and exploitation of the English poor. She decided to take up trade union organization and began a career which led to the top post in the British labor movement.

About Painting Metal Figurines

I have two old metal figures of Viking warriors which I plan to paint and use as bases for two lamps. Kindly advise me what kind of paint to use on metal. I cleaned the figures with a detergent and a residue formed in all the crevices. How can I remove this residue? I don't think the paint will go on and adhere properly over it. Is there a hobby shop I can go to where I can buy the paint and receive instructions in doing this sort of work? Where can I have the figures wired and where can I buy gilt shades? R. Y. G.

You can remove all traces of the residue from the crevices together with any remaining rust or finish by brushing vigorously with a wire brush. When all loose particles have been removed, wash the figures with turpentine to remove every trace of oil or grease.

To paint them, use any paint or enamel you wish. Just thin it before applying by adding one-fourth as much turpentine as you have paint. Or, if you wish a high gloss, possibly one of the auto enamels which can be purchased at auto accessory stores would give you the finish you wish. Use these as they come from the can, for they are designed for use on metals.

In regard to your receiving instructions for the work, a representative of a hobby shop in Georgetown suggests that the painting job is really so simple that you should be able to do it easily yourself at home with the foregoing suggestions.

A lamp firm on G st., which can be reached by calling National 0140, will wire the figures. It seems that the best way to get gilt shades to fit is to have them custom made. The above firm does such work. For other firms making shades to order, look under "Lamps" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

What is the best way to remove the crust from the gas stove burner pipes? E. F.

Remove the burner pipes from the stove and place them in a large container with a rounded tablespoon of washing soda to each 2 quarts of boiling water. There should be enough solution to completely cover the burners. Allow to stand 30 minutes or more and then scrub with a stiff brush. Dry thoroughly before returning them to the stove.

I used bleach to remove stains from a pair of my husband's wash trousers. It left the spots yellow as lemon rinds. Is there anything I can do to remove this discoloration made by bleach? G. B. S.

The color has apparently been removed from the light spots by the bleach and the only way to eliminate the spots is to redye the entire garment a darker shade. Sometimes on a nonwashable garment just the spots can be successfully touched up with dye, but on a washable garment this would not be satisfactory.

I have just purchased a lightweight water-repellant coat. It has a very obnoxious, fishy odor which I didn't notice at the time I purchased it. I returned to the store later and noticed that all of the similar coats had the same odor which the clerk said was due to the treatment given the material. I have constantly aired my coat but the fishy odor remains. I feel quite self-conscious about this. Can you suggest any remedy for this condition? E. M.

I feel certain that this odor will disappear as the coat is used. Hanging it, when not in use, where it will be in the sun and air will do much to hasten the process. In the meantime you might try spraying it with a solution sold at housewares departments of most department stores for preventing mildew, for this produce also deodorizes.

What is the correct way to introduce one couple to another? E. F.

If there is no marked difference between the ages of the couples being introduced, it makes no difference which woman's name is called first. Introduce Mrs. A to Mrs. B and then Mrs. A to Mr. B. Next introduce Mrs. B to Mr. A and lastly introduce the two men. If one couple is much older or more distinguished than the other, their names should be said first in the introductions.

My linoleum sink top has become discolored and worn. Can you tell me what paint to use to refinish it? Also, what to use to protect the new finish from water, scuffing, etc. It gets a great deal of wear. E. E. H.

You can use any good enamel or paint to resurface the linoleum. Be sure to remove all old wax, grease or oil from the surface before painting by going over it with benzine. (Take every precaution against fire by working in a well-ventilated room away from open flames, because benzine is inflammable.) Several well-buffed coats of wax over the dried paint will add to its serviceability. Or, you could apply a coat of high grade spar varnish over the paint. Spar varnish gives a hard finish which resists water and wear excellently.

Can you tell me where I can rent bingo equipment for a social my club plans on having? K. E. W.

A local toy and novelty store rents such equipment. For further information, telephone the shop at National 1586.

Your column is a must with me and I have learned so many useful hints that I would like to pass on to your interested readers the formula I have used successfully many times for removing ink from any kind of material that water does not spot (cotton, rayon, and woolen) and also after the garment has been dry cleaned.

Soften the ink spot with No. 1 ink eradicator (from the sets sold in stationery stores and the like). Then, with a clean cloth or a small brush moistened with warm water and pure, mild soap, sponge or brush the spot. Rinse with warm water until all trace of the soap is removed. Repeat the process if necessary.

I have used this formula on colored clothes as well as white material. The latest ink-removing job was on my husband's tan gabardine trousers and it was most successful. I have also used this formula on a black-and-white checked woolen dress as well as on a number of other things, and have never ruined anything by using this method. NEVER use the No. 2 ink eradicator, since the No. 2 will remove color. H. S. B.

Flapper to Glamor Girl Shows Fashion's Changes

By Dorothy Roe

New York.—From flapper to glamour girl in one generation.

That's the leap that has been made by Mrs. U.S.A.—and it's more of a change than you think, until you see the fashions of 1923 and 1948 modeled side by side.

Such a drama of contrasts is being staged currently by Ethel Traphagen, who is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of her school of fashion by showing the styles of a generation ago along with last-minute silhouettes designed by her students. The flapper clothes are from her own museum collection of more than 1000 historic and regional costumes gathered from all over the world.

Viewing the styles of then and now, the most casual observer is forced to admit that Miss 1948 is a distinct improvement over her prototype of 1923. Then the ideal American figure was bustless, hipless and waistless, belted loosely somewhere above the knee in what has been called the "potato sack silhouette."

Today's fashions, on the other hand, are designed to accentuate the curves of the feminine figure—and the more curves, the better. There even are those who claim that this will be known as the era of brassiere worship.

Miss Traphagen feels that the change in America's fashion consciousness is just as striking as the change in silhouette. She believes that American designers today are exerting world-wide influence for the first time, and she teaches her students to accentuate the American flavor of their designs.

The next step in the development of the American couture, she believes, is an American university of fashion. This, says she, would consolidate America's place as fashion center of the world.

Men Study How to Sew Fine Seams

By Ruth Constad

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Men can throw in the sponge. The battle of the sexes is over. The women are the winners.

There's an exhibit at the Golden Jubilee of Greater New York at Grand Central Palace and, of course, a representative of the fair sex in the booth, to prove it.

Mrs. Erna Kopp gave off the news today in the booth housing the Fashion Institute of Technology's needle and thread exhibit.

They want instruction on how to drape the skirt they're making for their one-and-only; or they beg for a booklet on how to sew the buttons on mama's blouses.

Results Encouraging

The man of muscle, she sighed despairingly, is being replaced by the man with the thimble. And the most discouraging thing is their encouraging results. The gentlemen are turning out to be better hemstitchers than the women.

Only four years ago, said Mrs. Kopp, hemming, mending and darning was something exclusively for the distaff side.

Now GIs are flocking to the school by the score to learn the rudiments of slip-stitching. One of her best students, she said, is a former colonel.

"And you should see the boys with a needle," the sewing instructress said. "They're good at hems and buttons, but really expressive when it comes to hats and dresses."

As a woman Mrs. Kopp said she had to feel disillusioned about the male but as a teacher, she doesn't mind their intrusion in her field.

They're Enthusiastic

"They're so enthusiastic about their work," she said, "you almost don't mind seeing them with a needle in their hands."

The reasons why the boys are giving up poker for dress patterns are many, she said.

"Most probably the war made them bolder. A lot may have wanted to sew a long time ago but never had the courage to come out and say so."

Others, she figured, may have been forced to learn when their wives became breadwinners, too.

As a whole, the boys are most conservative when it comes to designing dresses.

"You can just see they're thinking about how their wives and girl friends are going to look to other men," she said. "They all favor high neck lines."

Cleaning the Frame

Gilt picture frames can be cleaned this way: Moisten a pad of cheesecloth with a solution of equal parts of ammonia and denatured alcohol, pat on frame lightly. Follow with a dry pad to take up soil. Last, put on a little lemon-oil to protect and shine the finish, tips Better Homes and Gardens.

No Set Formula Gives Rule Of How to Punish the Child

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IT WOULD seen that what parents want most is a set of formulas for behavior which would help them to decide what to do when the child acts in certain ways.

The more one knows about children the more impossible such solutions become. Behavior may look the same but stem from such different causes that to treat it the same would be a deep injustice to the child.

Let us suppose that some valuable object is distroyed. This may have happened accidentally and needs no punishment. It may have been inspired by the child's revengeful spirit toward a meanly, punitive parent. It may have sprung from dislike of the person who owned the object and destroying it was a blow at her or him. It may have been the result of haste and awkwardness in a child denied the privilege of handling the object. The same punishment could not, possibly, attempt to erase all these background motives which would lead to similar behavior in the future.

Children may act foolish and show-offy because they crave affection, or attention, or because they are jealous of other children who are present. It would not resolve any of these unhappy emotions to send the child from the room and subject him to ridicule and punishment.

THE child may be a cry-baby. Is it discomfort, hunger, resentment, injustice or the fundamental need for loving attention, which makes him so? One would have to be a sleuth to run down the evidence and to dispel the motives.

It would be well for parents to have so much curiosity about a child's unpleasant behavior that they would long to solve it, not just punish it.

Parents need to develop a spirit of research, which will inspire them to study children, see their children's environment through their children's eyes and then ask WHY they are compelled to act as they do.

WOODWARD & LOTHROP

Finished my buying. Went to a designer's from Switzerland in the afternoon; and to another opening, last night. Have seen Dior, Fath, Griffe, Desses, Balenciaga, Rochas and Marcel Chaumont. May see Paquin tomorrow.

The hats are darling, all small for daytime. P. M., large cartwheels of velvet or tulle, without trimming.

Gloves, 16-button length for dress-up --velvet, satin or matching the costume, Daytime, large gauntlet-type or shortie. Shoes, either opera pump, with or without bows, or boat-type, closed toe. Griffe showed a built-in platform slender boot with open heel, finished with wrap-arounds of suede, ending in a small bow over the front of the instep. Many Roman, high heel sandals with high criss-cross straps in satin, silver or gold. Straps usually buttoned.

Fath used a single strand of pearls, graduated in size, combined with pale gray or beige, about bust length, with nearly all of his clothes --earrings of pearls, slender drop or pendant style. Desses showed dog collars of seven strands of pearls or silver worn very high on the neck, also a single long string of pearls hanging waist-length, then caught up on the side with a pin of gold and pearls. Very Directoire. I've seen stoles, muffs and very large triangular scarfs worn everywhere -- fur, fur and fabric, velvet and tulle. I believe large muffs are going to be very important. Some were shown with cloth centers and fur at each end -- one ermine triangle, two lengths finished with ermine tails, was simply beautiful.

The coats are very full -- small shoulders and a beautifully cut body that hangs gracefully -- Fath showed many versions of an open back coat, sometimes open front and back, also slit to underarm, finished with a high, circular collar. Many buttons used as trimming down the sleeves, down the back or front. Also, capes seen at nearly every opening, some were double, the top cape, waist-deep, removable. The fitted coats shown have very tight bodices and very full skirts --fur is abundant -- revers narrow and long, tuxedos, etc.

Suits show lots of back fullness, padded hips or loose boxy jackets with tight belts. Nearly all with slender skirts, 3 to 5 button closing, notch collars. Fath jackets are 23" length, quite long waisted and very fitted. Dior about the same -- often trimmed with jet beading or made of satin.

There are many double purpose dresses, strapless top with short flare-back bolero or longer mess jacket. These are usually P. M. dresses, but many can be used for daytime. The bodice is casually buttoned up the front or slit about two inches above the top button. They are often very heavily embroidered in pearls and colored stones.

Dior used a wide skirt, deep front and back pleat, in nearly all his daytime clothes, added fullness by using unpressed back pleats, a cluster of pleats from hip pockets, or shirred gathers from either side. The top was simple, drop shoulder, buttoned front, long slim 3/4 or full-length sleeves with circular open cuffs. This silhouette was in wool, velveteen and satin. The "en vol" skirt now has fullness pulled to the left side, deep folds of lined fabric, draped into a very slender skirt at the hem. His straight skirts are just straight.

For evening, he showed an all around the body version of the "en vol". Deep pleats, about 12" lined around the waist, something like folds of an umbrella; the top, a very fitted bodice, usually strapless or a very low off the shoulder neckline. Nearly all the others use hobble skirts with peg tops, or tunic skirts over a slender sheath. Some are tied around the knees.

I still believe fashion --this time -- is "as you like it". There are so many themes, it will be a matter of personal choice. One thing in common is, tiny waist, no padding in shoulders and a desire to show the body beautiful.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

'Pied Type Dept.' Keeps Readers Chuckling

Three District Liners tied for first place in the rush to tell me that my favorite newspaper had stated:

"Police described the fugitive as being 1 feet 8 inches tall and weighing 155 pounds."

Clippings came from Betty Hatcher of Purcellville, Va.; H. R. S. of the Far View Farm, Falls Church, Va., and Sue Ward of 413 Pelham st., Fredericksburg, Va. Sue commented:

"He must have been stepped on by an elephant."

GIVE-AWAYS

A few days ago, a "very pretty, likable and affectionate" female dog appeared at the Mangrum home at 6435 Fairfax rd., Chevy Chase, Md.

The pup found a friend in 13-year-old Harriet Mangrum, and stayed over for a few days. But the Mangrums live in an apartment, and you know how that is in Washington.

So now the dog is at the dog pound, and Harriet wants to find her a good home. "I'll pay her way out of the pound," she tells me, "if somebody will take her in—preferably somebody with children and a large yard."

"How much will it cost to get the pup out of hock?" I asked. "And where do you propose to get all this money?"

"Oh, never fear about that," replied Harriet. "I have plenty of money. I'm a baby sitter. It won't cost more than about $4, and I earned $14 in the last few weeks. So I'll be glad to pay the fee."

You can reach Harriet at Oliver 2337. Isn't she a peach?

"Our cat has gone and done it again. We have three nice kittens, just like the picture inclosed, and would like to find good homes for them. They are 9 weeks old. Our telephone number is Randolph 5174."

"Three puppies; will be small dogs, ideal pets for children." (Ludlow 8879 after 6 p. m.).

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Frank Mannas, who operates the food counter at the New Amsterdam Drug Store, would probably bust his buttons in pride if you'd mention that his younger son, George, a recent enlistee in the United States Marine Band, was selected as the pianist to accompany President Truman on his present cruise.

Harry Hites,

Dear Harry:

Okay—but I hope George will have sense enough to refrain from swinging into such popular ditties as: "I Don't Have a Ghost of a Chance."

Bill.

Blarney is corny;
It's loud and tin-horny.

We should be above it
But most of us love it.

THEY DISCOVERED THE DROP WITH A MICROSCOPE

It's interesting to read that "the cost of living in Washington has fallen one tenth of 1 per cent."

It would be even more interesting to know precisely what items are now selling for lower prices.

I suspect that it will turn out to be such daily necessities as Indian clubs, sun dials, kumquats, slide rules, locomotives and mustache wax. Because it's certainly nothing that mama totes home from the corner grocery store.

Any housewife can tell you that the only thing that's come down recently is rain.

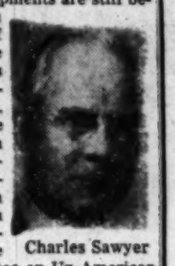
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. Still Ships Behind 'Curtain'

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen).

The United States is still shipping vital war material to countries behind the iron curtain.

And these shipments are still being made with the approval of the Commerce Department's Office of International Trade. This is the agency of which William Remington, a leading figure in the Russian "spy" disclosures of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, was formerly an important official.



Charles Sawyer

This column has definitely established the following facts regarding the continued export of war potential to Communist-ruled countries:

The OIT has secretly issued a license for the export of a large quantity of ball bearings and steel balls (for the manufacture of bearings) to Czechoslovakia. This license was issued to the Overseas Mercantile Co., N. Y.

Further, ball bearings are a key essential in the making of war goods. Two of the most costly Air Force raids into Germany during the recent war were for the purpose of knocking out ball bearing plants.

The concern's export license was signed by both Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and Francis McIntyre, acting OIT head. Neither, however, would admit this when questioned about the matter.

Sawyer refused to talk at all. He sent back word through a press aide that information regarding export licenses is "confidential." McIntyre gave the same answer, plus the claim that he "couldn't remember" this particular case.

"Isn't it odd that you can't remember a thing like that?" he was asked.

"Well, I'd have to consult the files and they are not available at this time," McIntyre replied. "It's late in the day and most of our people have gone home. Besides, as I said, those files are confidential."

Miffed

Argentina's thin-skinned dictator, Juan Peron, is in a huff at Brazil.

The grand-standing former colonel is so furious that Brazilian newspapers should have dared to criticize him that he has angrily canceled plans to visit beauteous Rio De Janeiro.

The Brazilian Government invited Peron and President Berres of Uruguay to be guests of honor at its gay "Independence Week." Both accepted. But, now, Peron has reneged. He is very wroth at what the free Brazilian press has been saying about him.

The dictatorial Argentinian isn't used to a free press. He has virtually suppressed it in his own country. He is peeved, apparently, because President Dutra hasn't done the same in Brazil.

As a result, Uruguay's President Berres will have the spotlight all to himself in glamorous Rio.

Surprise

High-ranking officers are in for a surprise when the report of the Advisory Commission on Service Pay is published.

The commission will recommend increases for enlisted men and junior officers, but none for the top grades. In fact, they may actually face a pay cut in the recommended elimination of tax deductions and certain allowances.

The commission was set up by Defense Secretary Forrestal to make a comprehensive study of service pay schedules. The body consists of Charles R. Hook, former head of the American Rolling Mills Co.; the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president of the University of Notre Dame; Keith S. McHugh, vice president, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Lawrence E. Whiting, head of the American Furniture Marts Building Co., Chicago.

A previous committee of generals and admirals had recommended pay boosts for all ranke, with the top echelons getting the biggest increases. Forrestal didn't even bother to send this report to Congress. Instead, he appointed the civilian commission to make a new report.

Truman Supporters

The executive board of Americans for Democratic Action will plump for President Truman at its forthcoming meeting in Chicago.

The New Dealers are still only lukewarm toward him. But they like Dewey even less than Truman.

So, at their meeting, the ADA leaders will go through the motions of indorsing Truman. But in the campaign, they will concentrate their funds and efforts on congressional and State contests.

What I think of you

You have a rather strange idea . . . Of what I think of you . . . And you are always wondering . . . If I am really true . . . You ask so many questions and . . . Consider my replies . . . As being too evasive or . . . As being downright lies . . . And that is why I never know . . . What words I ought to say . . . To please your heart and let you know . . . How much you mean today . . . How much you are a part of all . . . The dreams that come to me . . . In each delightful song of life . . . And every memory . . . I may not have the color bright . . . To paint the heaven blue . . . But maybe some day you will see . . . How much I think of you.
